

Now Here's the Proposition

Uncle Hank or Hills Corners Sez:

Sense the city kummisun put that lie on the streets down in Buchanan they've found out they got nearly ez meny street experts in town ez they hev fellers who know how a newspaper ought to be run.

Essentials

I'll never be old in the way we're taught to While my form is trim and my figure is sveite And my chest stays up in the place it ought to Instead of slipping beneath my belt; For age is a thing you cannot sell me Though my hair is thin and my teeth to boot I will strut my stuff while the gals all tell me I still look good in a bathing suit.

L'Envoi

A look in the glass no longer flatters But I should worry or care a hoot! For I yet can fate in the way that matters-- I still look grand in a bathing suit. --W. C. H.

Some go through life without knowing what they want from day to day, but there is a young man in Buchanan, age 12, who has his life planned to a T, even to how many children he will have and what their names will be. He seems to have a lot of very definite ideas, few of which are open to argument. His name is John Gowland and here is what he has to say:

A Farmers Wish

Oh! Give me a farm that's free and clear, And close to town, but not too near; A half section and all of it good, With thirty acres of growing wood, Good fences and fields quite fat, And four big horses round and fat, A hundred or more chickens and twenty cows Perhaps some sheep and eight or ten sows, A group of tools from hoe to blinder, Without any notes for a sad reminder, I don't care for a tractor; they burn too much oil; I'll stick to my horses for tilling the soil; I firmly believe that tractors are just a fad, But if my uncle reads this he'll be plenty mad My buildings must be painted and firm and tight, And all of them lit with electric light. A home as modern as you could desire, With even a stoker to poke up the fire, Two or three kids or maybe four-- I hardly think that I'd tackle more. (Billy and Betty and Jean and Milo, All full of fun and climbing the hill) My wife in the kitchen baking a pie Fit for a king instead of I. --John Gowland.

Leo Davis Acquires Grand Daddy of Chrysler--32-Year-Old Maxwell

Is Reconditioning Two-Cylinder 1906 Model for Advertising Purposes

There are old cars and old cars around here but the daddy or the granddaddy of 'em all was acquired last week by Leo Davis, who bought from Jake Humphreys of Coloma a Maxwell car of the vintage of 1906, 32 years old.

Davis states that he plans to recondition the car, which has not been operated for ten years, and enter it in parades. Its last public appearance was at the Blossom Parade of 1927. Previous to that, however, Humphreys said that he had driven the car an immense mileage--"maybe a million miles."

That's a lot of miles, but since the machine has no speedometer, there's no way to prove whether it's an exaggeration or not.

The car is propelled by a two-cylinder, horizontal engine, generating about 6 H. P., with a planetary transmission. It has a white oak clutch. According to the serial number it was No. 8107 in the output of the Maxwell company, then manufacturing at Tarrytown, N. Y. For the first ten years of its operation it required no license. The last license was bought in 1927 for $3. The weight is 1285 pounds. It's first cost was $850.

Davis states that in his opinion it is in good mechanical condition, although it still has its first pistons and rings. The old style ignition system will not burn the modern gasoline, requiring a mixture of high test ethyl. Davis plans to modernize the ignition system so that it will use the common gas of today. Two old carriage-style square side-lamps are to be installed. The old red paint is to be renewed with wagon-style stripes. Otherwise the machine will be left as it. The single seat has a partition in the middle. A small box-like trunk in the rear was designed to contain the liberal tool equipment necessary in the days of automobile pioneering.

Davis plans to have the car in running order by the time of the Memorial Day races in South Bend but will not enter it, as it is capable of only about 20 miles an hour.

'ROUND ABOUT BUCHANAN

Dumbor states that he is proceeding on the theory that the stone is a ceremonial drinking cup used at Algonquin tribal rites, but that he intends to show it to Indian relic authorities at the first chance.

Comes by St-ge Coach and Plane Doubtless one of the most interesting letters received in Buchanan during National Air Mail Week was one which came to Franklin Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Green, from his grandmother, written at Talhiquah, Okla., and transported from there to Muskogee, Okla., by a stage coach used 100 years ago when Talhiquah was opened as the first postoffice in the present boundaries of Oklahoma. From Muskogee the letter was transferred from stage coach to plane. It is believed that this is the first occasion in history when letters have been carried jointly by a stage coach and a plane.

The Foundry had a big fifth inning in which they scored 6 runs. A home run with a man aboard by Hartline started the inning. The inning closed with Bob Ellis hitting the top of the fence for a triple with the bases loaded, he scored on an error for the final run. Ellis led the Foundry with two hits and played a grand game in field.

Sherburn pitched for the winners setting the Poorman aggregation down with one hit a single in the first by Kennedy, and a sacrifice by Dellinger. Poorman allowed eight hits to the winners.

In the nightcap H. Rudloff, Dry Zero's speedball artist, held the Boyce Insurance ten to four hits and kept them well scattered. Three hits and two Boyce errors gave the Dry Zero ten their margin of victory, it being 3 to 0. Fabiano pitched for the losers, who were last year's city champions. He allowed only three hits but there were five costly errors that didn't help in the least.

Beastall led Dry Zero with a double with two men aboard. M. Boyce, led his brother's team with two hits in three trips.

Score by Innings: Poorman 0 3 0 0 3 1 2 Foundry 0 0 0 6 6 8 4 Batteries: Joorman and A. Topash; Sherburn and Schneider. Dry Zero 0 3 0 0 3 3 5 Boyce 0 0 0 0 0 4 5 Batteries: H. Rudloff and Raber; Fabiano and Savoldi.

HERE IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN OLD FASHIONED HOT WATER SERVICE AND Automatic Gas Hot Water Service

Both of these gentlemen have hurried home for a quick bath. One owns an Automatic Gas Water Heater, the other doesn't. One will be in fine humor for the annual clam bake, Elk's supper, or wherever they're going—the other won't.

One of the many nice things about an Automatic Gas Water Heater is that it never lets you down when you need hot water quickly—for it keeps a goodly store of it on hand at all times, waiting for you to open the hot water faucet.

HONORING

Our War Dead and Their Living Comrades

America is a nation interested only in the conquests of peace. Yet, in our country's short history millions of our best sons have had to face the dangers and sacrifices of war.

We pay reverent tribute to the valor and patriotism of our soldiers, living and dead. At the same time, we give our solemn pledge to our youth of today, to work unceasingly for the cause of peace, so that their lives and their talents may be used to build civilization—not to tear it down.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

By HAWES
CHAPTER XXXIX

My original travel schedule called for about three days in Stockholm and then on to the continent, but at the end of the three days I decided to stay four days from the time on the continent and make it a week.

At the end of the week it was July 18 or thereabouts and my boat was due to sail for Glasgow August 1. That really left time for nothing but a run and jump through Germany and France, unless I could get a later sailing date.

I went to the office of the Canadian Pacific Steamship company, over which I had my ticket, and managed to change my passage on the Dutchess of Something or Other on Aug. 1 to the Dutchess of York on Aug. 7. This gave me six more days and I decided to spend it all in Stockholm and still get along with a run and jump at the rest of it.

So that was when I left the Hotel Sesam on Nyrogatan and went over to cheaper but equally pleasant lodgings at the Mission Olander on Drottninggatan. I decided starting through the continent for I anticipated having to battle my way alone through the huge cities, with little of the urbane courtesy that had marked my stay in Stockholm. I guessed right about the battle, but I found much courtesy in every country. Anyway a week seemed a long time, with 18 or 19 hours to the day and I settled down to enjoy it to the full.

Why Are Scandinavians Preeminent?

There is a pleasant way of life in Sweden that is not hard to fit into; and there are pleasant social attitudes that seem to bring out the best. At least something brings out the best in the Scandinavian countries. Or just why is it that the scant 2,500,000 people in Norway, less than half the population of Michigan, are currently producing more writers of world rank than the United States, or than England, or France, or Germany or Russia, or than any other big country?

Why has this people, living in deep narrow valleys among dark tremendous hills, with infinitely less natural resources and adaptability to human life than northern Michigan, produced a cultural civilization which compares with nothing else in world history except the Elizabethan age in England or the Periclean age in ancient Greece?

That this country from its hard-bitten poverty has produced a deeply humanized culture hardly bears out the thesis, so succinctly expressed by the junior J. P. Morgan, that civilization is maintained by and dependant on people who keep maids, with the attending horrifying corollary that civilization may collapse if the maid resigns.

Though the Swedes may be secondary in literature to Norway they are similarly preeminent in their adaptation of beauty to every day life. If you want to find the motifs of loveliness which will dominate the future in household architecture and decoration you will find it then in exhibits of Swedish art. It is rather significant, (or isn't it?) that the most popular artist for memorial and interpretative sculpture in America today is the Stockholmite, Carl Milles. When the Michigan publisher, Geo. Booth, with great dailies in Detroit, Kalamazoo, Muskegon, Battle Creek and other cities of the state, wanted a sculptor for his pet project, the Cranbrook school, he went to this same Milles, who has now a parttime home in Michigan.

Kindler Classes

In my short time in Sweden I thought I could see a deeper, kinder understanding between classes and elements in population than here, Sweden is governed by a combination of the Social Democrats, representing the city working classes, and the Farmers party. This collaboration has been in national power since 1933. But there exists under the aegis of this alliance a stately and an urbane system of capitalism and wealth. There lay moored at one of the docks at Stockholm while I was there the private yacht of a Swedish millionaire, the co-inventor and maker of the Electrolux household appliances. It was reputed to be the largest private yacht in the world. I can't say about that but it was plenty large enough. But along with the finest promotion of homes and of cultural life for the poor in the world, there is visible in Stockholm an aristocratic and wealthy element with all of the smooth and stately urbanity that is the best justification for that element.

Teaching Responsibility
At the same time the labor organizations have developed a similar poise and responsibility. They do not expend their energies entirely at least in indictment of other classes, or attempt to lay all of their difficulties on the shoulders of the upper income brackets.

Instead, the Kooperative Forbundet which is mainly their creation, conducts regular campaigns to promote individuality responsibility among the workmen. They are instructed, by their own self-chosen leaders on both how to pay their debts and on how to keep out of debt. Individual solvency is preached, not so much as a civic duty as a personal advantage. Only he who is out of debt and personally solvent may be entirely free—that is the text they preach from.

And beyond that, they begin the teaching of responsibility to the child in late babyhood. I neglected to explain how that is done in telling of the life of the great apartment houses.

The playhouses for the children of working mothers are usually in the upper story or on the roof of the buildings. The children have elevators of their own, so that they may go to the playrooms alone, from the ages of two to seven, manipulating the automatic elevators themselves. This teaches them two things: 1. to molest others as little as possible; 2. to depend on their own initiative.

The Use of Funkis Art

In a little H. S. B. cooperative housing pamphlet in Swedish which I have at my home, a woman writer explains the use and the purpose of these elevators.

They are the "Funkis" or functionalistic style which is the keynote of Swedish domestic art and architecture. That merely means that form of things shall be determined by their use. Things are not to be made to be "pretty" but to be useful. And there must be no ornamentation that does not grow out of use.

"The children cannot hurt themselves in these elevators," says this writer, "and it is a fact there can be little danger of accident where life is functionalistic, i. e., where the form of thing is perfectly adapted to the use to which they are to be put."

Then, during the afternoon, just after the midday, or heavy meal of the day, the children are all taught to rest and sleep if possible for an hour and a half. The trained supervisors teach them to be perfectly quiet during this period, not disturbing other children who may be asleep; moreover the little tots just emerging from babyhood are trained to get their own light folded coats; set them up themselves, undress and redress themselves as a teaching in individual initiative and responsibility. As they grow older they are encouraged to form their own clubs and organizations, growing out of their own lives, although always with some degree of adult supervision.

It is evident that this sort of cooperative life has its advantages in developing a society where individual initiative and group competency coexist to an unusual degree.

News of Buchanan Schools

Editorial

Ramona Dalenberg
Every spring, just before school closes, an exhibition of the work of the students is given. The students are requested to make a project covering any line they have taken up in that particular class. Posters, essays, maps, note books, and many novelties are made. Perhaps the most interesting exhibit of all is that of the high school art class and the seventh and eighth grader classes. Because Art has never been in high school before last year, it is surprising to find the talent in our school for that work. Water color, crayolas, chalk, charcoal, poster paint, ink, and plain pencil sketching are the types of art it touches. Besides finding the type of art each student is best in, it also gives pleasure and an appreciation to the student for other art work. A student artist hates to destroy any work of art for he learns of the tedious work it takes. High school art teaches the student to know good or bad work when he sees it, and why it is either bad or good. He finds how art is useful in other lines of work and in the home. A course in art helps the student in his other classes when occasions like the school exhibit and advertisements for plays, dances, and other social functions are needed.

Eunice Shafer and Winston Sands were recently seen walking down the street together hand in hand.

G. A. A. Review

By Alta Ferris
This year the G. A. A. consisted of a membership of twenty-one high school girls, seven of which will graduate this year. They are: Shirley Trapp, Maxine Shaffer, Margaret Haas, Caroline Webb, Tris Dalrymple, Bessie Crothers, and Virginia Lolmaugh. About the same number of girls will join this year.

Before a girl may join, she must have five hundred points. These may be obtained by participating in the five major sports: soccer, soft ball, basketball, tennis, and track. One hundred points are awarded for each of these. An additional one hundred points may be obtained by bicycle and walking hikes. Captains are awarded 15 additional points.

At initiation each new member is presented with a small letter. Before she can get the next highest award, which is a silver bracelet, she must earn another 500 points, keep a health chart for six weeks, and have a good scholastic and sportsmanship record.

The highest award possible is a gold bracelet which is awarded when a member has earned 2,000 points. No one this year has earned this award.

Initiation will be held in the near future, when next year's officers will be elected.

About thirty girls have gone out for tennis and about twenty-five for track.

Michigan Muck Dr. Paul M. Harmer, college soils specialist, characterized Michigan's muck soil, estimated at 4 million acres or 13 per cent of the land area of the state, as "one of the greatest of natural resources." It was created by a great glacier moving from northern Canada to the Ohio River. Holes and pockets were scooped out of the land, leaving them filled with melted ice. Later seeds and spores started a dense aquatic vegetation of cat-tails, rushes, water lilies and then shrubs and trees. Lakes and ponds slowly filled with the dead and decayed vegetable matter. Less than one per cent of our muck acreage is used for agriculture. This is especially interesting. Celery was not brought from Holland as many suppose, he stated, but was first grown and eaten in Kalamazoo 60 years ago. In 1936 the 60,000 Michigan muck acres devoted to celery returned $1,456,000.

Christian Science Churches "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, denounced" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday May 29. The Golden Text, (Matt. 24:4) is: "Take heed that no man deceive you." Among the Bible citations is this passage (11 Tim. 2:15): "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 192): "Your influence for good depends upon the weight you throw into the right scale. The good you do and embody gives you the only power obtainable."

SOME THINGS MAY BE STOPPED— BUT NOT WINDSTORMS!

They sweep down from the sky with no warning, wrecking buildings, killing livestock and smashing farm tools. There's no stopping a windstorm!

The only protection from damage a property owner has is to carry adequate windstorm insurance. This old mutual company has paid millions of dollars to its policyholders whose property has been destroyed by windstorms.

Over a half-century of prompt, efficient service. Losses paid every year since 1892—45 years—saving many a property owner from near financial ruin.

If you wish to be secure from heavy financial loss get a windstorm insurance policy with this company at once.
