These here Michigan fruit growers kin argy all they want to that apples are better than oranges but they got to admit they can't hit you in the eye like grape fruit.

I donno about the hand being quicker than the eye, but I do know sum peepul in Glendorry and Buchanan whose tongues are faster than their brains.

Apple Butter Time
Those happy days of old, I so often call to mind,
Were the fall days of October, the cold and snappy kind.
Then Father brought the kettle, made of copper that would shine, I knew we'd all get busy for 'twas apple butter time.
The apples sweet as honey, were in baskets by the score.
When hour by hour we'd sit and peel, yet there was always more; Willie Father, by the kettle, the cider he would test,
To be sure his apple butter was just the very best.
Mother brought the spices, for she liked that spicy tang,
So she did the planning, while listening as we sang.
We sung the songs of home sweet home and every other clime,
And never were we happier than in apple butter time.
Those days are gone by, but in our memories yet,
There linger many happy hours we never can forget;
But now it's fall again, and soon winter's frost and rime,
Will make us all remember 't is apple butter time.

Robbers Leave Car at So. Bend

Shot Gun Charge Penetrates Stomach, Lodges Near Spine

Herman Reinke, 24, was fatally wounded yesterday morning when a bandit shot him through the chest with a single-barreled shotgun when he resisted an attempted hold-up at the High Grade Filling station.

Reinke's impetuous but regrettable bravery had been proved once before when he shot it out with bandits after they had robbed the station of over $100 about three years ago.

Shortly before 9 a. m. yesterday two young men entered the driveway of the station in a 1937 Chrysler Royal coupe, and secured gas and oil of Reinke. Then they drove out and parked on the south side of the station for several minutes, while other cars were waited on.

They drove back in the driveway, and this time one of them got out and drew a shotgun on Reinke and on John Kline who had just walked around the corner of the building from his truck.

The bandit ordered them inside. Both went in with the bandit following. But Reinke broke and ran through the door of the small office to the south of the larger store room, and hastily grabbed his automatic .32 revolver from the drawer of a desk, beside which R. G. Van Deusen was receiving a long distance telephone call.

Reinke ran to the end of the office opposite the entrance and whirled to face the door, just as the bandit entered. The latter saw the gun in his hand and apparently both drew and fired almost at once.

Reinke fell shot directly through the center of the chest. It is evident from blood stains that his bullet wounded the bandit in the right arm as he raised his gun to shoot. Blood had spurted on the door about shoulder height, where the bandit stood. The robber ran without attempting to secure any money. He left a trail of blood to the right as he ran.

The two bandits were in D's cafe twice between 6 and 7 a. m. that morning, and had talked with Ernest Mangold and the attendant at the restaurant, who were able to give a description. The bandit who is believed to have done the shooting was about 5 feet, 7 inches tall, slim, light complexion, rather sharp faced and full lips. He had long blond wavy hair. He wore a blue Melton jacket and dark overalls, no hat. His companion was about 5 feet five inches tall, darker and heavier, attired, similarly except for a light gray soft hat.

The dark man entered D's cafe about 6:15 a. m. and asked for coffee, saying that his friend outside did not want any. He went out and a few minutes later both came in and took coffee in the first booth. One asked for a razor blade or knife to trim an injured nail, and they then asked Mangold where they could get repairs for the two right fenders, both of which were dented. Mangold examined the car and asked them why they did not have a license in front.

About 8 a. m. they drove into the Standard Super Service Station at Portage and Front and secured Indiana and Michigan road maps from Leo Anderson, asking especially for directions to South Bend. They then drove a short distance up the street, stopping near Leonard Wood's home for quite a while. There a part of one of the maps was found later, the other torn half being in the abandoned car when it was found near the Bendix airport at South Bend.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

By HAWES

Last week I cut my tale rather short as the train was coasting down "the most beautiful valley of Europe" toward Andelsnes and the fjord.

Meantime our congenial little train party had been breaking up. The middle-aged hiker and his wife got off a station or two before Andelsnes, their destination some hotel or "pension" in the heart of the high hills. They gathered up their traps with many expressions of good wishes, and the man smilingly instructed the two folk school girls to take over the full duties of interpretation for remainder of the journey. Wanting to be gallant, I jumped up and picked up the lady's knapsack to help her off the train. So doing I clumsily upset it and I saw her give an involuntarily gasp as though there might be possibilities of disaster inside—perhaps an overturned bottle or something. But immediately she caught herself, said something with a laugh to her husband and thanked me. I marveled at the weight of the knapsack. They told me that the regulation weight of knapsack equipment was between 25 and 30 pounds. But these Norwegian knapsacks—"ruck sacks" seems to be the term—are said to be the best made. They were invented by a blacksmith in Oslo, and have a metal frame which fits the back and over the hips, so distributing the weight that they say are not at all burdensome.

The blacksmith was a poor business man and sold his patent right for a small sum to an Oslo capitalist who became very wealthy from the manufacture.

The hills became more gentle as we approached Andelsnes, although the gigantic Trolltinder and Romsdalsfjord loomed in solemn immensity, plainly visible from the fjord. The train rolled into the little port and drew to a stop, and all got off. The two folk school girls took their grips and started for a resort hotel for their vacation. Many were doubtless bound for the larger resort town of Molde, by a boat journey down the fjord. This is said to be one of the most beautiful resorts on the Norwegian coast.

But my path lay back up the same railway and within a half hour I was embarked on my return up the wonder valley. There were still a few hours of daylight left before the half-night as I passed the Trolltinder and saw one more the great waterfalls. Some of the beauty was lacking, however, for the sun had dropped behind the hills and a dusk lay in the thunderous gorge. But I eagerly watched the great panorama again, striving my best to imprint its beauty in my memory.

My fellow passengers on the return trip were strangers and remained so. In fact I cannot remember one of them. In a few hours, about 11:30, I believe, I was back at the junction at Dombas, where I knew I must again "place myself in another wagon" on the main line from Oslo to Trondhjem. But this time I had a 3 1/2 hour wait at the station.

There were two or three hotels convenient to serve travelers thus delayed, but true to my tight-wad economics I elected to rest on one of the station benches. Three porters scouting for prospects left grumbling a little, I thought, perhaps because the station waiting room was left open. The lunch counter was still open for this train, but the girls were clearing away to leave. After a sandwich I settled down on the bench to make the most of the wait. But the station was not heated and Dombas is near timberline—also near the Arctic circle.

After a chilly half hour with only my raincoat for covering I rose and donned an extra suit of clothes. Still it was too cold to sleep. After a doze of perhaps a half hour, I rose, stiff with cold and decided to walk around the little town for the remainder of the wait. It was very light and I remember that all through the night a bird with a musical but monotonous note was trilling in the pines outside the station.

Dombas was a typical Scandinavian village, which means that it was a very loose cluster of houses strung along the hillside near and below the railway, which was high over the valley. These towns really consist of small acreage tracts so that a population perhaps much smaller than that of Gallen will occupy an acrea greater than that of Buchanan. Each little acreage is in fact a small farm, which is worked as a rule by the women and girls, while the men engage in timber work.

Just below the station there was a cluster of farm buildings and I sauntered down a steep path, on the lookout for dogs which did not materialize. I went through a gate whose fastenings was as mysterious as the Scandinavian doorknobs and examined the outbuildings. A man came out of the house and started up the path to the station but he paid no attention to me. There I examined the dirt-roofed farm building which I mentioned last week. But more I watched the great mountain valley lying in the solemn, mysterious northern night and about 1:30 a. m. the snowy peaks about took on a faint rose light from the rising sun. I watched the day come on and the sun return to its four-hour dip under the horizon, while the strange Arctic bird kept up its eerie trilling.

He was born in Buchanan Sept. 17, 1873. Following his graduation from the dental school of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, he practiced in Buchanan for many years.

After moving to Chicago he was prominent in the Chicago-Buchanan club. Funeral services were held at 3 p. m. Saturday in the West Lake chapel, Chicago, after which the body was taken to Graceland cemetery for cremation. Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Charles F. Peers, of Buchanan, and the Misses Evelyn and Isabel Roe of San Francisco, and two brothers, Ellis Roe, Plainfield, N. J., and Arthur Roe, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Last Rites Held For W. S. Wells

Former Buchananite Brought From Detroit For Burial Here

Committal services were held at 4:30 p. m. Monday at the Oak Ridge cemetery for Wellington S. Wells, former Buchananite who died in Detroit, Saturday, Oct. 30.

Rev. Brunelle was in charge of the committal service. A funeral had been held in the William R. Hamilton Funeral Home of Detroit that morning.

Mr. Wells once made his home in Buchanan for a number of years and had visited frequently with his daughters and other relatives and friends here.

He was born at Waltham, Ill., March 30, 1855, the son of Wellington W. and Julia Skinner Wells. He was married in Buchanan to Hattie Richards on May 28, 1879. To this union were born four children: Mrs. F. R. Montague, Mrs. H. D. Smith and Blanche McIntosh, all of Buchanan, and Geo. W. Wells of Pittsburgh, Pa.

In addition to the above four children he is survived by two grandchildren, Richard Montague of Buchanan, West Virginia, and Mrs. Howard Leer, South Bend.

Buchanan Stores Improved: Monroe

People who live in Buchanan perhaps do not realize how marked has been the improvement in its business section in the past two years, according to Howard Monroe, former proprietor of the Hollywood theatre and now engaged in the same business, owning a theatre in Long Beach, Cal. The sum total of the improvements is marked to one who has been away and includes modernization of a number of store buildings and fronts, many more neon lighting signs, and the replacement of the old eyecore on East Front by the new brick building now in progress of construction.

Mr. Monroe has been visiting friends here and was a pleasant caller at the Record office Tuesday.

Injured in Fall From Hay Loft

Dan Bonogavich, an employee at the Allie Mae Rough farm, incurred a fractured wrist and sprained shoulder when he fell 15 feet through a hole in the loft of the barn Saturday.

Pursue Campaign For School Health

Thirty-five pupils of the Dewey Avenue kindergarten were brought in to the office of the school nurse, Kebe Lamb, for physical examination recently, the local doctors cooperating. Among the defects found were: one defective heart, one inflammation of the inner ear, four infected tonsils and adenoids.

Mrs. Lamb says that she believes that the campaign of education for care of children's teeth is bearing some fruit, as 28 out of 69 of the kindergarten children brought to the school dentist were without teeth defects, or 40%, while last year only 22 out of 76, or 29%, were without teeth defects.

Mrs. Lamb says that children of the rural schools of the county, comprising between 8,000 and 9,000, will receive physical examinations for the first time this year.

The School World

Malco Glee Club
Cherry Blossom Helm of Buchanan, has been accepted as a member of the Women's Glee Club of Western State Teachers College, after tryouts for the organization which is directed by Mrs. Dorothy Sage Snyder of the Music department faculty.

The club has a roster of sixty members, forty of whom have sung one, two or three years in the organization. During the year they appear on many programs on the campus in the city and in Southwestern Michigan cities and towns. Each year they give a Home concert. A feature of their concert repertoire is a costume skit for which music of some country is chosen as the basis each year.

Robert Ellis, a freshman at Butler University, Indianapolis, Ind., spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis, accompanied by the coach of the Butler freshman football squad, Mr. Heddon.

Miss Virginia Wright returned to her studies at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., yesterday, after spending a short time at her home here recovering from an injury received when she was struck by an arrow at an archery range at the university.

Miss Bonita Wentland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wentland of Gallen, and a graduate of Gallen high school, is starting her second year as instructor in English at Fernside high school, in a suburb of Detroit, and likes her position very much.

Maroons Defeat South Haven 7-0

Seek Seventh Victory at Dowagiac Friday Night

By John Schultz and Matthew Rauch

The Buchanan "Fighting Bucks" added another eleven to its string of victories Saturday when they defeated a stubborn South Haven, eleven 7-0. They scored in the first 7 minutes of play on a double reverse in back of the line.

Smith kicked off deep into opponent's territory. It was returned by Fullback Tragna. On the first play Tragna was sent back to punt. He punted to the South Haven 44 yard line where it was downed. A march to goal was started from here with Smith, ace halfback and offensive star of the Buchanan eleven this year, and Stevens carried the ball the most of the way to the goal. The march was halted by a 15 yard penalty for holding. Two plays later South Haven was off side putting the ball on the Havenite's 17 yard line. The next play, a double reverse, was called sending Smith off left tackle. He went through a hole provided by McCormick, cut for the sidelines and raced to the score. Smith's kick from place was good making the score Buchanan 7, South Haven 0. The remaining part of the game was played in a sea-saw manner with the punters having a great task in keeping the rival team back on their heels.

The score does not indicate the superiority of the Bucks over the Golden, as questionable penalties marred other scoring opportunities.

Tragna, and Mielke did the most ball carrying for coach Baer's eleven, doing it very nicely.

Statistics on the game are as follows:

Buchanan	South Haven
227	Total Yards Gained 100
154	Yds. Gained from Scrim. 69

Bucks Meet Sove City Eleven
The undefeated Buchanan eleven will journey to the Stove City seeking their seventh victory in a row next Friday night. The Bucks are in hopes of victory and are determined to come home with their seventh in a row. This game will be played under the lighted field at Alumni field in Dowagiac.

This last week Dowagiac lost to their rival, ours also, Niles 7-0. We defeated Niles 26-7 as you all remember. That shows we ought to win but very little is indicated by comparative scores. They have a great passer in this redheaded boy named Finch. He shot a 37 yard pass against Niles and you'll see many footballs coming from his hand down at Dowagiac.

Let's go see the Bucks grab No. 7.

Buchanan-Kalamazoo Normal Grid Game to Feature The Afternoon

A movement for closing all Buchanan business houses for the Armistice Day exercises at the high school next Thursday morning and for the remainder of the day was launched yesterday by Arthur Johnston, commander of the Fourth District of the American Legion, who has started the circulation of the following petition:

To the Business men of Buchanan: Many of our neighboring cities and a growing number throughout the country are taking action to make November the eleventh, a holiday in celebration of the Armistice of 1919, in memory of the Americans who died in the war, and as a reminder of War's cost and the necessity for peace.

For several years the American Legion has been sponsoring a program at school beginning exactly 10:50, which we would be glad to have the general public enjoy with us. This year also, we have suggested that the school schedule a football game for the afternoon, and school be dismissed for a half holiday.

In connection with this, it would seem to us most appropriate if the business men would co-operate by closing their places of business at noon and attend the game. The High school has a good team, it should be a good game, and it would seem that the whole community might gain from a united support to the efforts of these young people.

Sincerely yours,
Post 51 American Legion
John W. Elbers
Commander.

Program at High School
The commemorative exercises will open in the high school, assembly at 10:50 a. m. when the band will play a few selections.

At 11 a. m. sharp the audience will stand at attention and two buglers stationed in the building, William Ednie and Fred Manning, will blow "Taps," while the firing squad outside of the building will fire a volley.

The exercises will be under the joint auspices of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, with Commander John Elbers in charge of the former organization in charge. Rev. Thos. Rice will present the address of the day.

An entertainment feature of the day will be the football game between eleven representing Buchanan and Kalamazoo Normal high schools at Athletic park at 2 p. m. Both teams are unbeaten to date, unless the results of the coming week change that status. The best game of the year is expected.

In the evening the annual Armistice party will be held at the Legion Hall. All ex-service men or auxiliary members and their immediate families will be welcome.

TIGHTWADING IT THROUGH EUROPE

About 3 a. m. the main-line train from Oslo pulled in and stopped and I resumed my journey north and east toward Trondheim and Sweden. For perhaps two hours the train ran along in high altitude, part of the time above timberline, and with frequent snowbanks along the tracks. The pines ceased and there was only a scattering of stunted, wind-deformed birch, and an occasional a hut on a mountain pasture farm. Near the railway ran a highway, traversed by occasional cars. There was also visible the remains of an old mountain road, once the great highway from southern Norway to Trondheim when that city was the capital, in mediaeval times.

But soon we dropped fast and the hills were interspersed with broader and broader valleys with prosperous farms, leveler than those I had previously seen. There was no more stupendous scenery although the train stopped at one station where passengers alighted to see a large waterfall, out of sight but only a short walk from the station. If I remember correctly it was about 8 o'clock when we arrived at Trondheim, the largest town in northern Norway, population 50,000.

I had to wait there until about 4:30 p. m. for the train across the Swedish border. As was often the case after an almost sleepless night in a crowded third class compartment, I was too dead-tired to enjoy Trondheim, although I put in most of the day dutifully trudging about to see what was to be seen.

The show place of the city is the great cathedral, begun far back in the twelfth century, if I remember the guide booky rightly, and yet unfinished. It seemed strange to see a church worthy of a large continental city here near the Arctic circle. Its presence is reminiscent of the days when the town was the most important governmental and religious center in Norway. There are buried in the Cathedral a number of the Norwegian kings of those times.

But as usual I was wary of cathedrals and especially of cathedral guides. Of what avail was it to follow a guide about and acquire much detailed information about various worthies dead and forgotten these many centuries? I paid my crown (27 cents) to get in, and followed the guide until the net inevitable assessment came due. We were asked to pay a half crown more to go up a narrow winding stair to the gallery, to view the great interior from there. I decided that the church looked all right from below and parted with the company. Too much information, like too many souvenirs, becomes a wearisome burden.

I went out in the church garden and scanned the graves of the lesser worthies there, and from thence to the more cheerful market place, where I bought some sweetish brown goat's cheese and looked over the great Arctic flowers and the scrawny Arctic vegetables. There was a great column there crowned by a Viking statue. I sauntered thence about the little city. I needed a shave and haircut and sought one of the barbershops labeled "Friseur-Herrn" (men's barbering). They conducted me to a seat in the back of the shop and a girl came and took charge. I got panicky, visioning various costly manure and massage treatments, and kept pointing at my thin but shaggy mane. The girl smiled and assured me of something or other in Norwegian and kept on massaging my face. After a thorough job she signaled for me to get out of the chair and a male attendant took charge of me, conducting me to his chair. It seems that women usually prepare the face for shaving.

He trimmed my hair and shaved me. I do not remember the price of each operation but the total was less than a crown (27 cents). Later I got a hair cut in Sweden for 55 ore (about 15 cents). I sought the offices of the Swedish-American Steamship company and asked the clerk where I could get shoes repaired. He directed me to a basement shop, where a force of men and girls worked. I left my shoes, asking for half-soles. The job cost four crowns (about $1.08) but included the repair of a break on the side, sewed so neatly and strongly that it was scarcely visible. The handwork done by Scandinavian artisans is excellent.

I remember little of the drowsy remainder of my stay in Trondheim. I do remember noticing the almost Asiatic cast of many faces, showing Lapp blood. For this town is very near Lapland and there is considerable intermixture. Prices of food seemed high, as in Oslo. I sauntered along the docks, watching the many fishing boats and the fish warehouses which denote the main industry. Another thing I noticed, as in Oslo and Swedish towns—the many book stores. In these book stores were displayed many books in English. It was there of in Oslo that I saw a window of English books with the place of honor given to "Gone With The Wind." There was another book very common in bookstore windows, "Sweden on Ten Pounds." It was written by an Englishman telling how to see the best of Sweden on $50. Such extravagance!

The time to go approached and I got my shoes and started across a bridge to the depot. I heard some one behind me say—"Now we'll try another jump," and looking back I saw a bulky man and his wife, son and daughter picking up their extensive luggage for another hitch to the depot. They had on their luggage the stickers of the Swedish-American line, as I did, and I remembered seeing them in the depot at Gothenberg. I had had my seat reserved, as it was possible to do last summer without charge, but only in the Scandinavian countries.

I settled down in the third class compartment, capacity about eight, and hoped nobody else would get on. There were about twenty minutes before departure. But they came and came. First came the American family and settled in my compartment. It transpired that they had not reserved the seats. I told them they could not hold them of other passengers reserved them. The man puffed my information. He came to Europe every other year from Hollywood, Calif., and he always had seats.

The wife and daughter were less certain. They became insistent when I told them it cost nothing to reserve. I think that perhaps it costs to reserve on the upper classes. But the man persisted in saying that he would not reserve and he would have seats. But here came passengers with checks for their seats and they had to get up. The wife and daughter were vocal with dissatisfaction but Hollywood remained firm. Never mind—there's the mother alone. The would be seats. He had traveled all over and he always had seats. There proved to be room a little later for the mother alone. The others stood in the aisle at the side of the car. Then a Norwegian boy who had reserved a seat left it for a few minutes, and Hollywood took it.

"He'll want it back," objected the daughter.

"He can ask for it," replied Hollywood.

The boy came back and hesitated, waiting for Hollywood to give up the seat, which he didn't. The boy waited a few minutes and then went elsewhere.

"You took that boy's seat," complained Miss Hollywood, who seemed to have more sympathy for the young man than the remainder of the family.

"I guess he would ask for it if he wanted it," replied Hollywood—and winked at me. He became quite sociable. He came over every other year but this was the first time he had brought his family. He had been in Italy, Greece, Czechoslovakia, Germany—about everywhere in Europe except France. There he would not go—they charged too much for their visa. It was an insult to be charged for the privilege of spending his money in a foreign country. He had not learned that the price of the visa had been reduced to almost nothing on account of the Paris exposition.

It was not that he lacked money, although he was traveling third class. He and his family had paid over $1,000 for round-trip tickets from Hollywood to Sweden. They were visiting around leisurely, traveling a day and resting two or three. "We like a railway compartment all to ourselves," he said, "just our family alone."

Seen he lifted his voice in song. It was an interminable round—something about "My name is Yon Yonson, I come from Wisconsin, I work in a lumberyard there" and so on to the effect that when all the people asked him who he was he would reply, "My name is," etc. and so on ad infinitum. The wife and son and daughter all joined in heartily, while I waited apprehensively for the train hands to arrive and stop the racket. But none came and after a while the Norwegians left sorrowfully and they had the compartment to themselves—except for me.

In fact I left for a few minutes and when I returned they were alone.

"Where are the others?" I asked.

"They've gone," said the daughter, with a giggle. "I guess we were too rough for them." "I've been a lover Europe and I always have seats. We like to have an apartment alone—just our family," added Hollywood. It must have been the Hollywood complex.

TELEPHONE SERVICE HAS INCREASED IN VALUE; RATES HAVE DECREASED

Michigan today is enjoying really remarkable values in telephone service.

The Company's material and labor costs have increased substantially since reductions in rates were made in 1934, 1935 and 1936. In 1934 rates for service to farmers and for long distance service were reduced; in 1935 the long distance night rate was made effective at 7 o'clock every night and was extended to all day every Sunday; in 1936 further reductions were made in the rates for long distance and for various other services and items of equipment, and the charges for installing and moving telephones were drastically cut.

At the same time the average individual's income has improved, and prices asked for many other items and services have gone up.

Yet telephone service is still available at the reduced rates; the quality of the service never was higher; and its value to the community is increasing daily, as indicated by the increasing number of calls made per telephone.

Wayne Home Economics Classes Study Quality of Michigan Apples

Baking qualities of Michigan apples have been made the subject of a food-laboratory project at Wayne University, Detroit, at the request of Michigan apple growers faced with the problem of marketing a crop 40 per cent above normal. Apples will be tested for flavor, texture, size and desirability for baking.

It is the intention of Professor Sanderson in her own tests to show the public that Michigan apples are at least the equal, and in many cases the superior, to the Western product for baking purposes. Stellar varieties at this season of the year will be the Rhode Island Greening, The Wolf River and the McIntosh. Later on, the Baldwin, the Wagner and Northern Spies are expected to steal the show. Housewives who consult with the Home Economics Department at Wayne University hereafter will be impressed not only with the fine oven qualities which belong to our home state apples but also with the economics resulting from the purchase of Michigan-grown fruit with comparatively no high priced freight charges against it.

HERMAN REINKE KILLED IN DUEL

after noon report came that the car had been found abandoned at South Bend and it was brought back to Buchanan.

The shotgun charge struck young Reinke in the pit of the stomach, penetrating the stomach and the liver and lodging near the back bone, tearing a large hole en route. Death was not instantaneous but ensued in a few minutes. He is survived by his widow, whom he married 13 months ago; by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Reinke; by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Boswell of Kalamazoo and Miss Bernadine Reinke at home.

The car was brought to the Nelson garage north of the John F. Russell, Inc., offices, where it is being held for finger print experts. It is reported that air planes are circling over rural sections of northern Indiana searching for the fugitives.

Answers To Banking Questions

Am I Asking a Favor When I Seek a Bank Loan?

A loan is a business transaction. It is no more of a favor for a bank to lend you money than it is for a property-owner to rent you a house. Both make a fair profit when the business is on a sound basis.

This bank welcomes loan applications for this is one of the ways we make money. You do not have to say "please" or "thank you" when you borrow here. Your application is judged strictly on its merits like any other business matter.

If we think your loan is a proper investment for our depositors' funds we shall approve it promptly—and appreciate getting it. If your application does not meet our requirements of sound banking we shall tell you so frankly together with our reasons.

This bank is actively seeking good loans. If it is a good one we shall be glad to get it; if it is not you should be glad that it is not made.

Which Explains That

"P'taters is good this morning, madam," said the market gardener, making his usual weekly call.

"Oh, are they?" retorted the customer. "That reminds me. How is it that those you sold me last week were so much smaller at the bottom of the basket than at the top?"

"Well," replied the man. "P'taters is growin' so fast now, by the time I get a basketful dug, the last ones is about twice the size of the first."

HOLLYWOOD

HIGH TENSION STORY—To the cracking of million-volt charges of electricity "Bad Guy," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picture of the escapes and escapades of high tension power lineman, comes here Friday and Saturday.

The story deals dramatically with the deeds and misdeeds of daredevil pole climbers who live dangerously and love recklessly. It features Bruce Cabot, Virginia Grey, Edward Norris, Jean Chatburn, and Cliff Edwards in the leads, supported by Charley Grapewin, Warren Hymer and John Hamilton.

ANNE SHIRLEY AS CO-ED—Anne Shirley's latest screen role is a romantic part in "Meet the Missus," in which she is a co-ed who becomes very much shocked when her parents make the newspaper front pages as winners of a contest conducted by a noodle manufacturer. The parents are (laughed), Victor Moore and Helen Bellerick, co-starred in the new comedy distributed by RKO Radio and will be shown here Friday and Saturday.

FILM DUTIES TITLE—"You Can't Have Everything" is the title of his latest sing-song musical presentation, but production chief Dar'yl F. Zanuck proceeded to give it everything: rhythm, sweet, tremble and blow-dried; heavenly song hits by Gordon and Revel; scrumptious girls; a parade of personalities; flying fiddles; hot trumpets; honey crooners; dancing feet like rain on the roof; and the insistent antics from the Ritzmaniacs.

From the same studio, that was responsible for the upgar, the brilliance, the freshness and the melody of "Sing, Baby Sing," "Thanks A Million," "Pigskin Parade," "One In A Million," "On The Avenue," and "Wake Up and Live," comes an outstanding cast in a sing-song show tpping them all.

Alice Faye, the Ritz Brothers, Don Ameche, Charles Winninger, Louise Hovick, Rubinoff and his violin, and Tony Martin are featured in the Twentieth Century-Fox picture. "You Can't Have Everything" showing at the Hollywood Theatre, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

POWERFUL DRAMA—The Samuel Goldwyn production of "Stella Dallas," with Barbara Stanwyck in the title role, the attraction at the Hollywood Theatre beginning Wednesday is a tense drama of a mother who sacrifices her own right to happiness for the sake of her daughter. It gives Miss Stanwyck the strongest role in her entire career and one which was coveted by every leading actress in Hollywood. Co-starred with Miss Stanwyck is John Boles with a distinguished supporting cast, including Anne Shirley, Alan Hale, Barbara O'Neil, Al Shean of the famous team of Gallagher and Shean and Tim Holt, son of Jack Holt.

Children in Court

A freshman in college was forced to discontinue her education upon her physician's orders.

This young woman was the only daughter of a highly neurotic and self imposed invalid mother. Each day during the present school term the mother had written long letters in which she vividly pictured her imagined afflictions for her daughter. As a result, the daughter worried so much over her mother's condition that she not only failed her courses but had to be placed under the supervision of a psychiatrist for observation and treatment.

Discovered the Banana

The banana was discovered by Alexander the Great, about the Indus, three centuries before Christ. It was brought to the New World in 1516. Benjamin Disraeli once declared: "The most delicious thing in the world is a banana."

Editorial

A teacher pointed her finger at a boy, and raising her voice, commanded, "Get to work!" "Get to work?" Sure, get to work. Vacation days are over; beaches, bathing suits, canoes, horses and bicycles are laid aside. No more tennis, swimming, hiking, or loafing. You've been given another game to play. The tools used to play this game are books, teachers, pencils, paper, assignments, and a certain amount of time. The teacher gives you the assignments, you take the pencil and paper and with the aid of the books, do the work in the amount of time. The object is to get it finished and correct. There is a valuable reward for all those who win, and the wonderful thing is that you may all win and receive duplicate prizes.

You students have been given six weeks to learn to play the game. The six weeks are over and your scores are made known. Are yours low? Bring them up. Are they high? Keep them there.

Grade News

November 1-6 is National Art Week.

Not only the setting aside of a special time for the emphasis of this subject, but a gradual improvement in the carrying out of its principles, shown in both public and private buildings, give evidence of an emulation of the Greeks in the desire to make all "common things beautiful." In house furnishing, in dress, in advertising and—in fact—in every phase of our life is this aspiration manifest.

In our schools, under the skillful direction of Miss Eunice Miller and Mr. Robinson, the fine arts are receiving increasing impetus. Not only is this spirit evident in the work of our leaders, but teachers are more and more making the environment of the pupils an inspiration and school rooms a delight to the eye.

The children of Mrs. Heim's second grade were very much interested in their new book of Art Stories. They were especially attracted to a beautifully colored autumn scene and decided to reproduce it by using the leaves, flowers, and weeds collected in September.

Miss Spear's fifth grade is starting a unit on The Sugar Beet, an industry very important to the well being of the people.

They have written to the Sugar Beet Association, Washington, D. C., for beet seeds to plant in their room.

Miss Ekstrom's fifth grade, in the spelling contest, Ruth Van Every's side led Tom Van Dusen's. The new books in vocabulary study have come. A record is made in their work books of each new word. Each child needs a dictionary and many now have them. An enlarged working vocabulary and the dictionary habit are objectives of the grade.

Shirley Marks and Patricia Quincy are doing outstanding work in writing.

In honor of the Horace Mann celebration this year, the fifth grade is studying "the father of education."

Miss Abell's sixth grade made original Halloween posters.

Second grade students in Miss Polhank's room are composing short little poems in connection with social and nature study. Before the children try to write, a certain subject is discussed in full. Birds was one of the subjects taken into consideration. Selected poems are read to them and the most beautiful parts of them are commented on in a class discussion. After this is finished, the pupils put into words their own thoughts and make original poems. No assistance is offered them by the teacher because they believe the expression in poetry should be free and unrestricted. Several original poems given here are the work of these second grade boys.

I like the windmill,
And I know he likes me.
He tells me so
In his song to the sea.
—Paul Montgomery.

The windmill goes around and around
Sometimes fast and sometimes slow.
I die down and then I go,
Around and around I go.
—Lysle Huebner.

The little cardinal sits in a maple tree.
"He sings, he sings, he sings," said he.
"He likes to sit in the maple tree," said he.
"I'm sure, I'm sure, I'm sure," said he.
—Paul Montgomery

I wish I were a robin.
I would fly across the sea.
I would see the ships a-sailing—
A-sailing on the sea.
—Neale Shreve.

Poetry is but a part of these small folks' work. They're really every morning to broadcast over station S. G. S., the second grade studio station. This week Paul Montgomery is the radio announcer, and the weather record man for this week is Neale Shreve.

The study of Holland is being continued. Dairying is the interesting topic at present, Tuesday afternoon, butter will be made in school. An interesting poster is put on the door of the classroom pertaining to butter. The picture is of a little girl putting a buttercup under a little girl's chin to find whether or not she likes butter. Many other things are happening within Miss Polhank's room. Busy bodies are using a play telephone and signing out books from their own library. Instructions in all of these studies are well worth while.

Miss Heim's second grade reading class read about a toy store. Toys were brought from home for use in art class. Here they modeled the toys from clay, although it was the first time they had used colored clay.

Stroke one—ball two the big series is on its way. Herbert Meyer, manager of the White Sox, is proud of his team and thinks it has a good chance of coming out on top while Donald Metzgar, manager of the Cubs, is overwhelmed by the success of his team. They are leading the series by two games.

This is the method used for studying flash cards in Miss Quickel's second grade. It has proved to be a very interesting and helpful way to study arithmetic.

The fifth graders in Miss Spear's classroom began a project on "Admiral Byrd's trip to Little America." They will study life, transportation, and communication there. In correlation with art the class continues the project by making a miniature reproduction of the Byrd settlement in the Antarctica.

Plans for the Halloween parties are being made in the second grade and kindergarten. The kindergarten's went so far as to make applesauce which will be part of the refreshments.

The pupils in the opportunity room have been making posters about good teeth. This was done at the opportune time because, while studying this subject, their teeth were examined in school. Kenneth Clemans is still absent from school.

Two new dolls were purchased by the kindergarten children this week. The children raised the money by selling old papers and magazines. The dolls make a great improvement in the appearance of their play house. As yet the children have not decided on the names they will give the dolls.

A miniature Dutch project is being made by the children in the second grade under the direction of Miss Polhank. So far their project consists of colorful little clay houses and windmills. They brought Dutch souvenirs to class and put them on exhibit. They have a splendid collection of dolls they have been making use of their library for outside reading. Paul Montgomery is acting as librarian.

VELMARIAN SOCIETY

It would not be a great surprise if the members of the Velmarian Literary Society were packed up and sent to the state institution at Kalamazoo.

On Wednesday, October 22, the class held its first meeting. The president, Keith Dalrymple, called the meeting to order. The secretary and treasurer, Beverly Koons, took rollcall and read the minutes.

The entertainment was then charge of by "Prof." Fulk. The "Professor," being a little late for class, hastened his arrival by sliding in on skis. I rather imagine that most of the paint is minus from the bottom of the misused skis, because after all, the halls of our school building are not exactly a snow bank.

The "Professor's" first act in conducting the psychopathic class was to call roll again. The roll this time was answered by a mixed proverb. Patient Sidney Demming answered, "Two in a bush are worth a look before you leap." Inmate Dale Lyons, "He who laughs last gathers no moss." "Professor" Fulk gave an "A" for the brightest one given by Dick Austin, "A rolling stone knocks but once."

One of the most violent patients, Carol Kobe, gave a rather mixed talk on a Southern girl's interpretation of smoke-stacks.

The class was interrupted by the 9 o'clock bell; but, remember, students, the members of this class are running amuck. Watch 'em.

Who's Who

Carol Kobe—"I like other people's favorites about as well as I like mine. I would rather spend my time drawing than anything, other than reading. As to authors, one interests me as much as any other, if the story is up to my expectations, and I like loud shirts, but loud boys are among my dislikes. A lot of pep is just fine. Tall: Um... Dark? Well. Handsome? Oh well."

Burrell Weaver—"An active member of this year's football squad. Names among his likes, girls. He prefers blondes or Brunettes, but no mixtures. If they are "peppy and active" they suit him just fine. His hobbies are hunting and Baroda if a certain senior girl is there."

Mildred Ashby—"She is a member of the sophomore class and is the flag bearer in the band. She enjoys watching rather than participating in sports. She has outside interests, but boys are not included. She goes in for hiking in a big way. This winter she hopes to learn the art of skating."

Robert Fairman—"This year's president of the sophomore class is a regular member of our sideline boosters. He is noted for skipping school and spends that time with the Justice of the Peace, Lee Mathie. In fourth hour library he chats with his many girl friends.

HERO OF THE DAY

Sounds of agony were heard by the children of the opportunity room. They were drawn to the window by terrifying cries.

A large brown and white bird-dog had made an attempt to jump over a fence and had caught it; chain and was hanging helplessly.

David Coldis rushed to the rescue. The dog was almost as big as he was; so it was a great task for the lad. When he came in he exclaimed, "That pood dog had big tears in his eyes, you know they aren't so dumb!"
