Now Here's the Proposition

Wonder of the town is going to let Pete Fuller get away with that kind of statutory on his bird bath on West Front?

North Main street was out of water two days last week and Bill Miller never noticed it.

Our Nominee for Oblivion Those silly, overserious hicks Who wrangle over politics.

It's Just Their Poor Management It's queer how people wait to shop until so late, when in they flock And make the poor clerks fairly hop And work till after six o'clock.

If anything should interfere To keep them working overtime A loud and angry squawk you'd hear They'd say such business was a crime.

And yet each eve with thunderous din And armed with grocery orders long, The tramping host comes thundering And "wait on me" is all their song.

I think they loaf about the town Till evening time, then jam the stores In mobs that tramp the counters down And tear the hinges off the doors.

I wonder why they always wait? I'm sure they'd show more courtesy. If they would not come in so late—especially just ahead of me! By Hawes.

Trouble at the Neighbors Here in this world of scoops and beats of scareheads and of deadlines. Seems like the other fellow's grief is what makes up the headlines.

The public have to have their first—they just can't do without it, it is the stuff they like to read and lick their chops about it. A boy gone wrong, a girl amiss, another heartache broken, The blood that's hot; the teeth that's set; the word that's best unspoken—

A chance to read a mess of that and folks are just in clover— Lord, how they like to mull around and pick the bare bones over; But I for one would draw the line at spending all my labors in satisfying folks that gloat on trouble at the neighbors. I think that folks are much the same in every clime and land And not inclined to knife and gut if once they understand; What's the co-or or the creed or crime or nomenclature, I'll take my chance if change there is on simple human nature; It's guys behind with fish to fry that set them at each other, That send these beardless boys afield to bomb and gas each other;

The warlords plot behind the lines today—and will tomorrow, But all it means is that a girl eats out her heart in sorrow; For all this ugly business of bayonets and sabers, Is merely, when you boil it down, more trouble at the neighbors.

Mrs. Jack Treat and son, Jon, left Monday for Toledo to join Mr. Treat, after a visit of two months with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Thompson.

Ivan Hoag Is First User Here

Combines Successful in Grain Harvest Past Two Seasons

The progressive mechanization of general farming in the Buchanan district took another step forward this past week with the installation of a two-row picker at the Ivan Hoag farm on the Range line road, the first machine of the sort to be introduced in this district.

A large percentage of the local grain crop was harvested this year for the first time by combines that cut and threshed the grain in the field, owners of the machines doing contract cutting. The corn picker will pick from 15 to 18 acres a day, its performance being equivalent to that of from fifteen to eighteen men in good corn. The owner will harvest much of the corn in his district.

The theory has previously been held that in the case of both combines and corn pickers the field was restricted to the large scale farming of states further west. Corn pickers have been common for several years in states of the corn belt proper, such as Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska. Combines have been successful in this locality in grain harvest both this year and last, thus successfully meeting the test of both wet and dry seasons.

The Hoag picker is pulled by a tractor, which also hauls a wagon at the side of the picker to receive the corn. Since the corn is always sowed by a two row planter, the two row picker works with little waste. Its operation is another step in the solution of the farm labor problem which has been acute locally.

Boyce Resigns as Co. Bd. Member

His Oldest Son and Partner Harold Boyce, Named in His Place

Harry Boyce, representative from Buchanan on the county board of supervisors for the past eight years, tendered his resignation at the meeting of the city commission Monday night, and his son, Harold Boyce, was named as his successor for the unexpired term by Mayor Merson.

The senior Boyce had an outstanding record as a supervisor, and came much into notice during his earlier years on the board for his work in clearing up county abuses. He might have had almost any county office had he so aspired. However he stated that ill health and pressure of business duties required his retirement.

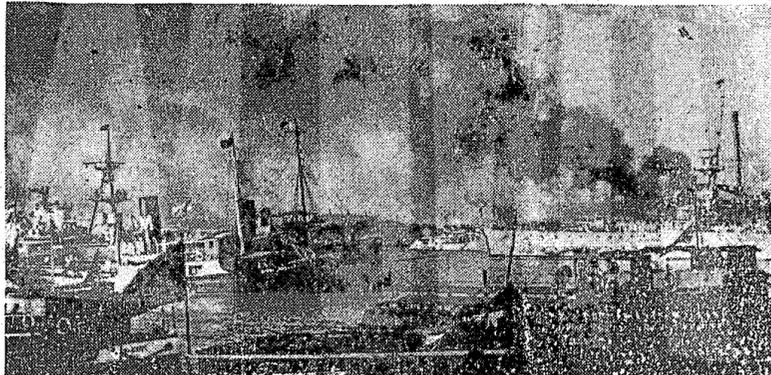

His successor, Harold Boyce, is his partner in the real estate business. He has already demonstrated administrative ability and qualities of leadership. He will benefit greatly by the experience and the advice of his father, and should be a capable successor. He will not be the youngest member of the board.

She was a member of the Royal Neighbors and the Eastern Star and of the Methodist church.

Chevrolet Sales Improves Plant

Alley Paved; Old Wagon Works Sections Modernized and Improved

Work was begun Tuesday by W. J. Miller on the installation of a concrete pavement 16 feet wide and 200 feet long in the alley off Main street between the Russell Chevrolet building and the old Rough Wagon Works building. This is part of extensive improvement and modernization by Chevrolet Sales, which owns the buildings immediately adjoining the alley on both sides. The Chevrolet sales owns the quarters occupied by the Nelson Transfer Company, from which one story was razed and a new roof installed. In addition the Sales company owns the rear of the old Rough Wagon Building, from which two stories were razed and a new roof installed.

The rear building is to be used as storage for used cars, a room 40x80 feet in dimension being fitted and heated by steam piping overhead across the alley from the new steam plant being installed in the basement of the main Chevrolet Sales building, with a capacity for heating 6,000 feet of floor space.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

By HAWES

CHAPTER VI What really impressed me the most about the dwellers in Oslo and in the rest of Norway as well as that of all the people I ever saw they are the walkingest walkers.

That was what hit my eye when I got off the train from Gothenberg—thongs and thongs of people, old and young, in hiker garb. It is the joy of the Norwegian city dweller of a summer Saturday to don khaki clothes, and heavy thick soled shoes that appear immense to American eyes, a knapsack with a steel frame that fits close to the back and hips, and thus accoutred to take a train to some convenient point of disembarkation, far back in the high hills and swing those heavy shoes around all day. In summer they are likely to take fishing tackle, in winter skis. It was in Norway, and Sweden that winter sports originated and they lead the world in such sports,—but I was there in June.

The populace I saw in the Oslo station that Saturday evening was mostly in hiking garb starting for some favorite place back in the beautiful Norwegian hills for a week-end of fishing or hiking. There were crews of girls and boys in hiking costume, there were groups of men; there were elderly couples. Age seems no bar. I was intrigued by those big shoes, and spent a half hour when I should have been hotel-hunting following them about. Were the Norwegian feet really as big as they looked or was it just the shoes? I took the matter up with the young lady clerk at the Regina hotel later and she said it was the shoes. If an American had a pair of shoes like that to carry, they would put them in a trailer and hitch it behind their car. The idea of wearing them even a couple of blocks they would think homicidal.

"Don't those shoes tire you out?" I asked her. "The very sight of them would tire out an American." "Those heavy shoes keep you from getting tired walking," she answered, "They support the feet. They would ruin your feet and kill you off to attempt to do any mountain hiking in light shoes."

The most romantic looking of the hikers were the Boy Scouts. Of all the Scout costumes I ever saw that of the Norwegian boy is the most picturesque. I wrote down a description of it in a notebook that disappeared in a session with the German police at the Belgium border. But I remember that it was of an olive green, with a cape that swung from one shoulder and a hat that sat jauntily over one side of the head. I saw girls dressed in some sort of colorful Scotch uniform.

In the past three years the bicycle craze has hit Sweden, but they still walk in Norway. I was struck by the scanty transportation facilities in the streets, and the street cars were few on the lines. Mostly the people swung along on foot—"swung along" is the word. I have always considered myself a fair walker, having done plenty of it, but it irked me in Norway and in Sweden as well to be anking briskly along a street and then watch some tall Scandinavian gal swing past me in effortless strides.

Of a Sunday afternoon I started out to do the points of interest about Oslo. First I asked a cop and he told me how to get to the city commission voted at the Monday meeting to have the fire whistle blown three times daily, at 6 a. m., noon and 6 p. m.

This decision was made as the result of the submission to the city board of two long petitions, one of which contained eight pages full of names of Clark Equipment employees who were especially anxious to have it blown at 6 a. m. The schedule was resumed yesterday morning.

Revive $1 Charge Delinquent Water

All city water taxes must definitely be paid on or before Friday, Oct. 8, according to instructions given to the water department by the city commission Monday evening. The water superintendent was instructed to start Oct. 9 in shutting off the water on delinquents. In addition the $1 charge for turning on the water again will be imposed after having been discontinued several years because of depression conditions.

E. B. Clark Is Making Recovery

E. B. Clark, who is under treatment for injuries at Epworth Hospital, South Bend, is reported to be entirely out of danger and progressing satisfactorily. He did not incur a skull fracture. He will probably be in the hospital two more weeks at least.

Bucks Too Strong For Cassopolis

Locals Score in Every Quarter With Speed and Variety Of Plays

Buchanan's "Fighting Bucks" trounced the Cassopolis High school football team Friday, October 1, 35-0. The game was at Cassopolis. Buchanan scored in every quarter, seven points in the first quarter and six in the second. In the last half they scored seven in the third quarter and doubled the score to twelve in the last quarter.

With the game only five plays old, Stevens registered the first touchdown of the game from the two yard line. Stevens returned the kickoff 35 yards, followed by Smith's 42-yard jaunt around end. Stevens made four, then Letter got loose for 16 yards and Stevens cummaged the 70-yard march with an air tackle play for the touchdown. Smith's kick for the extra point was good. Score: Buchanan 13, Cassopolis 0.

A forward lateral pass from Letter to Simpson to Smith netted the Bucks 24 yards and their second touchdown at the start of the second quarter. Smith missed the kick for extra point. Score: Buchanan 13, Cassopolis 0.

In the third period the Bucks, on a series of line plays, took the ball after the kickoff to the Cassopolis 30-yard line. Letter passed to Beck netting half the distance. Smith went around left end for 14 yards. Stevens, full-back, plunged over for the third touchdown. Smith's kick was good. Score: Buchanan 20, Cassopolis 0.

On an exchange of punts and then a blocked Cassopolis punt, Buchanan gained possession of the ball on their own 44 yard line. Three plays netted them 6 yards. Beck punted to Garner, Cassopolis' safety man who fumbled. The ball was recovered by Price, substitute end. From here a few line plays took the ball to the six-yard line. Buchanan was penalized 5 yards for offside and on the next play Letter dropped back and shot a pass to Smith, going into the end zone for the fourth touchdown. Smith missed kick. Score: Buchanan 26, Cassopolis 0.

The other touchdown of the last quarter was scored by Letter who plunged over from the three-yard line. Ehd runs and line bucks put the ball in scoring position of Letter to go over. Smith missed kick. Buchanan then substituted his reserves, who played most of the last half.

Vote to Resume Whistle Blowing

Wilcox Goes Out of Porcupine Business

Phay Wilcox has gone out of the porcupine business this week, having taken his porky out to the woods and returned him to a state of nature. Porcupines just don't fit into the tobacco and candy business according to Phay, who arrived at this decision one morning last week when he came down to the store and found Porky loose and making a nest among the candy bars in his show case.

Apples 10c Apiece

Apples may be fairly cheap in the Buchanan district in general but you used to think it was a hold-up when the fruit and candy butchers on the trains offered apples at 10 cents apiece, but that is what Charley Voorhees is getting at the Log Cabin Fruit farm this year. Anyway that is what he is getting for his three bushels from his Deacon Jones Delicious tree. These apples are of immense size, comparing with the Wolfe River in that respect, but they have all the flavor of the Delicious apples.

California Has New Peach Varieties

Revolutionizing of the peach production of California is predicted as a result of three new varieties just perfected after fifteen years of experimentation at Chaffey College farms. The new varieties are a yellow cling, a yellow freestone and a white freestone and were developed by George P. Weldon, horticulturist at the college, who fathered the Babcock peach which has created such a sensation in the fruit markets.

Because of the early leafing qualities developed in the new trees, it is predicted that peach production will be doubled in the state. Most of the peach producing area in southern and central California is converted desert and suffers from the wide fluctuation of day and night temperatures. With the new varieties developed by Weldon the setting fruit is protected both from light frost at night and the burning sun of mid-day.

Stores to Initiate Selling Campaign For Local Product

Buchanan orchardists moved this week into the harvest of a full share of Michigan's 13,000,000 bushel apple crop, outstanding in the history of the state.

The Michigan crop, amounting to eight bushels for every family in the state, will complete this year with a crop of 200,000,000 bushels for the whole country, which means that a lot of apples will be shipped into Michigan this year to compete with the local pack.

With a view to competing with the invading product, the Michigan Apple Institute, of which a number of local orchardists are members, has opened the first organized selling campaign in the history of the industry. The Institute, with headquarters in Bangor, is attempting to enroll all of the 10,000 commercial growers of the state. They state that it costs 35 cents to raise every bushel of apples. Associations and chains of stores have been enlisted and will soon be furnished with posters and window streamers featuring Jonathan, Delicious, Spies, McIntosh and other heavy producers in this section.

The following information on varieties was compiled recently by the Michigan Grocers Spotlight, a Detroit trade publication.

Wealthy's Now In One of the most popular apples, now in season, is the Wealthy. This is grown widely in Michigan. It is a good cooking apple and also fine for eating. Dealers should display Wealthy's with the poster illustrating them, and featuring the fact that they are Michigan grown.

Preceding the Wealthy, and now about gone, was the Duchess Apple, the first early apple, fine for pies and apple sauce. Next coming, are the McIntosh, one of the best eating apples, which are now appearing on the market. Their agreeable perfume and flavor, bright red color, and snow white flesh, make them popular.

Snow apples come about now, also, and these are favorites for eating,—their juicy white flesh being particularly liked by children. Wagners and Greenings follow, and are both good cooking apples. The Rhode Island Greening is now grown largely in this state, and for pies is excellent, as well as for baking.

Wolf River Apples Weigh a Pound Speaking of baking apples, there is that unique variety "Wolf River" which is now in season,—the great big apple that weighs about a pound a piece. Some of these are fourteen inches or more in circumference. They are ideal for baking, but pretty tart for eating. When Northern Spies begin to come, there you have the real favorite of the big majority. It's one of the finest all around apples grown anywhere,—wonderful for cooking and delicious to eat.

Baldwins are a cooking apple chiefly. They keep well and ship well.

The Michigan Delicious Apple, has become better known in recent years, and is now liked by many people better than the great big Delicious from the west coast. The Michigan variety is more solid and tasty, and very juicy. It is an eating apple exclusively, and should not be recommended for pies. Jonathan is another good refreshing eating apple, the snappy, crunchy kind, grown widely in the state, coming along later. The brilliant red skin, indistinctly striped with carmine and underlain with pale yellow, and the well turned shape, make it one of the most attractive apples. It is good until January or February if kept in cold storage.

America should have been Discovered in 1474

Christopher Columbus conceived the idea of a short route to India in 1474. But it was 18 years before he could get financial backing for his voyage. And his dreamed-of short passage never became a reality until 422 years later when the Panama Canal was opened in 1914.

America, in the 445 years since Columbus came, has voyaged many times through dark and stormy seas, with faith and courage ever envisioning new and shining shores ahead.

TOM STEARNS RESIGNS

In the September issue of "The Wheelbarrow," a mimeographed publication issued exclusively for the field workers of the Michigan division of the United States Department of Agriculture there is a note of appreciation for the services of T. C. Stearns of Buchanan one of the staff of unpaid crop reporters who had just resigned after forty years of service.

Tom Stearns, as he is better known to his many friends in this vicinity, has been reporting crops for the North Buchanan district it seems, for forty years. Regularly in the frank envelopes furnished by the Department of Agriculture he has been sending in conscientious estimates of local conditions, which when averaged up with those of hundreds and thousands of others, go to make up that composite picture on which the estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture are based.

When you read the national crop estimates on the business pages, or heard them in the noon Farm Home hour, you doubtless didn't see or hear anything of Tom Stearns in the report but he was there just as he had been since 1897. Since before somebody or other blew up the Maine in Havana Harbor. Since four years before the death of Queen Victoria. Since when Theodore Roosevelt was an unknown subordinate in the Navy Department. Since before the first commercial automobile rolled out of a Michigan factory. In fact, since quite a while ago.

No wonder the Department of Agriculture thanked him.

TIGHTWADDING THROUGH EUROPE

(Continued from page 1) various places—on foot of course. To get to the official part of the city you go directly on Carl Johan's Gaden—my wife says the Norwegian for street is "gadan"—up a long hill through a business section, over the crest of the hill past the Parliament buildings and down through a long hollow through which the street is flanked with a lovely park on one side, the national theatre on the other, and by a succession of public buildings, including museums and galleries. In front of the national theatre were statues of Norway's most famous writers—Henry Ibsen and Bjorn Bjornsen, and of the poet, Henry Wergeland. During the month of August this national theatre is devoted to the production of Ibsen and Bjornsen alone. Having given up the war business long years ago and practically disarmed, the Norwegian have devoted themselves to the cultivation of a different sort of patriotism and they have much to be proud of. During the past few decades Norway has produced a group of writers of world-wide reputation comparable to any group from any other nation. And this despite the fact that Norway has a population of about 2,500,000—about half that of Michigan.

But where was I when I got off on this track? I was hoofing it over Oslo's granite streets opposite the national theatre. It was a grand Sunday that day. They said in Sweden later that the Scandinavian countries had not had such a warm pleasant summer since 1901. There had been plentiful rain in spring and early summer and then as a sort of special concession in honor of my visit the weather turned off warm and dry and there were a long succession of brilliant sunny days. Like Craede "It was day all day in the daytime and there was no night in Oslo"—or very little anyway. In the park on Carl Johan's Gaden the bedded flowers were lush and gorgeous. The plants grew to great heights and the blooms were immense. What Norwegians had not gone out to the hills and sea shore the night before were apparently in the parks, swarming along the walks, basking on the benches.

Whether or not it was true, I got the notions that though the Norwegians had left behind their military past they are still strong on uniforms. In the capital city at least uniform were much more common than in Stockholm. Soldiers of the regular army wore a gray-green uniform and a cap, very plain, but the boys of the Royal Guard, whom you saw everywhere, wore snappy, uniform forms of dark blue trimmed in white.

I was looking particularly for the national museum and art gallery. Spelled out, the Scandinavian for national gallery looks very much like the English, only gallery is "Galleret." But saying it so a Norwegian will understand it is something else. At last I figured out that the more I bore down on the consonants and rolled the r's, the more likely I was to be understood. The sound of a rolling R in Norway is something never to be forgotten. It is like the echoes of thunder leaping from crag to crag in their loved hills. Anyway at last I was able to roll my r's enough to make a Norwegian understand that I wanted to see the gallery. Having made him understand I listened in silent wonder while he volleyed resounding consonants, and departed in the general direction in which he had waved his hands. I rather thought that he had pointed more particularly toward the majestic building at the top of the hill, so I set out for it.

As I approached I saw many soldiers of the King's Guard strutting back and forth in measured paces in front of it.

"These Norwegians sure set a lot of store by their pictures," I thought. But I noticed that the Norwegian civilians were giving the building a rather wide berth, and I thought best to inquire. In front of a sort of guard house there were several young guardsmen standing at ease, one even going through some mock military exercises with a broom for a gun. I asked one if he could speak English.

He shook his head smilingly and said something I could not understand, turning away. So I started to walk on toward the national gallery, but immediately he whirled and barked an order at me, pointing at the place I was standing on. I rather inferred from the gesture that I was supposed to stand there until he returned, so I did. He went into the guard house and returned with another young guardsman who asked in English what I wanted.

"Is that the national gallery?" I asked.

"That," he said, "is the palace of the king."

He pointed out the gallery, some distance back down the hill and opposite the University of Oslo, the national university. In this gallery I spent a couple of pleasant hours, looking at a wonderful collection of paintings representing a national art that reflects mainly the scenery and the life of the people of Norway.

I had been feeling a little low that morning, what with all the trouble with waitresses who misunderstood my English and the difficulty of living in a strange land. I had not smoked on the trip, another tight-wad measure, but it seemed that a smoke might relieve me, so I started to inquire into tobacco prices. American cigarettes were plentiful, I found, especially Lucky Strikes, Chesterfields and Camels. However they were from three to four times the price here. One of the three—I think it was Lucky Strikes—was 2.25 crowns or about 60 cents a package. The other two were 2 crowns, or 54 cents a package. At last I saw a small package, ten cigarettes, for 55 ore, which was more in a tight-wadder's reach. They were called "Teddies," English, I thought—No American would name a cigarette "Teddy." I knew the Norwegians learned English pronunciation and in general catered more to England than America.

But an advertisement of these cigarettes was decorated with a smiling picture of none other than Theodore Roosevelt the First, who was the namesake. I found that these cigarettes, and practically all cigarettes made on the continent, were much milder than the American makes, and much slower burning. This package of ten cost 55 ore, or between 14 and 15 cents. The price of all tobacco is high, because of very high government taxes. Cigars, so I was told, were particularly dear and mostly very bad. America made by far the best and the cheapest cigars, they told me. "Why I understand that in America you can buy a very good cigar for seven cents," said an Englishman. "Our cigars are rotten and so are your cigarettes. They are too strong and they burn up in no time." Since Norway is a county of low income, pipe smoking seems almost universal there.

I told him there were a couple of guys in the place where I worked who bought cigars for less than 7 cents, but I could not conscientiously approve the quality.

FARM NEWS

For years Iowa has sung to the world about its tall corn. Not only that, but it has proved its case. Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel of Iowa personally defeated Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin recently in a private contest, and Iowa triumphed over Illinois with a stalk 18 feet 5 1/2 inches tall. Now comes the amazing news from Arkansas that George Osborne, a tenant farmer of Siloam Springs, has grown a stalk measuring 19 feet 2 inches in height—on so-called sub-marginal land. Tillers of the fertile black gumbo soil of Iowa may exclaim, "Fertilizer!" and wonder "upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed that he is grown so great?"

Iowans may comfort themselves with the reflection that it is not height of stalk that counts but the size and number of ears, and in this Iowa still leads the states. Besides, when it comes to stalks, hasn't Mrs. Regina Jais grown in her penthouse garden at 1016 Fifth Avenue, New York City, corn that is seventeen stories high?

Late Fred Lee Was a Builder In Finance, Industry of Buchanan

Once Part Owner of Power Dam; Lee & Porter Axle; Lee Bros. Bank and Local Hotel

One of the builders of Buchanan passed with the recent death of Fred Lee at Dowagiac, although his connection with the local affairs is not so generally known by the current generation.

Lee was a partner with Henry Porter in the old Lee & Porter Axle works, which started the town upon the upgrade again after the slump of the woodworking industries in the eighties. Built not long after the construction of the power dam by Holmes & English, the Lee & Porter plant was an extensive manufacturer of buggy axles, employing as many as 250 men. The Beckwith estate, in which Lee was a main factor as the son-in-law of P. D. Beckwith, acquired power rights in the dam through a loan financing Holmes and English. When the latter firm failed the Beckwith estate foreclosed the mortgage and took over the dam. They had made use of their power rights by installing turbines in the river below the plant and transferring the power directly off the wheels to the plant.

In addition to these interests, Lee was associated with his brother, Henry, in the establishment of the Lee Bros. private bank in the quarters now occupied by the Root News Agency. This bank was later reorganized and became, with the inclusion of additional local stockholders, the Buchanan State Bank. The Lees also owned for a time the Hotel Rex building which was then known as the Hotel Lee.

At one time, according to Charles Pears, the Lees and the Beckwiths offered to establish the new Round Oak furnace industry here, when it was in its infancy, in consideration of a trade for several hundred horse power to be taken to Dowagiac from the local dam. However feeling was then strong against the use of any power generated at the local dam to points outside Buchanan, and popular sentiment was so strong the project was given up. However a committee of local men, including Mr. Pears, was sent to Dowagiac to treat with the Lees and Beckwiths. Thus near did Buchanan come being in on the ground floor of the furnace business.

Fred Lee began his business career in the drug business in partnership with his brother, Henry. Through marriage with Miss Kate Beckwith, daughter of P. D. Beckwith, he became an important figure in the manufacture of the Round Oak stove, which was invented and developed by his father-in-law, P. D. Beckwith. Lee was for many years the general manager of the plant and reputed very wealthy. Following the untimely death of a favorite daughter he turned a beautiful structure which he had built for her home into the Lee Memorial Hospital, which still is one of the outstanding hospitals of southwest Michigan.

His charitable activities were very extensive and he was universally popular not only in Dowagiac but in Buchanan several decades ago.

Howard Barbour Crashes Society

Howard Barbour is on the strut this week being a proud (no, not what you thought) owner of an aristocratic dog with a pedigree reaching all the way from here to there. Howard has always had aspirations to crash society but never made the grade until last week when Col. C. A. Carlisle of South Bend presented him with a fine pure bred wire haired terrier, with class sticking out in every hair. The dog is a well, the name is "Lady" so there may be more news later.

Mayor Appoints Library Board

Hope to Have Library; Reading Room Open by Early Winter

A library board to govern the reorganized and renovated city library was appointed at the city commission meeting Monday evening, Mayor Merson naming Fredrick Smith, W. H. Brunelle, Mary Reynolds and Walter Hawes.

The board plans to meet at some date this week to decide on preliminaries, and it is believed that the work of reorganization will be pushed in order to open the library and reading room in the present commission room about Nov. 1. The commission has authorized the use of the room, but not the removal of the book stacks there.

The Library Association will meet Friday evening at 8 p. m. at the city hall in order to formulate measures to collaborate with the library board in securing additional aid. The library board have at their disposal for all purposes an appropriation of $700 from the city and a fund of $161 raised by the association. A number of organizations have pledged aid in magazine subscriptions or in other ways.

Fur Should Be Outside The idea that a fur lining gives the greatest warmth to gloves or other garments has been exploded by scientific research, which found that it is warmer to wear the fur on the outside rather than on the inside, says a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Animals have their fur outside and get the maximum benefit from it. Likewise, fur garments are warmest, scientists say, when the leather hide is inside and the fur outside, exposed to the cold. Fur is a very poor conductor of heat, and thus does not permit the body heat to be dissipated in the cold air. Fur-lined gloves are warm, but with the fur outside they are warmer still.

Origin of Penny Postage Sir Rowland Hill (1795-1879) in 1837 published a pamphlet, "Post Office Reform," in which he advocated an adhesive postage stamp and a low and uniform rate between all places in the British Isles. In 1839 Hill was attached to the Treasury department for the purpose of putting his projected reforms into execution, and in the year, 1840, a uniform penny rate came into force.

Mr. Geyer, who was driving, went to turn around when the front wheels of the car went into a low place in the road. He turned on an extra amount of power to get the machine out of the rut, but when it got back into the road he failed to right it and it went over the embankment on the opposite side of the road, turning completely over and landing against a tree. Mrs. Geyer got out of the car while it was still in the rut and escaped injury. Mrs. Studebaker was badly scalded and was removed to Dr. Van Noppen's hospital where her injuries were dressed. Mrs. Butts was also scalded and one of her ankles was broken. She was taken to Dr. Henderson's office at Niles where he and Dr. Glidden reduced the fracture. SMART SHEER WOOL

The midseason dress problem when it is too warm to wear this and too cool to wear that need no longer set any woman into a worry and flurry for the answer has been found in the new sheer wools that are the very thing to don at the first hint of autumn's approach. Pictured is a stunning dress that will bridge from summer to fall perfectly. This distinctive tailored frock combines sheerest wool weave in attractive dusty rose coloring with chic accent of snowy pique. Pleated-in sleeves and an intriguing pleated skirt convey early style messages. Note the high crown in her smart fall felt. As the new season advances crowns keep going higher and higher.

Jobs Commission Form Mailed To Employers

Mich. Unemployment Compensation Due October 31, 1937, For a 9-Month Period.

Liability and contribution report forms covering payrolls for the first nine months of 1937 were mailed today by the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission to 35,000 employers throughout the state.

The liability report form (UC-9) must be filled out in detail and returned to the commission's offices in the Fox building, Detroit, by October 15.

The contribution report form (UC-10) must be returned to the commission by October 31 with the employer's two per cent contribution on all wages paid for subject employment during the first nine months of 1937.

"The two forms," said Frank A. Picard, commission chairman, "are being sent to all employers who have previously registered with the commission and had four or more employees in 1936."

Employers who are not registered with the commission should register at once. The commission's Detroit offices, at field offices and in the near future from city and county offices throughout Michigan. All of the commission's field representatives are prepared to assist employers in filling out the two forms.

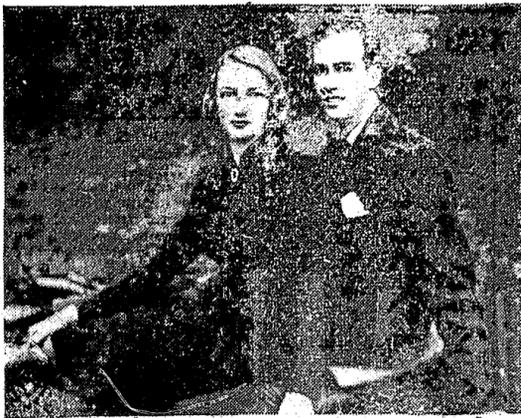

A simple explanation of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Act and instructions to be followed in filling out the forms will accompany both reports, Picard said.

"The instructions," Picard explained, "are designed to assist the employer in determining his liability under the act. In general an employer is liable and must pay contributions if he employed eight or more persons in each of 20 different weeks, either in 1936 or in 1937."

"Failure of the commission to send these reports to any one employer does not relieve the employer of his obligations," Picard said. "He must obtain the reports, fill them out correctly and return them to the commission."

Copies of the forms may be obtained from the commission's Detroit offices, at field offices and in the near future from city and county offices throughout Michigan. All of the commission's field representatives are prepared to assist employers in filling out the two forms.

John Roosevelt and Future Bride

John A. Roosevelt, son of President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is pictured with his fiancee, Miss Anne Lindsay Clark, daughter of Mrs. F. Haven Clark of Boston. Their engagement was recently announced. No date has been set for the wedding as yet.

Picard estimated that the commission will collect approximately $20,000,000 from between 16,000 and 20,000 Michigan employers in contributions for the first nine months of this year.

"The liability and contribution report forms," Picard said, "must be filled out by all employers to whom they are sent, despite the fact that only employers of eight or more persons are liable for contributions."

"Failure of the commission to send these reports to any one employer does not relieve the employer of his obligations," Picard said. "He must obtain the reports, fill them out correctly and return them to the commission."

Copies of the forms may be obtained from the commission's Detroit offices, at field offices and in the near future from city and county offices throughout Michigan. All of the commission's field representatives are prepared to assist employers in filling out the two forms.

"It makes no difference," Picard added, "whether such 20 weeks were consecutive nor does it make any difference whether or not the eight individuals were employed simultaneously or whether the same eight workers were employed in each of the twenty qualifying weeks."

Other important points employers must remember about the act when filling out the forms Picard said, are:

1—All employers who are subject to Title IX of the Social Security Act are likewise subject to the Michigan act and must pay a contribution, even though they do not have eight employees in this state.

2—Any combination of small employers, owned and controlled by the same interests, is termed a single employer and is liable for contributions under the state act.

3—Employers are liable only for the first $3,000 of wages paid each individual employee. However, one employee may earn $3,000 or more from several employers, each of whom must pay a contribution on the first $3,000 they pay him.

4—Employers claiming not to be subject to the act must answer in detail all questions asked on the report to determine liability.

5—Part time and temporary workers must be included as employees and contributions are payable on their wages.

6—The amended Michigan act permits the employer to report on his regular pay-roll periods, rather than any arbitrary quarterly or monthly period.

7—In computing contributions the employer must include as wages the reasonable cash value of board, room or other services given the worker as part of his remuneration.

CHILDREN IN COURT

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

A juvenile court judge recently assigned a trained social worker the task of educating the parents of a sixteen year old girl before she could again be placed in their custody.

In his instructions the judge said: "These parents have six younger daughters at home and they must be taught never to evade one of their children's questions. Take great pains to impress on them that if it is far more satisfactory to frankly discuss with an inquisitive girl all phases of reproduction than put her off with generalities as they did in the case of their older daughter. Explain that to fore-warn an adolescent girl is to fore-arm her against future situations over which parents have no control."

Answers To Banking Questions

Why Do Banks Charge Higher Interest Than They Pay?

We believe these facts will readily indicate why the interest which a bank charges on loans must be at a higher rate than that which the same bank can pay on savings or time deposits:—

1. A considerable proportion of a bank's resources, at any given time, are uninvested; they must be kept available to meet the possible demands of depositors.
2. A large proportion are invested in government bonds, which pay an extremely moderate return.
3. Operating expenses—including rent, salaries, equipment, taxes, and occasional losses—must be covered largely by earnings from loans and investments. . . . to say nothing of a moderate return to the bank's stockholders on their invested capital.

No Hour too Late... No Road too Long...

Too often, the regular grind of our daily business causes us to overlook humanity's best friend. It is not until sickness or unexpected accident comes that we reach out with a beseeching hand to our doctors. Then, at our bed-sides we find them . . . giving hope in life's dark hours.

To our doctors, we pay heartfelt tribute, hoping that our humble message may help them a little as they "carry on" with their acts of mercy. This community has an able medical profession. We salute the doctors of Buchanan.

FIND GOLD AND OIL AMID HEAD HUNTERS

New Guinea and Papua Explored by Air Parties.

Sydney, Australia.—Reports from exploring parties in New Guinea and adjoining Australian territory of Papua indicate the existence of large gold and oil fields. But there is one serious drawback to their exploitation—head-hunting tribes.

Jack Hides, one of the most intrepid of the explorers, in his report, detailed the fact that while he was the guest of the chief of one of the local tribes with whom he was negotiating for mining concessions a raiding party came in with thirty-eight newly severed heads. Despite this and other drawbacks, companies are being formed here for the development of these natural resources of the two territories.

Preliminary reports received to date, however, indicate that development of these gold and oil fields will entail difficulties never before encountered in any part of the world. Aside from the perils of head hunters, the two territories present almost insurmountable difficulties.

It is realized that the transportation of all necessary machinery will have to be by planes. This is further complicated by the fact that everywhere the forests and jungles are so dense that it will be a long time before landing fields can be erected.

In the meantime sea planes of the prospectors are forced to land on the various rivers where facilities are complicated because the rivers are infested with crocodiles which seem to have a penchant for nosing around planes.

Nevertheless, the reports received demonstrate that numerous prospecting parties have been able to establish camps along the various streams, and that the pilots have developed an uncanny instinct for being able to locate them and keep up means of communication.

Expressed by Sighs

An ancient book on love-making, speaking of the problem of the girl not declaring herself, "because of her too great modesty," permits the swain to sigh before her; "for a true passion cannot be better expressed than by a sigh when it escapes from the bottom of the heart. So let him not be too profuse of his talk, but let a few sighs supply the vacancies of discourse."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Romans 13:12): "The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text; book, "Science and Health with key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 472): "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. That which He creates is good, and He makes all that is made."

Eating Big Meal at Noon

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

A WOMAN, 5 feet 6 inches in height, weighing 225 pounds, consulted a physician regarding the best method of reducing her weight. Before putting herself under his care, she stated that she did not want to eat less food, hated exercise and so would do none of it, and insisted that she be allowed to remain in bed until 10 a. m. each day as at present.

As there are only three ways of reducing weight in the ordinary overweight—eating less food, taking more exercise, and taking less rest during the 24 hours—the physician was about to dismiss the patient with the polite remark that as she would not follow any of the three methods of weight reduction, nothing could be done.

However, close questioning revealed the fact that the lady got a great deal of pleasure out of shopping; her hobby being the spending of every afternoon in the stores of a large city.

The physician then stated that he would allow her to follow her present habits and eat the same amount of food, if she would eat her heaviest meal—dinner—at noon instead of in the evening. She followed this advice and lost 7 pounds the first month, 5 the second month, 3 the third month and 1 the fourth month; a loss of 16 pounds in four months.

Exercise Requires Fuel. Eating the heavy meal at noon, and the light or lunch meal in the evening caused a loss of weight for 2 reasons: (a) the exercise of walking about the stores actually used up some of the excess fat on the body, and (b) the light meal in the evening was so light or so poor in food value, that after it was eaten, there was not much excess food to be turned into fat during the "rest" period of the evening, and during the 12 hours or more in bed during the night.

The 3 or 4 hours of walking exercise that this patient took every afternoon required extra fuel and the excess fat on her body was what furnished the food or fuel necessary.

Work Requires Energy. "Muscular work has a far greater effect in raising the energy consumption (using up of fuel or fat) than any other factor." For instance, the average man needs 3,000 calories or heat units of food daily, and the average woman about 2,000. Yet if just an ordinary or moderate amount of exercise is taken, such as walking a mile at a moderate pace, as much as 500 calories of food or body fat may be used up; walking a mile at a brisk pace or at a slow rate of running might easily use up 1,000 to 1,500 calories.

Many professional wrestlers carry ten to thirty pounds of excess fat because they wrestle 3 to 5 times each week (sometimes for an hour or more) and must carry extra weight to prevent going "stale." It is not unusual for them to lose 5 to 10 pounds during each bout, such is the effect of hard exercise in reducing weight.

Nothing Much to It. It is all very simple. "The fuel for doing work or taking exercise must come from the food eaten or from the tissues of the body; if part of the fuel foods taken in are used up in doing muscular work, the excess food eaten (which would naturally be stored away as fat) will store that much less. When the food intake is too low to provide the energy needed both for maintaining the body and for the work done, the body tissues will be called upon to supply part of the required energy and a loss in weight will result."

However, an important point about exercise in reducing weight is that fully recognized and that is that using the will power to take any exercise is a big step forward. It is no easy matter for the overweight to move the excess weight about; it means so much more effort than for one who is of normal weight. Then as the exercise becomes easier to do because of practice and because there is less weight to move, the overweight individual finds himself or herself gradually increasing the amount of exercise taken daily. A feeling of "lightness," of renewed energy replaces the "heaviness" of moving about not only during exercise but at other times during the day. As it is not much effort to walk short distances, go upstairs or perform household duties more of these little chores are done. This means more reduction of weight.

Of course, just as the reduction of weight by diet, drugs, or gland extracts should be under medical supervision so should the patient be thoroughly examined before taking exercise and at intervals thereafter so that if there should be disturbances of the heart or blood vessels, the exercise may be regulated accordingly.

Highway Traffic Is Counted Exactly by the Robot Watchman

Provides Basis for All Safety Regulations

Washington.—A roadway's traffic pattern which varies with the day of the week, the hour of the day and the day of the month, is the dictator of all safety and traffic regulation policies, as well as the selector of all new highway undertakings.

Robot infra-red light beam "watchmen" are one of the new mechanisms by which highway engineers now keep a 24-hour watch on roads where changes are needed.

Infra-red beams directed across the highway onto photoelectric cells now keep watch and are able to count as high as 24,000 vehicles an hour. Operation of the device costs $150 a year compared with $5,000 for a continuous manual counter check.

The photo-electric counter is seldom noticed by even the most observant motorists. It consists of two short posts with cross arms, one on either side of the road. The post supporting the light source is equipped with two ordinary automobile headlight bulbs whose light is rendered invisible by filters. This eliminates any confusion which might result in night traffic. Parallel beams projected across the road and spaced 30 inches apart provide a current path to the photo tubes on the opposite post.

Count Is Almost Perfect. Whenever the two light beams are intercepted simultaneously the interruption is recorded by the counting mechanism in the receiving box. At the end of each hour the printing apparatus stamps the day of the week, the time, and the cumulative traffic total. If the current should fail, the time of the failure is recorded, as well as the number of vehicles counted up to the breakdown.

Errors in the count never exceed 5 per cent of actual traffic volumes, and are usually held to within 1 or 2 per cent of accuracy. There are, however, several unavoidable sources of error, such as when two cars passing the counter in opposite directions intercept the light beams at the same time. Only one vehicle is then recorded.

"Phantom" trucks have been found which pass by the electric eyes without being seen. This mystery was solved when it was observed that the ghost trucks were painted either white or aluminum, with the result that at certain hours during spring or fall days sufficient light was reflected back to a receiving unit which faced north so that the light ordinarily furnished by the light source was replaced.

Most of the freak errors encountered cancel out, and the automatic recorders can be relied upon, with a minimum of attention, to provide accurate 24-hour information.

Curtains of Light Used to Measure Projectile Speed

Ottawa, Can.—An artillery shell crashing through invisible curtains of light is the newest means of determining the speed of projectiles developed by scientists at the National Research Laboratories here. Particular merit of the system is its portability which enables it to be used in the field and bring added accuracy to computations of range in actual combat.

Light beams, mirrors, photoelectric cells and sensitive recording mechanism are the equipment which makes possible the new development of Dr. D. C. Rose, physicist in the division of physics and electrical engineering of the Canadian N.R.L.

Curtain of Light Used. In effect the artillery shell passes down a narrow tunnel and every 50 feet intersects a beam of light falling on a photocell. Momentarily the shell blocks off the light beam and this decrease in light intensity cuts down the electrical output of the cell. By an amplifying system this electrical change produces a permanent record on photographic film.

In field tests at the military camp at Petawawa, Dr. Rose set up metal frames whose upper and lower surfaces consisted of mirrors. A beam of light started from the bottom and was reflected back and forth across the space between the mirrors until its ray finally fell on a photoelectric cell concealed in a small box attached to the upper part of the frame. Thus the entire space within the frame was filled with a light beam which could be blocked out by the onrushing shell.

A series of four of these frames were carefully lined up before an artillery piece which at a known, and automatically registered instant fired its shell through the frames.

ASTOR KIN BANKRUPT

Francis Ormond French, father-in-law of John Jacob Astor III, who filed a bill of bankruptcy. One of the liabilities was a bill to a Chinese laundryman totaling $1.48. EDITORIAL

"Dee dumbee—dee dumdee!
The fly sat on the wall.
Second verse, same as first,
and so on, and so on, until you go crazy, but it will always be "same as first, the fly sat on the wall."
Don't let your high school life be like that tiresome ditty. Start the freshman year with the determination to get something into that head of yours; but, miss no game, party, or social hour. Turn over a new leaf when entering the sophomore class. Your freshman days are over and old excuses no longer hold good. When you take the title of junior, you are considered an upper-classman by over half of the school. Then act like one. Take the work that's expected of you and complete it, and when you become a full pledged senior, be prepared to say to the world, "Every year that I was here, I got better and better."
Then, when commencement comes, push back those tears and smilingly say that you weren't like that stubborn, unwise fly that sat on the wall for four years.
I suggest that each student invest twenty-five cents in a fly swatter and the entire school have a "swatting" party. If you're a moving, an ambitious fly, you needn't fear such a celebration; but woe to you sitting insects! If you've such a person remember it's never too late to stretch those legs, blink those eyes, and walk off that wall.

SOCCER

"Come on, girls, follow it up!" All the girls are yelling this in back of the school house when playing soccer. Regular soccer practice has begun and the girls and Miss Henry decided on Tuesday and Thursday nights for practice. They play from 4 to 5 o'clock after school. The girls are hoping they will be able to get games from neighboring schools and are confident they can win.

JUNIOR HIGH GRADES START PRACTICE

The Junior High School is starting basketball practice this week. The team consists of the seventh and eighth grade students. The boys are small this year but very mighty. Some of the boys of last year are returning. They are Dick Hess, Jack Franks, Chuck Trapp, Robert Dodge, and Chuck Lisika. They have quite a few games scheduled so "Doc" Miller is starting practice early.

FUTURE BACHELORS

OF AMERICA
My goodness, what is that awful smell? Oh! That's only the Future Bachelors of America initiating their members into the club by making them eat onions or wear blacked eyes. (Most fellows preferred the onions.)
The aim of the boys' cooking class club is to help out pep meetings. A group of lively boys are in it and are really enjoying themselves in a nice way.

THE FRENCH CLUB

The French Club was organized Monday, September 20. The officers are as follows: President, Sid Deming; vice-president, George Riley; secretary and treasurer, Earl Stevens. The meetings will be held every third week on Monday. Phyllis Lamb and Caroline Webb were in charge of the meeting. The topic discussed was French customs and habits.

SWIMMING DE LUXE

The last word in portable dressing rooms designed for beach use, made its appearance recently at Santa Monica, Calif., when Jean Parker, film actress, introduced an individual cabana. Housing but one person and resembling a large firecracker, the cabana is of lightweight construction.

"Puppy Love" Uncovers Old Art

Forgotten pictures, gathering dust for years in an old attic, brought the hope of new life to Mrs. Alida Clark, seventy-nine years old, of Maywood, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. She swapped one of the pictures with Arthur Lloyd, Jr., of Oak Park, an antique dealer, for a cocker spaniel, shown in the picture here. When the dealer cleaned it up he was told by an art authority that it was the work of an old French painter, Jean Baptiste Greuze.

Grade News

The first grade class, has just completed the study of grasshoppers and have composed the following story:

The Grasshopper
A grasshopper has six legs.
They are in pairs.
A grasshopper has wings.
It can fly.
It can jump.
It eats grass and leaves.
It drinks water.
It eats our flowers.
We do not like grasshoppers.

Studying and collecting leaves from different kinds of trees has been the pastime for the second grade children. Several in the class have brought leaves to class. For example Kathryn Grimes brought a leaf from an English walnut tree, and Dorothy La Mont Sprague brought two cactus plants to school one of which came from California and the other from Florida.

An illustrated talk was given to the fifth grade class which has been studying the Western States, in geography. Miss Krebs, the Domestic Science teacher gave the talk. She toured Washington, Oregon, and California during the summer vacation.

If you like to sing, then you want to join the third grade as they have been studying choral singing in connection with choral poetry the last few weeks.

Worms, toads, spiders, and insects have been the chief work of the fourth grade pupils. Several caterpillars have already built their cocoons in the school room. The children are making a collection of insects to find how harmful they are to plants and animals rather than how they might harm human beings.

The sixth grade room has several excellent specimens of giant spiders the names of which have not as yet been found. There are also two caterpillars of the Imperial Moth and a chrysalis of a Swallow Tail Butterfly. Jimmy Borders brought a ground puppy to exhibit.

Dewey School News

Small tables, chairs, and sixty-nine children make up the Dewey School kindergarten this year.

"Hi!—Hello!" and "Good morning, Teacher," was heard. Consequently, the children commenced to get acquainted with each other. Few realize the duty of Miss Andersen. It is necessary for her to keep order among children who aren't used to behaving, and she has to act as mother to those who aren't accustomed to being away from their homes. Under her splendid guidance during their first year of school, they are prepared for future years that are ahead of them. After all what they need is a good start.

Delicious looking fruit and beautiful flowers drawn by the pupils of the first grade decorate their room. Under the direction of their teacher, Miss Miller, they have been reading stories about Dick and Jane. They have also been learning how to write their names.

The opportunity room consists of children ranging from the first to the fourth grade. There are seventeen pupils enrolled this year. The children have been doing their usual work in arithmetic and have been reading the story about the chipmunk. Chalk drawings of fruit and vegetables drawn by the second grade pupils help to beautify the room. "The Little Red Hen" has been their main character this week. To make the story more interesting and easy to understand under the supervision of Miss Reams they have been acting out the story. Who knows maybe the little girl who plays Little Red Hen may someday be the leading lady in Hollywood, or the little boy who is the pig may be another Clark Gable or Robert Taylor.

Under the direction of Mrs. Wilcox they have started the study of Palmer method writing. The children are working for a series of pens awarded by the Palmer Method Company.

There are thirty enrolled in this room. Jane Walter was absent a few days on account of illness.

The third grade has had a perfect attendance so far. There are twenty-nine enrolled in this room.

The fourth grade has enrolled forty-five pupils. Their most interesting subject is geography in which they have been studying about Africa. The students study pictures that illustrate the methods of living and the wild animals in that part of the country.

SCIENCE

Mr. Langer's biology class was a place of great activity Friday as different members of the class set up experiments. There were six different experiments given. Those not performing the experiments were busy viewing the work of their fellow students. One of the most interesting demonstrations was performed by Eleanor Noggle and Betty Penwell. It was to see the condition necessary for osmosis to take place.

Students returning Monday morning saw the results of their experiments; all of which worked out successfully. Many were surprised to learn that a flower pot of dry beans, which they had wired a brick over the top and placed in a pail of water, had swollen to such an extent that the flower pot was in three pieces. After a discussion of the experiments, the class had a half hour of free discussion on subjects of biological interests.

OUR NEW CHEER LEADER

"Yea team!" The yells of the student body emitted from the auditorium echoed and reechoed through the halls of Buchanan High last Thursday, September 23. It was the Watervliet pep meeting and guess who they were yelling with. Yes, sir, that inspiring, captivating, clowning, new cheer leader, Bill Gregory.

Although he didn't show much technique at the pep meeting, he has a winning personality and everyone is anxious to yell for him. He is a bit shy, having given but one yell at the Watervliet game Friday, but in that yell his technique was greatly improved, in fact, we don't see how he did it in 24 hours. We're all for you, Greg, keep it up!

BUCHANAN BOY SHOT

Leland George was shot September 25, as he walked down the street in South Bend, by the Candid Camera Man. He is a prominent member of the junior class in the Buchanan High School.

Tie Watervliet in First Grid Game

The Buchanan High School football squad fought hard for their first victory of the season Friday afternoon, September 24. Not until the last three minutes of the game had Watervliet made any score.

The contest showed that the Bucks out-played Watervliet because they had ten first downs to Watervliet's five. It also showed that the Bucks players are new because Buchanan had several off sides. All together Buchanan was penalized 144 yards.

Buchanan held its own ground the first half, but in the third quarter they cut loose for a touchdown. Smith ran around end for 25 yards which brought the ball on Watervliet's 10 yard line. In the next play Smith carried the ball over for a touchdown. The Bucks were in scoring position twice before this, but they couldn't score.

The Bucks got a nice gain in the third quarter when Leiter passed to Simpson. Simpson intercepted the pass and went about 30 yards and lateraled to Donley who ran about 15 yards. Simpson also lateraled the same way to Trapp which got them a nice gain.

At the half it started raining which both teams were expecting, for it always rains during Buchanan's first foot-ball game. This caused trouble resulting in a few fumbles.

Beck playing end but dropped back when punting. He did a very nice job of kicking. He averaged about 40 yards during the whole game. The Watervliet kicker showed skill in punting.

The last quarter the Bucks were leading 6 to 0 and Watervliet started passing. They went for about three first downs in a row. This brought them up to Buchanan's 40 yard line. Then they tried a pass which was not intercepted but the interception was interfered with so the ball went where the interception would be. This brought them up to the Bucks' 10 yard line. The next down they passed back of goal line which was caught by the right end off from Leiter's hands which was intentionally knocked away. The extra point was not good.

The Bucks tried hard to score the last quarter by passing but was not successful because Watervliet was on their toes all the time.

Score by quarters:
Buchanan 0 0 6 6

Marriage Law in Effect On October 29th

Instructions On Hygiene Law Sent to County Clerk Al Hastings.

An outline of Michigan's new hygienic marriage law was received Thursday by County Clerk Al Hastings from Dr. C. C. Slemons, commissioner of the state department of health. The law, known as the antenatal physical examination law, becomes effective on October 29 of this year.

Fifteen days or less before applying for marriage license, both bride and groom are required by the law to be examined by a physician to determine their freedom from venereal disease. The examination must include the Kahn test for syphilis. When necessary dark field test and microscopic test for gonococci must be made.

If the tests show the applicant free of venereal disease, the physician will issue a certificate, which must be on a form supplied by the state department of health, and which must be signed by the applicant in the presence of the examining physician.

Laboratory tests must be performed by the Michigan department of health, or by a laboratory registered by the department of health. A list of approved laboratories is to be provided to the county clerk soon.

Medical certificate of both applicants must be filed with the county clerk when the marriage license application is made. The certificates will be not open to public inspection. The applicants may not obtain the marriage license until five days after filing the application to marry, in accordance with the five-day law which has been in force in Michigan since 1925.

Certificates now are being prepared by the department of health and will be provided to the county clerks within the near future.

While the marriage license application must be made within 15 days after obtaining the medical examination, the license may be used any time after it is issued.

Nora Sparks Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lightfoot entertained at a dinner Sunday morning the birthday of the latter's aunt, Mrs. Nora Sparks. Mrs. Sparks has been a resident of the Buchanan district during her entire lifetime, having been born in Bakertown. She is the last of the second generation of the Bakers of Bakertown, her father having been one of the brothers who operated the wagon shop and carding mill which were the pioneer industries of that place.
