

AMENDMENTS LEGALLY APPROVED

Now Here's the Proposition

A Christian Science Monitor, staff correspondent reports the following from Shanghai:

"Chinese and foreign newspapers here have been having a great deal of fun with dispatches from Hankow reporting the capture of an odd bird with a monkey's head, fur-like black feathers, four toes on each foot and a mouth shaped like an eagle's bill, now held captive in the Hankow Zoo.

"One paper gravely quotes Shanghai scientific opinion to the effect that this must be either a sloop-sloop or a Flooie-oo, the first being a shellfish eater which throws discarded shells out of a porthole under its left wing and the latter being a eater of red peppers which flies backward to blow the taste out of its mouth."

What this country needs is young men with ingenuity and resourcefulness, they say, which brings to mind the following anecdote from "Grit":

"Shine your shoes, Mister?"

"No time, Sonny."

"Well to start the day right I'll do one for nothing."

"All right, go ahead."

"There, how does she look, Boss?"

"Fine."

"Well, for 10 cents, I'll do the other one."

The St. Louis Star-Times, contributed this bit of comment. "A magazine writer says women control 70 per cent of family incomes. This statement puzzled us considerably for a minute until it occurred to us that the remaining 30 per cent goes for taxes."

And we just couldn't keep this clipping from the Wall Street Journal to ourselves:

The Dollar and the Cent

A big silver dollar, and a little brown cent,

Rolling along together they went,

Rolling along the smooth sidewalk,

When the dollar remarked—for the dollar can talk:

You poor little cent, you cheap little mite,

I'm bigger and more than twice as bright,

I'm worth more than you a hundred fold,

And written on me in letters bold,

Is the motto drawn from the pious creed,

"In God we trust," which all can read.

Yes, I know; said the cent,

I'm a cheap little mite, and I know

I'm not big, nor good, nor bright,

And yet, said the cent, with a meek little sigh—

You don't go to church as often as I.

—J. E. Johnson.

Julius Desenberg "Made Hay" While First Texas Oil Flowed

The gushing forth of 20,000 barrels of oil per day for the first well he sank, inaugurated the precipitous rise to affluence and wealth of Julius Desenberg, deceased brother of Miss Amelia Desenberg, Mrs. Rose Livingston, the late Sigmund and Louis Desenberg, and of Benjamin Desenberg, founder of the Desenberg store.

Julius Desenberg and his early companions, Julius and Joe Nussbaum, are mentioned in a recent Saturday Evening Post article, "The Colonel Leaves Tracks," concerned with one, Colonel A. E. Humphrey, and others, who rose to early success via the Texas oil route.

Born in Germany, Julius Desenberg, traveled in his early youth to Texas to join Joe Nussbaum with whom he went into a hardware and general store enterprise, together with the latter's brother, Julius Nussbaum, already there. Julius Nussbaum was also related to Julius Desenberg, having married his sister. The general store was successful, then, came the phenomenal production of the

The Nussbaums also shared in the early money-making opportunities of oil-booming Texas. They and Julius Desenberg reputedly became millionaires from land they had earlier accumulated.

His widow, Mrs. Nora Desenberg lives in Mexia, his son, Henry, in Houston, and three daughters, in Texas.

McAuliffe To Play Saturday

A big day is expected next Saturday at Orchard Hills. Thomas P. "Tommy" McAuliffe, of Detroit, "world's champion armless golfer," will entertain the large gallery with an exhibition. The match will be held in the afternoon and the public is cordially invited to join the gallery of golfing fans.

Deprived of the use of both arms in a railway accident, Mr. McAuliffe chose caddy as a hobby. Desiring to succeed without asking or giving any quarter to his fellow-man, "Tommy" learned to play golf. Today, he is considered one of the marvels of the golfing world. His adopted home is Detroit, and he rightly deserves his place in the gallery of fame along with the array of world's champions claimed by Detroit.

Handicapped as he is (although he refuses to admit any handicap), "Tommy" plays regulation golf courses in scores that average between 86 and 95—scores that make the average golfer wonder what two arms are for.

Immediately after the round of the course, "Tommy" will put on his internationally famous array of trick and fancy golf shots, featuring driving from necks of bottles, watch crystals, four ways to get out of traps and bunkers, chip shots, pitch and run shots, his never-duplicated 6 and 9 ball stymie shots, putting two balls at once into the cup, and many other unusual shots.

Everyone attending Orchard Hills should find this exhibition entertaining and spectacular. A 50 cent gallery fee will be charged to defray Mr. McAuliffe's expenses. A tag party at which Mr. McAuliffe will give a talk, will be held in the evening.

Kelley Pupils Present Ninth Annual Recital

Josephine Kelley gave her ninth annual pupil's recital, Tuesday evening, June 15, at the Presbyterian church. The entire program was thoroughly entertaining, culminating in the Mendelssohn duo for piano and cello played by Bruno Rampoldt with Mrs. Kelley at the piano. The young piano students displayed skill and musicianship in their playing, but, above all else, they showed good instruction.

Mr. Rampoldt, a comparative newcomer in Buchanan, played with rare understanding and warmth, the first and last movements abounding with the vivacity and grace so characteristic of Mendelssohn. The middle movement was the embodiment of perfection, dignified, refined, yet the very essence of tenderness. That the entire composition never for a moment lost any of these charming qualities is sufficient tribute to the artistry of both Mrs. Kelley and Mr. Rampoldt.

BERRIEN COUNTY PUTS $200,000 INFIRMARY, HOSPITAL IN OPERATION

The latest shock-proof X-ray equipment shown in the left photo is used by Dr. J. F. Barkman, medical director of the new Berrien county hospital at Berrien Center, Mich. The equipment in the operating room is equally modern. Up to the present time Dr. Barkman has been able to perform all operations, both major and minor, unassisted. The new, two-story brick building of the sanatorium, shown in the center, plus equipment has an estimated value of $200,000.

Although only 131 patients occupy this building at present, 250 persons can be accommodated with ease. An up-to-date Mandel iron in the hospital laundry at Berrien Center is a far cry from the hand irons which must have been used in the old pioneer hospital that was built almost 100 years ago on the same site the new building occupies. ### READ AND REFLECT

The persistent dripping of a tiny trickle of water it has been said will wear away the most unyielding stone. With that hope in mind the following suggestions conducive to safe and courteous driving, many times before set forth, are again presented.

- Never speed. Drive carefully at all times.
- Stop, look, and listen at all railroad crossings.
- Have good brakes all the time.
- Drive cautiously at night and on slippery streets.
- Keep your vehicle under control at all times.
- Don't try to beat traffic lights.
- Observe all traffic regulations.
- Never pass another vehicle on a hill.
- Don't cut in or out of traffic carelessly.
- Signal when making right or left turns.
- Avoid mixing drinking and driving.
- Keep your lights, windshield wiper, horn, mirrors, tires, and steering mechanism in A-1 condition.

A long list? Well, place the advantages from observance of these principles on one side of the balance sheet, compare them with the cost of the bodies mangled or permanently crippled, the nerves shaken, and the many persons sorrowed by accident fatalities and injuries, and then draw your own conclusions.

ON THE LIBRARY QUESTION

The expressed intention of the City Commission to make an appropriation for expansion of public library facilities, as soon as new funds are available, despite their voiced desire to keep city expenses at a minimum, is entirely in harmony with the underlying justification for a better library. For the provision of a good public library should not be considered purely as an added expense, but as a necessary expense for the healthy, progressive community. A good library performs at least three easily distinguishable services to the members of the community.

It serves as a source of information upon both past and present-day topics. Too often, the inquiring mind may be hindered simply because the answers to perplexing questions cannot easily be further pursued. In a democracy, moreover, it is essential that the fund of knowledge be available to everyone, both for each individual's enlightenment, and also that the institution of democracy, through enlightenment, may be safeguarded.

A second function of a good library, is that of providing the means for the intellectual exercise so necessary to mental development. For just as the fighter is better prepared for competition who has tried his mettle against hard opponents, the man who acquaints himself with the masters of reasoning and self-expression, is better able to organize and muster his own resources for his mental combats in life.

Another function of a good library, and one not so clearly observed as possessing practical value, is the provision of the opportunity of meeting, through the medium of books and periodicals, the rare men of genius, who by their keener insight and wise counsel, can enable men to rise above the customary routine of life and to be stimulated to better and more wholesome living.

For these men of genius, because of their greater sensitivity, and sometimes for their own good, too great a sensitivity, are able to stand apart from the ever-present and often deadening routine of most lives, and even more important, are able to assist others to life themselves up so that they too may see the eternal drama of life, and realize that even in the ordinary activities of the community there is truthful drama, just as there is in all of life, because of it's ever miraculous and never totally explainable nature.

Of course the mere provision of a better supply of books and periodicals will not insure their being used as advantageously or as fully as they might, but it is unquestionably a civic responsibility to make available within the limits of expediency and economy, the best facilities possible, and to make every effort to acquaint all with the services the library may render.

Drivers Guided By Jungle Law, Judge Declares

"The average motorist drives by what I call the law of the jungle," Judge John Maher of Detroit Recorder's Court told 100 law enforcement men in Detroit last month at the regular meeting of the Southeastern Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

"If he would show half as much courtesy when he gets behind the wheel of his car as he does on the golf course there would be fewer accidents. This lack of ethics is one of three basic evils which will be overcome only by education in the home as well as in the school. The second evil is simply carelessness," the judge continued.

"If Johnny at the age of eight does not hang up his coat he'll probably be a bad driver at 18. The third factor is lack of respect for laws. The average driver believes that laws are made for everyone but him."

Stating that automobiles had killed as many people in the past 16 years as have died in six wars which this country has fought over a 161 year period, Judge Maher said that progress is being made slowly in traffic enforcement despite increasing fatalities and that education surely will solve the problem eventually. He pointed out that taxi drivers have few accidents because they are well trained and because driving an automobile is considered a serious business by them.

Glass Fibers Are Being Developed for Many Uses

Neckties, Dresses, Drapes and Awnings

By WATSON DAVIS
GLASS is familiar as bottles or tumblers, window panes, and, more recently, as translucent building blocks. It is proverbially breakable and fragile.
At first thought glass would not be judged a serious competitor to the ordinary textiles. Yet one of the most promising new uses for glass is as a fiber.
Dresses, neckties and other novelties can be made of glass fiber. But the early large scale practical usage of glass textiles is foreseen in drapes for use in theaters, hotels, tapestries, awnings that can not be hurt by carelessly flung cigarettes and other such applications where real non-inflammability is necessary.
Just now glass fibers are finding widest application as insulating material both against heat and on electric wires and as a filtering material. A mat of glass fibers such as used in house walls or refrigerators weighs a mere hundredth of the volume of solid glass, 1 1/2 instead of 150 pounds per cubic foot.
Can Be Tied in Knots
If drawn sufficiently fine glass becomes flexible and can even be tied in knots. And the strength needed to pull glass apart increases as the fiber diameter is reduced, so that while typical strength of glass rods is 20,000 pounds per square inch, commercially produced fibers have gone as high as 2,000,000. Fibers as fine as 0.00005 inch in diameter have been produced. Continuous filaments have been drawn without a break for 5,040 miles.
Color? The natural white suffices for most purposes now, but soon glass textiles, competing with cotton, wool and rayon, will emerge in all rainbow shades, with more permanency than we expect from other textiles.
For several centuries glass has been made into fiber for special purposes. The Germans made glass fiber commercially during the World War when blockades cut off supplies of asbestos. The modern American method dates from 1931 and now two large concerns are pushing research on this stuff that a window pane would not recognize as a first cousin.

Birth-Ring Found in Human Teeth by Chicago Dentist

Chicago.—Discovery of a birth-ring in human teeth, something like the growth-ring of a tree, was announced by Dr. Isaac Schour of the University of Illinois College of Dentistry here.
The birth-ring is said to be a "definite biological landmark in the history of the individual." Its discovery, Dr. Schour believes, opens the way for other new discoveries in the history of the teeth and the individual.
The birth-ring, or neo-natal ring, to give it its scientific name, is found in the first or baby teeth. It appears in both the dentin and enamel and makes it possible to compare the amount and quality of each of these substances in the teeth before and after birth.
Marked by Biologic Changes.
The teeth start to grow about four months before the baby is born and the last tooth has not completed its growth until the age of twenty years is reached. During this time several important biologic changes take place, the most important of which is birth. One effect of this experience, in which the change from dependent to independent life is made, is a loss of weight which it takes the baby 10 days or more to regain. It is not surprising, Dr. Schour points out, that this tremendous experience should also leave its mark on the teeth.
Other markings have been found on the teeth but their significance has not been understood. Dr. Schour believes that these may mark other biologic changes and is conducting further investigations along these lines.

Timberline Shows Alaska Climate Grows Milder

Washington.—Timberline on the Arctic tundra gives indication that the climate of Alaska has been rapidly modifying for a fairly long stretch of years, states Prof. Robert F. Griggs of George Washington university, in Science.
Trees at the edge of timber growth are thrifty and prosperous-looking, as though they had grown in a favoring climate. There are no snags or dead trees among them. It is a new forest—apparently an advancing forest.
Conditions elsewhere in the Arctic are not necessarily trending toward higher average temperatures, however.
"Ugly as a Mud Fence"
Some of the settlers of the Middle West tried to make fences of sod. Sod houses had been found practical. Fences were not, since they had no roots to protect them. They soon became unsightly lines of mud and tangled roots. A person or thing which is homely, is therefore likened to a mud fence.

Indians Blamed For Soil Losses

Morgan Farm Tests Show Brakes Burned Timber, Foresters Say

Indians who stalked game hundreds of years ago near Benton Harbor probably never heard of soil erosion. If they had, they wouldn't have burned over the woodlands. Wind and water erosion are acute agricultural problems in this area and other parts of the state, largely because of the removal of timber, foresters say.

Recent tests by the soil conservation service on the Jessie Morgan farm in Berrien county show that woodlands in this region were burned over periodically by Indians in order to make their hunting easier. The older trees in the stand show a decided decrease in growth for certain periods over 100 years ago. Another proof that burning took place, according to foresters, is in the dense understory of dogwood and other undesirable species.

Demonstration of proper methods of timber stand improvement is a part of the erosion control program being carried out by the federal government in Berrien county. The soil conservation service selected a portion of the Morgan farm for tests and demonstrations. Large trees, beyond the lumber utilization stage, were cut into fence posts and cordwood and sold to nearby farmers. Small diseased and undesirable trees were worked into polewood, and the understory was cleared. Red oak acorns and seedlings were planted to provide future reproduction.

Properly managed woodlots not only are an essential portion of any farm, but are the most effective of all soil conservation measures, according to Arvid Tesaker, assistant forester of the erosion control project, who supervised work on the Morgan farm. Similar demonstrations of proper handling of woodlots are being carried out in other cooperating farms in the area.

CHILDREN IN COURT

(Judge Malcolm Hatfield)
 The sixteen year old boy who was arrested last week for automobile banditry today confessed his guilt in court.

At the conclusion of the trial the judge drew the father and mother aside and said: "In the past you have been too lenient with your son. You have pleaded where you should have commanded. You coaxed and humored this child when your own experiences in life should have directed the course for him to follow. As a result, he frankly admits that he lost respect for your judgment and followed out his own wishes. Now the state is forced to step in and take over the responsibilities which you, as parents neglected to enforce."

Child Diphtheria Deaths Needless Slemmons Declares

Death Rate Increasing Because Public Fails To Use Preventive Toxin

"Children are dying of diphtheria in Michigan today when such deaths are a discredit to any community," declared Dr. C. C. Slemmons, state health commissioner, when statistical reports laid on his desk Friday indicated an 82 per cent increase in diphtheria mortality for the early months of 1937.

"Twenty deaths have already occurred compared with 11 at this time last year," said the commissioner, "and yet such deaths are absolutely preventable. We know the cause of diphtheria, how it is spread, and we can immunize any child with toxoid so there is little danger of his ever contracting the disease. Even when a child has diphtheria, death can be prevented if antitoxin is administered on the first appearance of symptoms."

With an unusual increase in diphtheria probable during the coming fall and winter months, Dr. Slemmons urged parents to have infants and pre-school children immunized with toxoid now. This simple, painless measure will safeguard them during those first five years of life when 80 per cent of all diphtheria deaths occur. Toxoid immunization is so effective in preventing diphtheria, he said, that any community can determine its own diphtheria rate.

When a child dies of diphtheria today, said Dr. Slemmons, it is because someone has failed to have that child protected with toxoid. If a case does occur, time is an all-important factor in the administration of antitoxin which must be injected during the first 24 hours of the disease. The commissioner urged physicians to give antitoxin at once upon the first suggestion of diphtheria without waiting for laboratory confirmation.

"From 1921 to 1934 Michigan demonstrated the effectiveness of diphtheria prevention by reducing deaths from 954 to 38, but since that time we have been too self-satisfied. Cases and deaths are increasing again, and they will continue to increase so long as we fail to take full advantage of the positive prevention which toxoid offers for every child. Practically every one of the 302 cases which have been reported since January could have been prevented if every infant were immunized before he became one year of age."

How Do Banks Figure Checking Account Charges?

Extensive studies by banking experts over a period of years, especially by the Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association, have shown what it costs the average bank—for overhead, stationery, check-books, salaries, safekeeping of funds, etc.—to handle each check and deposit item. These studies have also revealed how much interest is earned by an average bank on each dollar of its loanable funds when invested at current rates.

With such information as this at hand banks are able to ascertain which of their accounts earn enough to pay their cost of handling. On accounts, whose earnings do not cover their handling costs, a moderate service charge is ordinarily made. Consequently, these accounts pay their own way and are welcome at the bank because they conform to sound banking principles.

Upon request we shall be glad to give you the details of our service charge policy.

Upper Peninsula Issues Fish Bulletin

As a special accommodation to tourist fishermen the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau with the cooperation of conservation officers has issued a bulletin listing the fishing possibilities in 400 representative lakes of the upper peninsula.

The names of all the inland lakes on the list appear together with data concerning the various species of fish in the lakes. The bulletin gives the approximate size of the lake, the section, township and county in which it is situated. It is estimated that the upper peninsula has more than 1,000 inland lakes.

Expects Largest Wheat Crop In State Since '05

Holmes Also Predicts Good Fruit Yield, Average Spring Grain, Hay

A continued improvement in the State's winter wheat and rye prospects during May, about an average outlook for spring grains and hay crops, and uniformly high conditions for all of the major fruits has been reported by Irvin Holmes, Assistant United States Statistician for the Michigan Co-operative Crop Reporting Service. Frequent rains hindered spring planting in the southern half of the Lower Peninsula during much of May, he states, but weather conditions thus far in June, he says, have been more favorable for farm work and crops are making better progress. Farmers have been generally handicapped this season, he notes, by the shortage of available labor.

Many fields of winter wheat were planted late last fall and have shown poor color and growth this spring, Mr. Holmes reports, but despite this condition the outlook improved during May, he says, and, with the large acreage for harvest this year, the potential production as of June 1 has been placed at 21,694,000 bushels, which would be the largest crop for this State since 1905. The Michigan rye crop, he forecasts, from June 1 conditions, at 2,002,000 bushels which is nearly a fourth larger than the 1936 crop but only slightly above the 1928-32 average production. Oat and barley seeding, he says, was delayed by frequent rains this spring so that much of the acreage was planted late and in some sections a considerable proportion of the intended acreage was never planted. The condition of the Michigan oat crop on June 1, he states, was 8 per cent and that of barley 82 per cent, both close to or slightly below average for that date.

Cherry orchards bloomed heavily this year and the blossoms were just beginning to fall in the northern districts at the time the June 1 reports were filled out, Mr. Holmes says, stating that there was some frost damage during May, principally in the west-central counties of the Fruit Belt, but for the State as a whole, the June 1 condition this year (85 per cent) was the highest for that date since 1920. Making allowance for the continued increase in bearing capacity of the State's acreage, he says, this suggests a record crop of 39,600 tons. The revised estimate of the 1936 production he points out was 29,890 tons. A good set is generally reported on peaches and the June 1 condition this season is above any figure for that date since 1916, he states, reporting that for this fruit, the indicated 1937 production as of June 1 is 2,622,000 bushels which compares with 1,720,000 bushels harvested in 1936 and 1,565,000 bushels, the 1928-32 average; both revised estimates. The United States total peach crop, he indicates, promises to be above that of last year but slightly below the 5-year average.

Michigan pear prospects are not quite as good as for the other tree fruits but nevertheless favorable, Mr. Holmes continues adding that the June 1 indicated production for this fruit amounts to 1,400,000 bushels which compares with revised estimates of 1,390,000 bushels for 1936 and 740,000 bushels, the 1928-32 average. June 1 is too early to forecast apple production in this State, he comments, stating that not all northern areas were in full bloom at the time of the report, but in central and southern sections a heavy bloom was reported on most varieties. The cold wet weather at blossoming time, he says will probably result in a heavy drop later in some southern counties.

The cool weather and abundance of rain this spring has been favorable for hay meadows and pastures, Mr. Holmes states, but the condition of alfalfa, clover timothy, he says, is held down by the loss of 1936 seedings from last summer's drought and by some injury to old meadows from winter killing. The condition of these Michigan crops on June 1, he says, was reported as follows: alfalfa hay, 83 per cent; all clover and timothy hay, 78 per cent; all tame hay, 80 per cent; wild hay, 84 per cent; and pastures, 87 per cent.

A new type of mental vigilance on the part of our citizens is our greatest need, he declares, stating that they must be brought realize that there cannot be safety from the depredations of the criminal underworld, unless this safety is insured by the combined efforts of all the people.

Northern Michigan Spring Fire Loss Exceeds '35-'36

That Northern Michigan has suffered heavier damages from forest fire so far this year than in the spring season of 1936 and 1935, is reported from Lansing.

A total of 340 forest fires was reported up to June 1, the dispatch states, adding that the aggregate area burned was over 10,054 acres.

In 1936, Michigan tallied 500 forest fires up to June 1 with 2,000 acres burned over. The record for the spring of 1935 shows 895 forest fires and a total of 8,000 acres burned over.

Census Shows Brook Trout, Largest Catch

Brook trout, which authorities feared a few years ago were going the way of the Michigan grayling still constitute more than 60 per cent of all the trout taken in Michigan's streams, states a report from Lansing.

This has been learned, the report says, through the creel-census card system used by the Department of Conservation during the past few years to get accurate information from fishermen on their catches during trout season.

After early morning daily devotionals, led by the Rev. N. A. ## Baltzer Urges Dairy Food Use

City and rural areas alike have such a great reliance and investment in the dairy business in Michigan that efficient production and greater consumption of dairy products within the state can be called the key to Michigan prosperity, according to A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College. Citing the fact that one third of the total farm income in the state is derived from dairy farming, he states that an increased use of dairy products by farmers and by city workers is necessary to keep up the spending ability and bank balances of both.

Substitutes for dairy products, he states, annually total 390 million pounds in the United States. Their use is described by Baltzer, as evidence of a lack of understanding of how better markets for Michigan manufactures produced by city workers, could be created by the purchase of food products offered from Michigan farms.

Proof that farmers would be better able to purchase cars and other products is offered by a few figures, he asserts, suggesting these benefits from eating butter and cheese and drinking milk instead of substitutes:

Farmers alone would have 24 millions more to spend in cash if they could stop purchasing butter-fat substitutes. Michigan's share would be $1,700,000.

Two cents would be added to the value of each of the 1,700,000,000 pounds of butter consumed annually in the United States.

Forty million dollars, or eight cents a hundred weight, would be added to the value of whole milk.

Health of boys and girls and adults would be improved through greater use of dairy products.

American Income Rises 32 Cents; Living Costs Gain 9 Cents in Year

PURCHASING POWER April, 1937, Compared with April, 1936

THE above chart, illustrating the extent to which the average American has benefited from the rise in national income during the last twelve months, is based upon the monthly consumers' study of Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis. For every dollar in the pockets of Mr. and Mrs. Public in April 1936, there was, thanks to improved income of every classification, $1.32 in April 1937.

At the same time, the outgo for April 1937 was only $1.09 compared with $1 a year earlier, which put Mr. and Mrs. Public 21 cents ahead on every dollar of earnings. This increase in "real" income represents the average of the total dollar incomes involved in the following gains per dollar: investors, 39 cents; every dollar; wage earners, 35 cents; salaried workers, 26 cents; and other income, 27 cents.

Rents were up 12 cents on every dollar last April as compared with the same month of 1936; food rose eight cents, miscellaneous items were up nine cents, and clothing advanced three cents.

Drivers Guided By Jungle Law, Judge Declares

"The average motorist drives by what I call the law of the jungle," Judge John Maher of Detroit Recorder's Court told 100 law enforcement men in Detroit last month at the regular meeting of the Southeastern Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

"If he would show half as much courtesy when he gets behind the wheel of his car as he does on the golf course there would be fewer accidents. This lack of ethics is one of three basic evils which will be overcome only by education in the home as well as in the school. The second evil is simply carelessness," the judge continued. "If Johnny at the age of eight does not hang up his coat he'll probably be a bad driver at 18. The third factor is lack of respect for laws. The average driver believes that laws are made for everyone but him."

"Stating that automobiles had killed as many people in the past 10 years as have died in six wars which this country has fought over a 161 year period, Judge Maher said that progress is being made slowly in traffic enforcement, despite increasing fatalities and that education surely will solve the problem eventually. He pointed out that taxi drivers have few accidents because they are well trained and because driving an automobile is considered a serious business by them."

DRY ZERO vs. FOUNDRY
Friday, June 11.

Dry zero jumped into third place in the league standings when they defeated the strong Foundry ten tonight 3-1. It was one of the best games played this season.

Freehling had them handcuffed, allowing only two hits in four innings. For some unknown reason the manager changed pitchers and put in Ellis, who seemed to be no puzzle at all and the Dry Zero team hit him and went on to win.

A walk to York and two stolen bases and a long fly brought him home with the first run of the game.

Foundry came back and tied it up on two doubles and a single, and with some good fielding let only one run in to score.

The Dry Zero team won the game on two doubles and a long fly in the sixth.

The Foundry outfit outdid the Dry Zero ten but some good fielding kept them from scoring more runs than they did.

York receives a lot of credit also, for he pitched a very good game allowing only five hits and striking out six men.

Toney with a single and a double in three times up led the winners at the plate.

Johansen and Winkler each with a double in three times up led the losers.

Root's took the lead in the third, when Sherburn was safe on an error by Lewis, followed by two singles in a row, scored two runs. Roots scored again in the sixth to sew up the game, when Virgil got his third hit in as many times up, followed by a long home run by Dunkleberg.

Hatchery Trout Miss Flies, Baldwinites Say

Twelve-inch brook trout fresh from a hatchery pond are likely to be poor sharpshooters when it comes to hitting a fly, is the report of several fishermen on Pine river, near Baldwin.

Several weeks ago the state planted 3,000 legal-size trout from Paris hatchery in three places along the eight-mile state-owned portion of the Pine to bolster the supply in this intensively-fished section of the stream. Many of the planted trout were caught soon after planting.

Some fishermen reported that while the hatchery trout would rise to the fly, some would consistently miss it. Frequently the trout would break water six or twelve inches from the lure.
