without. Our country is not torn by internal bitterness between classes or interests. There is political opposition but it is not vicious. We are essentially united in our intentions, conservatives, liberals and radicals, to serve the welfare of our people. We have a real democracy.

I saw him twice afterward—once the day I left when he gave me a set of pictures of the small housing activities; and merely waved his hand when I asked for the bill.

But I went back three times more to North Angby. Once was on Saturday afternoon when most of the stores and shops of the city are closed and the builders of the small houses were taking advantage of the opportunity to push their home building. I went the next day also.

It was an interesting variation from life in America. Everyone seemed to be spending the summer week-end at home. It was in the height of the small fruit season and about many of the cottages erected a few years back the currents, gooseberries and raspberries flourished and bore luxuriantly. These small fruits seem, to be able to endure the severe northern winters. Around the little homes the men were picking fruit or grooming their flowers contentedly.

About one house not so well-groomed a middle-aged couple and a husky lad of about 18 were working. I stopped and inquired "Talar ni Engelska?" The old people pointed proudly at the boy. He came forward. "I speak a little," he said.

His parents came up with him and listened admiringly as he haltingly answered my questions. They had bought the lot lease and the house from the man who had started it the year before, he said. There is no 100% batting average among these home builders, for some of them prove unadapted or other reasons may intervene and change their intentions.

Anyway the man who had started the building had changed his mind. The place looked disheveled, neglected. The boy was apologetic about it. They were going to straighten things up and improve so it would look like all the other premises in sight. They had a city gardener advising them.

At the time the parents were digging out the garage and the boy was wheeling out the dirt. I asked him if he intended to put a car in it. He shook his head but pointed with a grin at one of the slight types of motorcycle which are common in Sweden, nothing more than a bicycle with a motor attached.

I wandered on up the street and into a back-yard where the small fruits grew luxuriously and saw a man who looked like an educated office worker picking currents. He could speak very good English. He told me he paid about $300 per year in payments on his house, which took care of the following items: lot rent, including amortization of costs for all public improvements, as water and gas installation, paving, sidewalks, street cleaning, chimney cleaning, interest and amortization on the debt for the house, water taxes.

He bought coal with a large cooperative group that imported it from England by thousands of tons. The annual cost for heating his home was about $30 a year.

"I turned into a street that led among pines and jutting granite, where the 1937 edition of the homes were being built. There I met one of the most interesting home builders I came in contact with. He was the foreman of a printshop in Stockholm. In Sweden printing is called "trickeri" Ahem-m-m!

Anyway this worker in "trickeri" was toiling prodigiously and singlehandedly on his home. But he stopped and talked genially in very passable English. He had started building that house the first of May. It was then July 20, and in the intervening 81 days he had spent 400 hours on his house. An average of 5 hours daily, including Sunday, although he had worked 9 1/2 hours daily at his trade. But, of course, with Saturday afternoon and Sundays and a holiday or so off. That explained how he did it.

He got off work every day at 5:30 p. m.—17:50 o'clock in their time. He went to his apartment and grabbed a bite to eat and then grabbed a bus to North Angby. In 20 minutes he was at his home site, perhaps by 6:30 p. m. Then he toiled there often until 11 p. m. for there was still plenty of light for most work then. Sometimes his wife worked with him, often his brother. But mostly he had done the work. He had dug the basement by hand; set the concrete blocks in place. He showed me small photos showing himself setting the blocks in place and his wife standing by with a shovel but doing more laughing, apparently, than working.

He fitted all the parts into place himself, excepting of course for the "housing raising" when his friends and relatives had gathered and pushed the heavy wall sections into place. Now he was at work putting the tiles on the roof. He had had to hire a little help but had paid out only 60 crowns for labor—about $16.20. Of course the pipe fitting and the wiring would have to be done by the city experts.

He was an opposite type from Crossland. Crossland represented the careful conservative interest but my printer friend was of the radical workers, the labor union forces, who then dominated the city government.

He waxed eloquent over what the city was doing for its people. "But," he said, "It is only while the workers are in control of the city that we will get these things. You know that the majority of the city aldermen are workers? While we keep them there the small housing work will go on."

He saw a questioning in my eyes, for what he said did not exactly square with what Crossland had told me of the union of purpose. I asked a question along that line and his face clouded rather angrily. He excused himself. He was very very busy. And he climbed the ladder back to the roof.

Afterwards, more study made it evident to me that both Crossland and he had told the truth, each in his own way. The wide expansion of the housing aid for workers was doubtless due to worker control in the city government but its existence as a movement was hardly so dependent.

I came back one other evening for a hurried farewell trip to North Angby. To me the place seemed almost like a shrine of the spirit. Here were being done competently successfully, the things that America seemed unable to do for its people. I went immediately to the printer's home. He was on the roof, with a helper, working furiously laying tile. I halted but there was no answer except a mutter. I called again, and then the helper came down, with an embarrassed grin. He was the brother, he said. The printer was very busy trying to get done laying tile. He was also a printer himself. He showed me a number of pictures he had taken of the work on that house and I bought several.

I asked him how much a line-type operator made. About the equivalent of $80 a month he said, in private owned shops as high as $140 per month in cooperative-owned shops. I took down the figures with a sense that I was talking to an eager propagandist. So I bade him goodbye. It was then late after 22 o'clock and the light

CONTRIBUTION COLUMN

The following poem was sent to us last week by one of our high school students who is now convalescing in the Butterfield Hospital in Grand Rapids, Mich. This poem was written while the patient was lying in the hospital and receiving spine treatments.

The author, Dorothea Irene Skinner, has submitted poems to the Microphone before. The following is her latest:

One Night of Love
Dorothea Irene Skinner
The music chimed like magic
As I danced within your arms,
Your enchanting eyes possessed me
I was tantalized by your charms.

You pressed me closely
And you thrilled me with your kiss,
You whispered softly, "I love you,"
In those moments of unknown bliss.

The moments now have vanished
The torture is hard to bear,
And when I say, "I love you,"
You never seem to care.

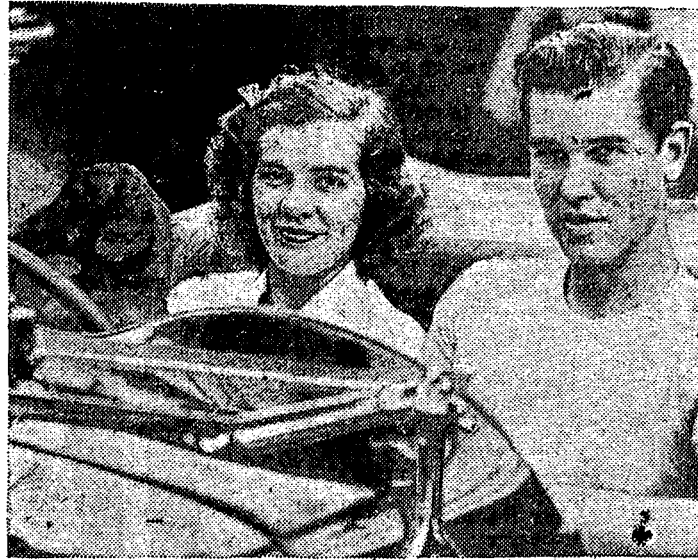

Oh, darling, you have changed
You no longer look my way,
But I hope that you'll remember
I love you more each day.
We want to thank Dorothea for this lovely poem and hope that she will be back with us again soon as many of us miss her cheerful smile and pleasant ways.

The Agriculture Club judged sheep last week under the direction of Mr. Langer.

Two of Society's Favorites

George Vanderbit and his wife are among the leaders of the society colony at Palm Beach, Fla., this winter. They are pictured taking a spin in their specially designed roadster. The young Vanderbits are among the most popular couples in the younger society set of New York and Newport during the social season and find themselves the center of activities during their winter sojourn at Palm Beach.

OUR COMPOSITE SOPHOMORE GIRL AND BOY

Haven't you often heard complimentary remarks about some individuals' unusually attractive features? Such phrases as these are common. "Hain't she the most winning smile?" or "I've never seen such ambition!" and "Her manner is the most unaffected. You can't help but like her." So is this pleasing to you for the ideal sophomore girl?

The ideal sophomore girl should have the height of Mildred Vander Van, the weight of Norma Yoder, hair with a luster to it as Elaine Blainey's, and eyes like Betty Lou Batchelor, lips such as Gerilean Reamer's, skin as smooth and clear as Lillian Fabiano's, Donna Smith's even, white teeth.

Of course every girl has a handsome young Romeo. Here he is. This Romeo must have the height of Tom Fitch and weight of Duane Beadie, the wavy hair of Bob Hamilton, lips of George Lauer, Lester Hanover's dark eyes, Dick Hayden's skin, and the teeth of Verne Longworth.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

Watch the play unfold as John Fulks, Willie Barton in "The Nut Farm," vainly endeavors to steer his brother-in-law away from promoter sharks in Hollywood who offer to star his wife, Willie's sister, for the small sum of thirty thousand dollars, but warnings fall on deaf ears, so Willie grabs the directorial reins himself in an attempt to salvage at least a part of his brother-in-law's money. He does this with amazing and hilarious effects.

Caroline Webb takes the part of Willie's ma, and Carol Kobe, as Agatha, is his sweetheart. Sidney Deming is Agatha's dad.

GIRLS' SPORTS

The girls have started the soft ball season this year with three teams: two from the second hour class, and one made up of the fifth and sixth hour classes. Captain and teams are:

Grade News

Donald Metzger and Loretta Ann Lee in Miss Quicke's room and Robert Stevenson in Miss Ekstrom's room have been neither absent nor tardy during the school year.

The spring garden in Mrs. Heina's room was given to Joan Scherry to care for during Easter vacation. She put it on the back porch and the beans and radishes are still growing nicely.

Miss Quicke's students are reading "Su Lin" loaned to them from the Opportunity Room. They will soon begin studying ways of transportation.

Owing to daily drill of arithmetical numbers Miss Ekstrom's grade has raised its average in division and multiplication.

Nature has been in full swing in Miss Carnagan's room the past few weeks. They are working on a green house project. The plants are being raised from seeds and slips. Bulbs were studied but not planted due to school being out so soon. In the study of animals they have had baby chicks, a turtle, a rabbit, and two frogs in the room to observe and gold fish are always present. Through the kindness of Mr. Langer they visited the agricultural department and saw how the chicks are hatched and cared for without a mother hen.

Dorothy Mae Six had her name added to the Dental Honor Roll. Miss Ekstrom, Miss Spear, and Miss Pelhank gave demonstrations for the Mother's Clubs last week. Miss Ekstrom's demonstration was in audience reading, Miss Spear's in arithmetic, and Miss Pelhank's a science lesson in connection with social studies.

State Spends One Hundred Sixty Million Dollars

The state of Michigan expended $180,000,000 the last fiscal year, but only $4,000,000 went for upkeep of the state government; the remainder was returned to counties, townships and cities, according to Secretary of State Leon D. Case.

Mr. Case spoke before the Berrien county board of supervisors, of which he was a member before becoming a state senator and secretary of state.

Eighty-eight millions of dollars goes back to local governments for general purposes, Mr. Case said. Another $23,000,000 goes back to townships and counties for highway purposes, $38,000,000 back to public schools, and $25,000,000 for social welfare, such as relief, old age assistance and similar uses.

"These funds, he pointed out, all are expended essentially for local functions.

"Financially, we in the state government and you in county governments have the same problems," he said, "to get enough money to pay for the functions demanded by the people."

Of $3,000,000 expended yearly on county, village, township and city governments in Berrien county, Mr. Case declared, fully one-half is provided by revenues collected by the state.

Production of 1939 Plates Starts May 1

Manufacture of 1939 motor vehicle license plates will begin at the state prison of southern Michigan, at Jackson, about May 1, immediately after completion of the last of the 1938 half-year plates.

Use of Michigan-made materials in the making of these license plates has increased by about a third because of the replacement of the old windshield "sticker" with metal plates.

The manufacture of 1938 motor vehicle license plates involved 1,245 tons of steel and approximately 10,000 gallons of paint. There were 2,489,600 pairs of plates made for 1938. To handle them

TELEPHONE RATES HAVE BEEN REDUCED IN FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS

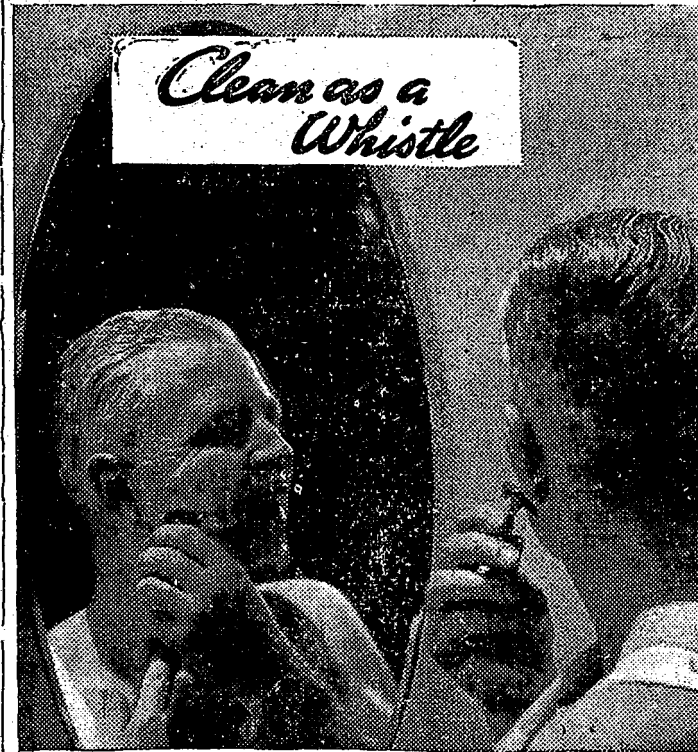

— 1934-1938 —

Those reductions, made in the face of substantially increased labor and material costs and taxes, mean an annual saving of more than $3,000,000 to Michigan telephone users.

The handset telephone charge was reduced and then eliminated. Rural line rates were reduced. Service connection and various other charges were cut sharply. And there have been 17 items of reduction in long distance rates, many of them applying to intra-state calls, in the past 11 years.

There is a type of telephone service to fit every need and every pocketbook. We will gladly give you details about how cheaply you can have telephone service if you will call, write or visit the Telephone Business Office.

Telephone Probe Was Unfair, Says Gifford

When the Telephone investigation was begun over three years ago, I welcomed the opportunity to place before the Commission all facts as to the manner in which our business is conducted, I naturally assumed that we would have a fair investigation, and an opportunity to place before the Commission all of the material facts pertaining to all phases of the Company's business which the Commission should desire to study.

The investigation, however, was one-sided from start to finish. We were denied not only the right to cross-examine investigation witnesses and to be heard in our own behalf, but were denied the right to have included in the record written material which we had prepared and considered necessary to point out serious and important errors, affecting most of the investigators' reports. Commissioner Walker's report must be appraised in light of these facts.

We have not been given a copy of Commissioner Walker's report, said to contain 1,000 pages, but if the summary of it correctly reflects the report, it presents much that is simply not true and has been prepared with the same unfairness that characterized the investigation proceedings.

This country has the best, the most extensive, the most widely used and the cheapest telephone service in the world. In spite of this, it would appear that fault has been found with almost everything this Company has done throughout its existence. This just does not make sense.

Bell System earnings have never been excessive. The suggestion that rates might be reduced 25 per cent throughout the Bell System without reducing net earnings by changing depreciation and other major policies and practices is absurd.

According to the summary, the report claims for the investigation, credit for reductions in rates and many other things which, in the normal course of business and in accordance with the Company's policy antedating the existence of the Federal Communications Commission, would have taken place without any investigation.

Many Entitled to Accrued Age Benefit
Many persons aged 65 who are now idle are entitled to lump-sum benefit payments under the old age insurance portion of the Social Security Act, according to Newton E. Lincoln, manager of the Kalamazoo field office of that agency of government.

"There are many persons who are now temporarily unemployed who are entitled to but have failed to claim these benefits," Mr. Lincoln said today.

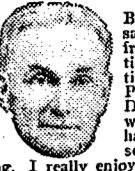

"Persons who have worked in commerce or industry covered by the Act since January 1, 1937 are entitled to lump-sum benefit payments equal to 3 1/2% of such wages. It is not necessary to retire to receive these benefits. In many cases employers place the names of furloughed workers in an inactive file and thus do not report to the U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue the fact that such employees have reached the age of 65 years and cease to be covered under old-age insurance plan," Mr. Lincoln added.

port is made deprives the Social Security office of an opportunity to contact workers who have reached this age and are entitled to lump-sum benefit payments. Any person who has become 65 after having been employed in an occupation covered by the Social Security Act should apply at once for a lump-sum benefit payment. Mr. Lincoln said. His office serves all of Berrien, Branch, Calhoun, Cass, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph and Van Buren counties.
