The Gallen Farm Fair

It makes me sad—and yet I'm glad—if you know what I mean they've spunk enough to pull that stuff in little old Gallen. For oft we prate of harvest fete right here in this man's town; of thronging streets where farmers meet when leaves turn dry and brown.

When suns begin to tumble in 'twixt five and six o'clock and red leaves burn at every turn and frost is on the shock we fain would throw a harvest show and fill the town up full, but when at last the time is past all we can show is bull.

So me and you, who no can do, can wind our limousines, and wend our way through fields of hay to little old Gallen, to see the fair they put on there, which we might have doubted, with spunk enough to do the stuff, we merely talk about.

Dot Gyp Zute

Recently a young Buchanan man went out and had himself the kind of an adventure that we have always thought about but never got around to.

He went into Chicago for the week-end and bright and early Sunday morning he went down on Maxwell street, which is—well just Maxwell street and if you don't know it, where have you been all your life? It was the young gent's intention to test out the report that if you were the first one in a Maxwell street business house on Sunday morning you could buy at your own price. He wanted a suit of clothes, so he selected a seemly one marked $30, and showed the store keeper a ten and a five spot.

"Dot is thutty tollars," said the merchant.

"Fifteen" said the guy that is now wearing that Maxwell street suit.

"Dwenty-five—dot's a gyp zute at dwenty-five," protested Maxwell street.

But he held out and got his suit for $15.

"And dot iss the gyppest zute you efer got for fifteen." So said the merchant as he wrapped it up, And so it is.

His Mind Musta Shorted

We received in the mail this week the following lyric entitled "October Morn."

Oh! How we miss those shorts,—
When we stroll down the busy business street,
Not a pair of them do we ever meet.

Oh! How we miss those shorts,—
On the girls with the sparkling, twinkling eyes
With those attractive, shapely calves and thighs.

Oh! How we miss those shorts,—
When we stroll the park within,
We fail to see a sun-kissed skin.

Oh! How we miss those shorts,—
If we walk along the sandy shore,
We do not see them any more.

Oh! How we miss those shorts,—
Now we hope it's not a sin,
To admit that, that is within,
Those shorts.

Oh! How we miss those shorts,—
But if they are going to wear them,
That is wear them at all—
We wish they would wear them longer.

That is, longer in the fall—
Oh! How we miss those shorts,
—Mr. Shortz

And "There's A Reason"—Quality

District Has Banner Wheat, Corn, Potato and Fruit Crop

People who are interested in "buying Buchanan" this coming year may indulge their propensity by buying products of the Postum company, according to manager A. J. George of the Buchanan Co-Ops Inc., who states that the local co-operative shipped 30,000 bushels of wheat to the Postum company at Battle Creek, this fall.

It may well be that "There's a reason," as George states that this district was especially favored over other localities in southwest Michigan in size and quality of the yield. Practically all local grown wheat graded as high as No. 2, with a 58 pound minimum per bushel. This is unusual for Michigan wheat and was not duplicated elsewhere in this section.

Some of the 1937 Buchanan wheat crop will return to the shelves of the grocery stores here in the form of Postum cereal, grape nuts and other Postum products.

Encouraged by the excellent wheat results this year, local farmers are putting out an unusual fall crop, some of which is already up.

In addition to wheat exports the Buchanan district may become a corn exporting point this year, owing to prospects of the finest corn crop in the memory of living farmers. The yield promises to be far above average this fall, and although it is too early to estimate the general quality, a great part of the crop is already mature.

Buchanan clover seed growers are also generally successful this year and will benefit from shortages elsewhere by receiving an excellent price.

Late potatoes have been maturing under almost ideal conditions and promise an extra yield. The price is not yet a matter of speculation.

Britton Shades

Ellis in Net Final

Ralph Britton, a veteran of the courts, won the silver cup offered by the Buchanan Athletic Association for the current year at the finals held at Athletic Park Tuesday evening, defeating the runner-up, Dick Ellis, in four hard fought sets by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

Britton had eliminated last year's champion, Clarence Rice, and James Ellis and M. Maxson in earlier rounds. Dick Ellis had defeated Lowell Batchelor and Lester Beadle, drawing a bye for the semi-finals.

Fishing, History

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wilson arrived home last week from a visit at the home of their son and family at Hillside, N. J. Among the high points of their 13-day visit there was a deep-sea fishing trip off Bayhead, near Atlantic City, in company with Lester Hall, who is employed at Jersey City. They caught 22 deep sea trout, resembling lake trout and weighing about 40 pounds total. On their return they visited the Gettysburg battlefield and also at historic places in Philadelphia, including Independence hall and the home of Betsy Ross where the first American flag was made.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

By HAWES

CHAPTER V

Now when I hear Bill Miller or W. L. Babbitt or other lumber authorities talk about "Norway pine," I know what it is about.

A picture—many pictures, in fact, flash through my mind, of long sweeps of hills clothed with perfect pine and birch forest. The pines standing in straight perfection, the trunks seemingly almost uniform in thickness from base to the tuft of green foliage near the top, and ranging in color from a golden to a chocolate brown. The woods were perfectly maintained, the trees spaced properly for the best growth with no thickets of underbrush and choking competition of small trees.

The birches are not of a variety familiar to me, and they grow to great size and considerable age. The foliage is a dusty gray, like the maple leaves along a dusty road on a hot day. But it is a lovely ashy color, when you find it is natural and the white trunks are mottled with splashes of golden moss or fungi.

The Norwegian and Swedish pine is of slow growth, with small annual rings which makes the fiber very close and hard. Consequently the wood is very durable and long-lived. Old wooden houses built by record two and three hundred years ago remain in perfect preservation. I saw much of the Swedish forest system and will tell about it later.

But I had the good luck to approach Oslo by rail through a great timber section. Down into the Oslo fjord floats the lumber from the greatest timber basin in Norway. The train swung around the shoulders of great hills jutting into a large lake, where steam tugs pulled rafts of lumber. Rivers were floating thick with logs. The Norwegian streams are rather too swift for satisfactory log-floating in contrast to the Swedish rivers which are perfect mediums of transportation. The sides of the rivers are boomed with long pine poles bolted and to end to keep the log drives from lodging. All in all it seemed like the old picture of logging on the Muskegon river 50 and 60 years ago.

Great falls furnished an abundance of power. We followed the course of a river which carried, by my estimate, more water than the St. Joseph. At frequent intervals this stream plunged over ledges and rocks in 50 and 75 foot falls—so frequent in fact that they were no cause for comment and only meant another site for a great brick sawmill employing perhaps several hundred men. The Swedish and Norwegian lumber industry is maintained on a permanent basis and their mills are not of the few blocks up Carl John's Galan shabby, impermanent type which you see in American lumber districts. About these mills would be stacked immense piles of sawed lumber, each the size of an ordinary two-story business block and perhaps a half mile long.

Near evening we approached the capital city, Oslo, beautifully located on a harbor-like fjord. You will remember that on Jan. 1, 1925, the name of the capital city was changed from Christiania to Oslo. Oslo had been the ancient name, until it had been changed during the period of Danish conquest, named after King Christian of Denmark. You will also remember that a fjord is a valley or deep crevice in the hills carved by ice in an earlier glacial age, through which the ocean projects long distances inland. Oslo lies beautifully on the flanks of hills rising from such a fjord.

But unfortunately a stranger's impressions of a foreign city are likely to be affected by his success in securing satisfactory accommodations. I arrived in Oslo to a cold evening of a "Lordy" (Saturday) afternoon. And on Saturday afternoons they shut up in Oslo. And how they shut up! Not satisfied with merely locking the doors they lower great iron grills, like penitentiary bars or a mediaeval portcullis, in front of the doors. Cafes were of course open when you recognized them. Oslo has less of color than Swedish cities and more nearly resembles a continental city in its architecture and aloofness. My experience with the Norwegian country people was that they were anything but aloof, but Oslo seemed rather haughty and high-hat-like towards a tired tight-wadder, lugging a grip in one hand, a package in the other and clad in a dusty blue serge suit and a sport shirt with the collar open.

It was my first gay alone in a strange land, where I did not know the language and had no one to interpret for me. It was the first time and nearly the only time that I was in any way daunted or discouraged.

The street from the central railway station to the royal palace regally perched on a high hill is Carl Johan's Galan and up it I plodded, tightening my belt against gnawing hunger and looking at the strange business houses and cafes. The buildings on this main street were uniformly about 3 to 5 stories high, as in Berlin and in Paris. The first floors were about a half story above the street with basement shop rooms beneath, so that to enter you either had to ascend or descend a half flight of stairs. The cafes did not look like anything in the way of eating places I had ever seen. A few blocks up Carl John's Galan

E. B. Clark, president of the Clark Equipment company, who was seriously injured in an automobile collision at the intersection of Porter, Indiana, 1893-95; agent, Chicago Heights, Illinois, 1895-98; agent, Michigan City, Ind. 1898-99; traveling freight agent, Chicago, 1899-1900; Chief Clerk, General Freight Department, Chicago, 1900-02; agent, Jackson, Michigan, 1902; Chief Clerk to General Manager, Detroit, 1903-09; Division Supt., St. Thomas, Ont., 1909-12; Assistant to General Manager 1912-13; Assistant General Supt., 1913-16; General Superintendent 1916-20; General Manager, 1920-26; Assistant Vice-President and General Manager, 1926-30; Vice-President and General Manager since 1930.

Many traditions in the railroad industry in Michigan revolve around the retiring executive. Many stories are told of his dynamic personality and methods in the days when he was coming up from the ranks, particularly in the period when he was a division superintendent. One of the dramatic events involving him occurred when he was agent at Porter. Coxey's Army was marching on Washington. A band of 75 Coxeyites attempted to interfere with the operation of a train that was already having difficulty in moving because of the historic Pullman strike then in progress. Shearer, towering above the crowd and armed with two axes, backed himself against the side of the cars and successfully dared the crowd to halt the train.

Mr. Shearer plans to make his winter home at Fort Myers, Florida, but will spend his summers on Otsego Lake in Northern Michigan, as he has done for the past 20 years.

Plays College Football

Robert Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis and a former star gridster, for the local high school, is a main prospect for the position of fullback on the freshman squad at Butler University this year. He is receiving considerable attention from the Butler coaching staff as a first rate prospect for the varsity next year. While in the regular army at Fort Benjamin Harrison Ellis was an outstanding player on the post team, playing quarter back position three years and officiating as team captain two years. He weighs 175 pounds, will be heavier, is very fast, an excellent passer and punter.

Miss Una Kelley went to Ann Arbor Monday to arrange to enter the University of Michigan for her second year. She was accompanied by Miss Margaret Whitman, Mrs. Josephine Kelley, Mrs. F. F. Rinkler and Mrs. M. Siraganian.

M. C. Head Was Native Galien

Henry Shearer to Resign As Vice-Pres., Gen. Mgr. On October 1

Local Michigan Central employees are speculating who will succeed Henry Shearer, Vice-President and General Manager, whose resignation, effective Oct. 1, was announced in Detroit Sunday. Appointment of the new directing head of the railroad is expected to be given out in New York shortly.

Resignation of Henry Shearer from the Michigan Central marks the passing of one of America's best known railroad operating men and the dean of Michigan railroad managers. To many he represents the link between a past era of railroading and the one that he himself helped inaugurate.

A giant of a man, standing 6 feet, 5 inches, with tremendous vigor and driving energy, Vice-President Shearer placed his stamp on American railroading and particularly on that portion of the industry in Michigan though the Michigan Central is the only railroad on which he ever worked. He entered its service 45 years ago.

Henry Shearer is a native son of Michigan. He was born in Gallen, Michigan, March 1, 1888. After a high school education he entered the railroad service on June 6, 1892, as a bill clerk at Matteson, Illinois. Successively he was agent at Porter, Indiana, 1893-95; agent, Chicago Heights, Illinois, 1895-98; agent, Michigan City, Ind. 1898-99; traveling freight agent, Chicago, 1899-1900; Chief Clerk, General Freight Department, Chicago, 1900-02; agent, Jackson, Michigan, 1902; Chief Clerk to General Manager, Detroit, 1903-09; Division Supt., St. Thomas, Ont., 1909-12; Assistant to General Manager 1912-13; Assistant General Supt., 1913-16; General Superintendent 1916-20; General Manager, 1920-26; Assistant Vice-President and General Manager, 1926-30; Vice-President and General Manager since 1930.

Majority Far Exceeds Required Three-Fifths; WPA Grant Remains in Doubt

The proposition of bonding the city $35,000 as part payment of the cost of installing a sewage disposal plant was endorsed at the special election here Tuesday by a vote of 137 to 24, only 161 out of a total of about 1200 taxpayers voting.

The vote of the two precinct was: Precinct 1—yes 65; no 11. Precinct 2—yes 72; no 13.

A majority of three-fifths of the vote cast, or 96, was necessary to endorse, but this requirement was exceeded by 41 votes.

ROUND ABOUT BUCHANAN

Century-Old Certificate

Canvassing through some old papers recently M. P. Snyder made an interesting find in the form of marriage license issued to his grandfather, Minor Buell, by Justice of the peace of Ontario Co., New York, on Nov. 24, 1833. The certificate was in a small box lined with a legal paper well over a century old, with old style printing script dating well back toward the beginning of the last century. He also found a deed issued in 1857 to the same Minor Buell for his farm in Calhoun county, Michigan. He has a couch seat used for many years on this farm as a dinner horn.

The meet was under the auspices of the Twin City Black Aces Motorcycle club, of which Mallinger and Charles Wesner of this city are members. Crack riders of Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois competed.

AN INTELLIGENT SELF-INTEREST

There is no force greater than intelligent self-interest and it is to be hoped that this force makes itself felt in the efforts of the Automotive Safety Foundation to make the highways of America safer.

The foundation was organized June 2, 1937, practically all the leading automobile, bus and truck manufacturers of America as members. Included among the member concerns is the Clark Equipment company. The immediate motive for the organization of the Foundation was a realization on the part of these companies that the mounting casualty lists from motor accidents are already a menace to their business, as the more cautious are not only refraining from the use of cars but are actually not buying cars. Automobile makers feel that this attitude will grow unless in some way the highway toll can be checked.

The Foundation has not formulated any distinct program of its own but is dedicating its funds and influence to support the efforts of national organization whose records over a long period of years have proven effective in supporting the work of public officials.

Answers To Banking Questions

Can a Non-Depositor Borrow Money from Our Bank?

We are glad to have loan applications from non-depositors. Naturally, our first consideration is to take care of the credit requirements of our own customers. We feel that we owe them this consideration and they, of course, through their dealings with us, have usually established their credit standing.

But a non-depositor need not feel himself barred. If his reputation for integrity and honesty is established, if his credit standing is such to justify a loan of the amount which he needs, this bank will be glad to consider the application. We welcome the opportunity to employ our loanable funds for sound purposes under conditions which will help the borrower and the community, and safeguard the deposits entrusted to our care. —American Bankers Assn.

Mrs. Emma Knight and Miss Mattie Smith received notice last week of the death of their brother, Wilbur W. Smith, who expired at his home in Ontario, Calif., where he had lived since 1886.

Editorial

By John Fuiks

Have you ever seen a play presented in our high school auditorium, or better still have you ever been in one? If you have you will agree with me on what should be done to improve our stage and dressing room facilities.

Primarily, the stage is too small. At present, flats must be stored in a place where they are easily damaged. There isn't room backstage for the actors and stage hands to pass from right off stage or to left off stage. A stage hand once awkwardly stumbled into one of the drops during a heavy love scene. The audience roared as his form was seen as a bulge in a "thick stone wall."

This could be averted by simply removing the partitions forming both dressing rooms on the sides and deepening the stage ten feet, thus adding approximately twenty feet more working room on the sides and ten more feet back of the set. This would also solve the problem of a space to store flats, props, doors, etc. safely against the wall.

However, this leaves us without dressing rooms. The logical location of dressing rooms is under the stage floor. There is a semi-excavated space already accessible under the stage. This could be utilized as a storage space and provide for approximately four dressing rooms. With an entrance to the orchestra pit from the dressing rooms, the storage space could be used for the storage of the band instruments.

On the night of the production the orchestra could file up from the sub-stage chambers in an orderly manner. That would end the necessity of filing in one by one down the main aisle and repeating over and over again the operation of making the early orchestra members stand to let others pass beyond to their seats.

I might add that we need a more satisfactory enclosed switch board, new rheostats, dimmer, flood and spot lights, plugs at convenient intervals on the stage floor, better doors that won't fall onto the stage when they are slammed, more furniture (know that we may assume we have a place to store it), double faced flats, and safe ropes for the drops and headlights.

The way this can be accomplished financially is either for the school board to spend some of the funds for the betterment of our stage, or to let a certain per cent be deducted from the gross receipts of a play and be donated to a stage fund. The faculty club has instituted a stage fund with an appropriation of $50.

Remember that we are a class B school. If a certain per cent of the proceeds from the athletic games is deducted from the purchase of new equipment each year, certainly the same system could be employed for the improvement of the stage.

How about it, school board, and student body? Let's really get behind this fund and have better stage facilities in our school than has any other school for miles around.

G. A. A. Meeting

The first meeting of the Girls' Athletic Association was held after school on September twenty-first. The meeting was held for the purpose of electing officers and giving out assignments as to football games. As most of the students know, the girls in the Athletic Association sell candy at the football games. One girl was placed at the head to take care of the candy. Each person who takes care of the candy has four assistants. The girls have considered wearing white sweaters and skirts as uniforms.

The meeting was to be held on Monday of each week. The officers are as follows: President, Shirley Trapp; Business Manager, Caroline Webb; Secretary, Marguerite Hass; Hiking Master, Martha Trapp.

MR. HANLIN TO SPEAK IN BATTLE CREEK

A conference of city superintendents was to be held at the Kellogg Hotel at Battle Creek, Michigan, September 23-24-25. The president presiding was Carl Horn. The evening program on which Mr. Hanlin spoke was as follows: Music—"Wolverine Four," from Grand Rapids.

"Musings of a Board Member"—M. L. Hanlin, President of Buchanan Board of Education. Address—"How Shall We Educate?" by Doctor Ernest Melby, Dean of School Education at Northwestern University.

B. H. S. Students Reach Total 323

Many New Students Appear from Other Communities

Of the 1,080 students enrolled in the Buchanan public school system, 483 are in the Junior and Senior High School.

They are according to grade as follows: Seventh grade, 81; eighth grade, 79; ninth grade, 92; tenth grade, 79; eleventh grade, 81; twelfth grade, 71. That makes 160 in the junior department and 323 in the senior.

There are quite a number of new students in school this year. For many of the freshmen it is their first year in Buchanan. Some came from nearby rural districts while others come to us from other cities and states. They number 37 in all.

Richard Austin, Disco Clark, Mary Garoutte, Etoile Ross, Ethel Crites, Roberta Davis and Jean Synold.

From the freshman list: Paul Bennett, Anna Emsing, Dale Hanover, Kenneth Hermann, Lawrence Jackson, Kathryn Koenigshof, Jeanette Miele, Herbert Rough, Margaret Russell, Steve Skovera, Ruth Snowert, Hermina Sult, Mary Jane Taylor, Richard Tumbleson, Sydney Yazell, Patricia Dellinger, I. C. Ernest, Jean Housman, James Hermann, Fred Ketchum, Marjorie Meuleman, Reva Place, Raymond Rough, Theodore Siekman, Betty Lou Smith, Eleanor Starr, Herbert Swartz, Hugh Thompson, Virginia Van Antwerp, and Robert Meuleman.

F. F. A. News

The first annual F. F. A. meeting was held September 20. Due to the officers being absent Mr. Langer called the meeting to order and the members proceeded with the business of the day without any formalities. The new business was the question of how to raise funds. Several plans were suggested. The one favored was the possibility of entering individual exhibits at the Benton Harbor Fruit Festival to be held October 2 and 3. It was decided that each member was to enter his fruit as an individual entry, and also to enter as many plates of apples, pears, peaches, or grapes as he had access to. All prize money is to be added to the F. F. A. fund.

An initiation committee was appointed to take charge of bringing new members into the club. The committee is composed of: Ivan Price, Sam McCormick, and "Bud" Dalenbourg. It was also decided to have two night meetings per month on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month when all the F. F. A. members will be in attendance. It was voted to have only Junior and Senior F. F. A. boys in the Home Room for two reasons. First, there is not enough room for fifty boys, and second, this will give more prestige to older members.

Freshmen and Sophomores will be called to the Home Room in case of a special meeting. All thirty-two prospective members were voted upon and accepted into the club.

The club is actually going out to sponsor things this year. If you have any suggestions, let us know for we are "raring to go."

The meeting closed in an informal manner, but in our future evening meetings will be formal.

Secretary, Joe March.

THE LATIN CLUB

The Latin Club was organized Friday the 16th. The officers that were elected are:

Consul, Lester Hanover; pro-consul, Dick Hayden; scribe, Bill Ednie.

The first meeting of the year was held Monday the twentieth. Miss Virginia Arnold and Miss Mary Garoutte were in charge assisted by Mrs. Weaver. The topic discussed was the "Pontine Marshes of Italy and Their Reclamation."

JR. HIGH VAMPS

Did you know that a couple of prominent members of the senior class were badly disappointed during the second hour study hall? The embarrassing experience came as the result of being snubbed by two junior high school vamps. It happened in study hall when the girls informed the senior boys that they considered themselves too young to go with upper class men. Wow! Were two faces red!

B. H. S. Grid 11 Promising

Coach Miller gave the first call for football practice September first. Twenty-five able-bodied men reported to the first call. This number increased to forty-six since the school started.

The boys tip the scales all the way from 127 to 170 pounds. The team will be made up of mostly seniors: Donley, Smith, Stevens, Trapp, Jerue, Bainton, Weaver, Beck, Price, Dairymple, and Lyons. The juniors: Lietter, Sult, Simpson, Morris, Stoner, and Ingelright.

With ten letter men returning: Donley, Lietter, Simpson, Beck, Jerue, Weaver, Trapp, Bainton, Stevens, and Smith, Buchanan's 1937 football squad will be something to watch. The backfield should have plenty of drive. The line will cause plenty of trouble for the opposition's offense. The boys are working hard in preparation for their first test with Watervliet at that city, September twenty-fourth.

Coach Langer has been sending his yearlings through grass drills and also scrimmages against Coach Miller's first string.

All the team asks is some real loyal support from the student and townspeople and they will do the rest.

Season tickets for the students are only 75c and $1.10 for adults. Let's get behind the team and do our part in making this our most successful year.

Band Leader Is on Invalid List

School started this fall without one of the favorite teachers, Mr. Robinson. It was his ill luck to be in an auto accident a few weeks before school started. He received a broken bone in his foot and other minor injuries. At the time of the accident Mr. Robinson was taken to the Niles hospital for treatment and remained there until September seventh when he was brought to his home in Buchanan. He has had many visitors. He will have to go around several weeks on crutches before he will be able to walk.

Mrs. John Miller has taken Mr. Robinson's place as music teacher. She is having the pupils practice marching so that they will be in good marching shape to play at our first football game.

Of all the clubs and organizations in the school it is said that the band is the peepiest, for which I think most of the credit goes to Mr. Robinson.

Books Wanted

WANTED:—A few U. S. History Books, "American People," by Muzzey.

Mrs. Whitman, the history teacher, has put in a request for more of the history books called "American People," by Muzzey. Why not look around, you alumni students? Maybe you have one for sale or will be willing to rent it. If so, please see Mrs. Whitman or Mrs. Batchelor in Mr. Stark's office.

These books will not be used next year, so if you have one and you are saving it for a younger brother or sister, please don't, because they won't be able to use them next year.

Thank you,
The Management.

Grade News

The pupils of Miss Carnagan's room are studying the poem, "The Grasshopper." It has opened up the interesting subject of grasshoppers, and specimens are being brought to class so that their curious structure may be examined. Nature study and language are being correlated and poems memorized.

Miss Connell's group is enjoying the study and discussion of how plants and animals prepare for winter. The pupils will begin their Elson pre-primer and keep an account of what they read by means of a chart kept on the wall in the room.

"The mighty oak from little acorns grow." Will the acorns of the second grade planted, under the direction of Mrs. Heim, become oaks and then mighty oaks? After studying and talking about "the acorn" in nature study the class planted acorns and will watch their development during the winter months.

Regional maps were made in preparation for the study of the United States last week by mem-

"Circus Boy," the story of a boy in the circus is being read by Miss Ekstrom to her fifth grade. As preliminary work before the study of the United States, Miss Ekstrom's room is studying the natural regions. Last week the pupils brought into the room the caterpillars, the adults of which develop into the imperial moths and the striped sphinx.

The British Isles is the subject on interest in Miss Ream's sixth grade geography class.

Did you ever play store when you were small? If so, you will be able to understand the enjoyment Miss Quicke's third grade group receive by making a store during arithmetic class. The children have become storekeepers, clerks, and customers. They are learning to count change and also learning to be polite in dealing with others. Some day they may be a great clerk, storekeeper, or perhaps, even a banker. Be on the watch for the children in fifteen years from now.

The eighth grade has been studying decimals and per cents in relationship to increases and decreases.

Studying the fisheries, forests, mines, cities, and possessions of Japan has been the work of the seventh grade geography classes.

The English 7 department has been drilling on paragraphing and sentence structure. They have speech drills and talks on various subjects.

A general review of grammar, including direct objects and predicate nominatives, has been the work of the English 8 classes. They write a theme each week. This week's subject is "Personal Experiences."

The Senior Class Meeting
The Senior class held their first meeting of the year Wednesday in Mrs. Dunbar's home-room. The officers are as follows: president, Dale Lyons; vice president, Shirley Trapp; treasurer, Earl Stevens; secretary, Mildred Miller.

In discussing business the issue of parties was brought up. It was agreed upon that we should have a party to start off the new school year. President Dale elected Jerry White as chairman of a committee of his own selection to make arrangements for the party.

Junior Class Holds Meeting
The Junior class of the Buchanan High School held a meeting Thursday, September 16, during the home room period. This meeting was for the election of class officers and class advisor for the year. Mr. Moore acted as chairman until the new president was elected. Then the new president continued through the procedure of the meeting.

The officers ran as follows: Martha Trapp, president; Robert Wesner, vice-president; and Rex Proud, secretary and treasurer.

Miss Krebs was elected as the Junior class advisor for the year. Friday, September 12, the Juniors had another class meeting. Mr. Moore took charge of the meeting since he had a plan for the Juniors to make some money. His plan was for them to sell football tickets. The majority were in favor of it. Tickets will be on sale all this week September 21 to September 24.

Girls' School Fashions
So far the fads this year have not changed much from the school fashions last year. Skirts, blouses, and sport shoes are still the old stand-bys for girls. The majority of them are wearing fall clothes, but there are some print dresses or a pair of white shoes still being worn especially since the weather became mild. The girls have many different ways of fixing their hair. Some have their hair curled, some waved, some just combed back plain, and others have just naturally straight hair. It seems that most of the girls are wearing their smart and attractive print dresses before the snow flies. I think they're wise, don't you?

Have You Noticed——that Herbert Russell is making a big hit with a certain freshman girl?
—that the Juniors have had two consecutive class meetings? That's because the president and vice-president are well acquainted.
—that Matthew Rauch and John Schultz have been going to Niles recently?
—that we have a new drum major?
—that Warren Virgil goes for loud colors—a red shirt?
—that we have two powerful salesmen in school Leland George and Delos Watson?
—that Herbert Russell has a "shiner"?
—that there are several very attractive Freshmen girls?

"MORE TOMORROW"

There's a deep, dark secret which manifests its presence thru printed stickers found throughout our high school. They peer at us from everywhere; from the lockers, books, doors, fire extinguishers, from each step of the stairs, in fact we're beginning to see them in our dreams.

"You'll see more of me" was the first cryptic message which greeted the students and teachers on Tuesday, September 28. "Are you getting curious? More tomorrow" came Wednesday's message, deepening the mystery.

John Fuiks and Earl Stevens are the fellows primarily responsible for all this "much ado about something." Inquiries about the affair received this response. There'll be another set of stickers tomorrow, and off they walk, chuckling to themselves. But we suppose we'll simply have to wait and see what it's all about.

Shop Rearranged

The shop has been rearranged. Now it has a new dust proof finishing room which is used only for varnishing or painting a project. The old finishing room was made into a stock and tool room. The tool check system is again in use this year as in former years. Your name is written down and you are responsible for the implement. The students have their choice of various metals. The kinds of metals in use are sheet metal, art metal, bend metal, and machine metal. Besides these projects you may take up a wood project. In order to work well with wood a person needs a jig-saw. The use of the jig-saw is to cut sharp curves. Mr. Miller has been trying hard to get a jig-saw. In addition to the metal and wood project that is offered a concrete project is also available. All students are expected to complete four units a year.

Classroom News

What delicious odors come from the domestic science department! Tomatoes and peaches have been canned by the open-kettle method in the 8th grade section. The ninth grade girls used the cold-pack method for canning, and they have also some pretty jars of jelly on the shelves. The special home economic class which is made up of tenth grade girls is studying the home. This unit covers the different styles, types of homes, and the good line of a home. Good manners, how to conduct one's self in public, and the proper form of introduction must not be neglected as a part of a person's education. The home economics class for boys is busy on this unit. The 7th grade girls are learning to operate the sewing machine.

The ninth grade algebra class of Mr. Carter's is studying formulas.

The sophomores are studying outlining while the speech class is studying the day's informal conversation.

NOW MOVIE SERIAL

As a special added attraction with no advance in prices, Universal's "Jungle Jim" opens at the Hollywood Theater, beginning next Friday.

All of the mystery, intrigue and adventure for which Africa is famous has been embodied in this screen version of Alex Raymond's widely-read newspaper feature strip. It is Raymond's best strip. Millions follow the adventures of "Jungle Jim" in the newspapers and on the radio.

Through the story runs an absorbing plot centering about a white girl who, raised in the jungle, is worshipped by the natives as a goddess because of her extraordinary power to rule lions. The title role of "Jungle Jim" is played by the star, Grant Withers.

Opposite him as Joan, the Lion Goddess, is talented Betty Jane Rhodes.

RANGE ROMANCE

With most of the action taking place in the open rangeland, scenes for George O'Brien's new RKO Radio western, "Hollywood Cowboy," a George A. Hirliman Production, were filmed in the vicinity of Lone Pine in the High Sierras. Here a rugged valley nestling beneath the awe-inspiring snow-capped mountains provides the background for much of the action and serves to enrich the film scenically.

MUSICAL EXTRAVAGANZA

Hollywood's newest stars, Robert Taylor and Eleanor Powell, are teamed again in the musical extravaganza, "Broadway Melody of 1938" which is booked at the Hollywood Theatre for a three day showing starting Sunday.

Both sing and dance as well as act in the new musical which is said to surpass both "Born to Dance" and "The Great Ziegfeld." The supporting cast gathered from stage, screen and radio includes George Murphy, Binnie Barnes, Buddy Ebsen, Sophie Tucker, Judy Garland, Charles Gorin, Raymond Walburn, Robert Benchley, Willie Howard, Charles Grapewin and Robert Wildhack.

NEW CHILD STAR

Four-year-old KITTIE CLANCY, a dimpled, curl-haired blonde, makes her film debut in "Midnight Madonna," the gripping story of mother love which opens on Wednesday at the Hollywood Theatre. Little Kittie is the center of a bitter court battle fought for her custody by her parents, Mady Correll and Robert Baldwin, when she is made heiress of a large estate by an eccentric grandparent. The cast is headed by Warren William.

SUPER COMEDY HIT

Alluring Constance Bennett is coupled with handsome Cary Grant to form the co-starring sweethearts who pursue a madcap series of hilarious adventures in the new Hal Roach feature comedy, "Topper," opening Wednesday. Roland Young has the title role in the uproarious new picture, based on Thorne Smith's widely-read novel.

Attends Meeting

Dist. Postmasters

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Haslett, who is director of the postmasters of the Fourth Congressional District, met Wednesday evening of last week at the Hotel Elliott, Sturgis, for a banquet and program, the speaker being the Honorable Harrison Parkman, a representative of the federal department. Postmasters and their wives to the number of 76 were in attendance.

This Is Her Story;

She Sticks To It

Mrs. Ellis Wilsey of the Wilsey Home Grocery, 101 E. 4th street, had an unpleasant experience last week when a great tarantula stepped on her hand while she was trimming the last bananas from a stem. Unlike most women Mrs. Wilsey did not scream or utter a sound, but dashed him off with a quick motion of her hand. A carpenter working at the store came to her rescue and killed the tarantula, which measured 4½ inches across.

Sr. Farm Bureau

Meets, Organizes

The Buchanan Senior Farm Bureau met last night at the Buchanan Co-ops, Inc. headquarters for the first meeting of the season, with the selection of a slate of candidates to be elected at the next meeting as the main business. Clarence Cripe was in charge. The organization meets monthly, its main business being to keep track of state and national legislative trends.

Farmer-Merchant

Fair Twin Cities

Invitational souvenir programs of Farmers-Merchants Day event to be held on the Fruit Market Saturday, October, are being prepared and will be mailed to 5,500 growers in the area by September 27. This gala affair is absolutely free, and it is desired that every farmer in Berrien and adjoining counties attend and bring his entire family.

Announcement was made by the Benton Harbor Lions Club, sponsors of the get-together, which will be the first of its kind to be held in the twin cities. There will be prizes for all.

Farmers-Merchants day will begin early in the morning and will extend throughout the daylight hours. An elaborate program of events is being arranged. There will be unlimited space since there is no market on Saturdays.

One of the features will be an old-fashioned ox-roast, and there will be contests throughout the day. The program is being designed by Lions so that every member of the family may share in the fun. For instance, women may enter contests in husband calling, spike driving, rolling pin throwing, clothes line or balloon races. There will be foot races for children besides a pie eating contest. A greased pig contest is also in the program committee's bag of tricks for the children.

A busy day has been arranged for the men. There will be a horse pulling contest with the best teams represented from the area served by the fruit market. Growers long have wanted to outdo buyers on a few things, and a tug-of-war between the two elements that make a market has been arranged. Buyers have lined up an anchor man, and growers are in quest of some 300 pounder for their side. The ever-popular horseshoe pitching and fat man's race are listed as is a hog calling contest and a contest between tractor.

Paul Price is general chairman of Farmers-Merchants Day, and is assisted by the Market Master, Roscoe Krieger, newly initiated into the Lions Club. The executive committee is composed of Neil Juffermans, Karl Zick, Lewis Lawrence, and Howard Galehouse. Don Reagan has charge of advertising, and the other committee heads are Earl DeGroot, publicity; Sheldon Reed, food; Walter Hornack, contests.

There will be music, displays, food and ample entertainment throughout the entire day, Lions' leaders declare.

Tightwadling Trough Europe

I came to the postoffice, across the street from a great church. But the postoffice was closed of a Saturday afternoon tighter than the Buchanan postoffice (wonder if that's where Glenn got the idea). I wanted to write a letter, if I could get a stamp. But the great doors were locked with a great barred grill in front. I looked through the bars into the gloomy interior to see if I could see Harold Mann stirring about. But there was nothing doing there and I climbed the steps into a little cafe and sank into a chair at one of the little tables which prevail there. A woman came to wait on me. I tried a little Swedish. I had managed to get it across in Gothenberg restaurant, but while the Norwegians understand Swedish, their dialect is much different, resembling the Danish. Anyway the waitress did not take great pains to find out what I wanted. All she gave me was an uncomprehending look and a gesture of contemptuous dismissal as she turned her back and went to wait on more understandable customers. Of course she might have misunderstood what I said. You have to be careful with strange languages.

Twice in Oslo I had the waitress walk off and leave me with none too mannerly gestures. But I warily picked up my luggage and hitched on up the street. I tried a somewhat larger restaurant with the idea they might know English. But there was a head waiter at the door and he looked at my luggage and held up his hand with an eloquent gesture indicating I could not come in. I had a strong temptation to tell him in good South Chicago American what I thought of his footy dump, knowing he would not understand it anyway.

But I got the impression that Oslo was a haughty and aloof capital city that made no attempt to conciliate strangers or to bid for their return. I suppose also that it irked them to hear their native tongue grossly manhandled. Anyway there was a tight-wadler plodding along Carl Johan's Gatan that night who was ready to sell Norway short. Failing to find a satisfactory hotel, I hit on a device which I frequently used thereafter—I asked a cop. At last I found service and courtesy. He knew English and he directed me to a good moderate priced hotel. For 5½ crowns (1.48½) I got a satisfactory room in the Regina hotel, two blocks to the left of Carl Johan's Gatan. It was the highest price I paid in Europe.

My luggage disposed of and my appearance slightly improved, I started out to try my luck with the cafes, again. I stopped in one of the little sidewalk cafes, common in Scandinavian countries in the summer and perhaps modeled after the famous Paris cafes. Making nothing out of the menu, I finally asked for the one item that has the same name in all countries—coffee. Rather kaffee. The waiter brought on a pot holding about two and a half cups of strong black coffee and a plate of cookies. Such a thing as drinking without eating is unheard of in a Scandinavian cafe, except in some of the more modern ones in Stockholm where they cater to Americans. The coffee and cookies cost me 60 ore or about 16 cents. The Scandinavian unit corresponding to the dollar is the crown, worth about 27 cents and divided into 100 ore.

I went back to the hotel and to bed under a sort of feather mattress for a soverlid.

Next morning I arose fairly early and started out to hunt up a restaurant. I walked and walked but there was none open in the great Norwegian capitol claiming 350,000 population. Not a restaurant, not a cafe, not a luncheon. I did not know then that travelers were supposed to get their breakfast in their hotels on Sunday morning. Finally, about nine o'clock I found a little basement cafe open. Descending I found a proprietress that talked good English with an American twang. There were the usual little tables with light chairs around them, the usual counter at the end loaded with sandwiches that seem to be the Norwegians idea of food. I found out later that you could pick out some delicious items among those Norwegians sandwiches, but to a hungry American yearning for his native fleshpots the sight of a sandwich for breakfast seemed like an insult.

But the American-talking woman was more approachable than the other waitresses had been. Asked if she could rake up some bacon and eggs, she answered: "I guess I can fix some for you."

Finally here came bacon, eggs, potatoes, bread and coffee for 75 ore (20.25 cents). I ate them and blessed her unawares. Twice afterward I treaded the narrow streets of the vicinity to find that basement cafe without success.

Luck or lack of luck in eating is very likely to prejudice the stranger who is making a rather sketchy trip without time to fully find his way. I talked with other tourists who were very prone to evaluate cities by their luck in hotels and cafes. "You must not miss Copenhagen," said an American woman, "we found the dearest cafe there within two blocks of the depot, where you can get all you want to eat for a crown. It's the Viking Cafe, and they served us a half a chicken, apple and the rest of the meal for a crown. It's the finest city. No we didn't like Oslo at all. They feed you sandwiches for breakfast. Ugh!"

Coming back to these Norwegian sandwiches, I really got better acquainted with them and did very well in the friendly little railway cafes along up through Norway. They are really not sandwiches but one slice of bread with various concoctions on top, including eggs, fish, slices of tomato and various meats and vegetables. A sort of half sandwich, half salad. One of the first I tried was of pickled fish and it gave me an uncomfortable evening. Back in the country I did better.

About noon the cafes leisurely opened and served the one meal that looked like a meal to American eyes, the "middag." If I remember correctly they have nothing quite like the smorgasbord of Sweden to start the meal. I got mine, however, in a short order way in an open air cafe on a rocky promontory overlooking the fjord.

It was a rare sunny day, and the waters of the fjord were dotted thick with launches and whitesailed yachts. Moored to the piers were the vessels of many nations. Little ferry steamers chugged back and forth to the nearby resorts. The diners sat under gaily colored parasols, part of the cafe fixtures and most of them quaffed beer or wines. In the center was a platform (no dancing that day) and from a loud speaker came in plaintive baritone a beautiful Norland ballad. The sparrows (or sparrowlike birds) hopped about between and over the feet of the customers picking up crumbs.

I ate my order and got the bill. It was about a third more than the list price, on account of a service charge, a sales tax and another tax I could not understand. However, even that could not dim the memory of white sails on the blue fjord, set about with encircling hills and a Norland ballad floating over the water.

The chemistry class under Claude Carter is studying the atomic, molecular, and nuclear structure and the uses of oxygen. Oxygen is most easily prepared through the heating of potassium chlorate catalyzed by manganese dioxide, but since this method is expensive oxygen is prepared commercially for hospitals and industrial processes by the electrolysis of water and liquefactions and fractional distillation of air twice as much hydrogen as oxygen, which can be utilized for the inflation of lighter than air craft.

The senior creative writing class is running along quite smoothly under the supervision of Mrs. Dunbar. The tri-weekly major productions were submitted Wednesday, September 22, and some were quite a painfully prepared product. Who knows but that we may produce another Eugene O'Neill. The uses of formulas, also the expression of statements in algebraic language, are being studied by Mr. Hyink's ninth grade algebra class. The history of measurements and the practical accuracy used in measurements is being studied by the general mathematics class of Mr. Hyink.

Library Assoc. Is Organized

Elects Officers to Aid in Library Promotion in Coming Year

The Buchanan library project should be ready to serve the public early in the winter, in the opinion of the members of the Buchanan Library Association, which met at the city hall and organized on a permanent basis to aid in pushing the project for the coming year at least.

The Association has no official control, which is to be vested instead in a library board to be appointed by the city commission. The organization decided to remain active however, to assist in raising funds and securing books from outside sources. It now has $161 raised at the tag day last year. A number of organizations have pledged to donate magazine subscriptions.

It was the sense of the meeting that it would be best to attempt to open the reading room for public use about Nov. 1. By delaying opening that date the project will be made ready for the public at the beginning of the season when it will receive the greatest use, and the money now available will be sufficient to carry it for the remainder of the year.

Officers elected were: president, Walter C. Hawes; vice president, Mrs. Mack Widmoyer; secretary, Rev. Brunelle; treasurer, Mrs. Alice Ludwig. The next meeting will be held Friday evening, Oct. 8.

CHILDREN IN COURT

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield
A certain district learned to its regret recently that it was directly responsible for the dishonesty of several boys. This particular community had been the home of a notorious personage and on his escape from the penitentiary the entire neighborhood openly voiced its hope that the convict would be able to avoid the police.

As children live to mimic adults, it was only natural for the boys of the vicinity to adopt the gangster as their hero and model.
