Red and Bill

(Being a rhyme in the bubblic fashion—What you might call something pre-Ogden Nashian.)

"I tell you what," says Red to Bill, "I don't see any use of buildin' new postoffices at every least excuse.

When Uncle Sam has so much dough down in them striped pants, Seems like us rural carriers should share in the advance.

They ought to hire us showfers wearin' fancy coats and britches. An' kick our salaries up till we jist simply roll in riches.

It's soft fer Tenny, Mann an' Smah, but not fer me an' you. Who jist have back door privileges accordin' to my view.

What has Glenn got that we ain't got, or Tenny, Small or Mann? Our votes are jist as good as theirs if votes are in the plan.

An' they can't cast 'em no more times fer him then you an' me. Which makes it seem like F. D. R. should help the R. F. D."

"You're talkin' now," says Bill to Red, "You know what peepul say?"

It will be air conditioned there an' nice an' cool all day, While you an' me, the R. F. D., go steamin' in the heat,

And Blake an' Matthews limp around with bunions on their feet.

The least that they can do fer us is fit us out with planes. An' not a blessed thing to do except to use our brains.

With Sarah fer a pilot we would ride around like earls. A-readin' of the postcards an' a-wavin' at the girls,

An' never touch a dirty box, but every mile er so We'd tie a letter to a brick and yell 'Look out below!'"

"I really think," says Red to Bill, "That's jist how it will be. When it comes time fer F. D. R. to help the R. F. D."

Legion Thanks Donors to Trip

Many Legionnaires and Auxiliary Members and Others Attend Parade

Legionnaires, members of the Legion Auxiliary and others who attended the four-day state convention of the Michigan Legion at Battle Creek returned well satisfied with the sessions and especially with the showing of the Buchanan high school band.

The Buchanan band made the trip through the generosity of a number of Buchanan business men and employees, who contributed to a fund collected by the Legion, who sponsored the trip and made all arrangements. While no rating was made of the many school bands in the parade Monday, the local band was generally credited with being one of the very finest there, both from the viewpoint of music and of appearance and marching ability. Much credit was given to the fine work of the drum majors, and to the director, R. R. Robinson.

The two busses carrying the Buchanan band and the one bus carrying the Drum and Bugle Corps of the Three Oaks Sons and Daughters of the Legion Drum and Bugle Corps were met on their arrival in Battle Creek by Arthur Johnston of Buchanan and Herbert Flick of Three Oaks. They were taken to the Kellogg Food company plant where they were shown the process in manufacturing breakfast cereals. Each was treated to ice cream, cookies and cereal and was given a package containing several small containers of cereal.

They were then taken to the American Legion club for lunch, and from there to the point of beginning of the parade. After the parade they returned to the Legion club for supper. After that the band played several selections on the street and several more in the lobby of the Post Tavern hotel, where again large groups of people gathered about and commented on their fine playing and appearance.

The group was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swartz, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zupke, Mrs. Tom Burks and John Elbers en route on the busses. Both bus drivers commented on the fine conduct of the Buchanan band. Legion members who assisted in arrangements in Battle Creek were M. H. McKinnon, Lloyd Shire, Harold Stark, Claude McGowan, and Arthur Johnston.

The American Legion of Buchanan wishes to thank all who helped in any way to send the band to Battle Creek, and also to state that if any or all of the donors could have seen the local boys and girls and the reception they received they would have been satisfied that their gifts went to a good end. Business men and others who gave were: E. C. Hoffman, John Jerue, Buchanan Progressive Association, City commission, Buchanan Co-ops, Inc., St. Joseph Valley Creamery, Fabiano, Wilson Dairy, Charles Babcock, L. O. Swen, M. L. Hanlin, Lions Club, J. F. Russell, Union State Bank, Geo. Chubb, M. Kelling, D. DiGiacomo, J. Roti Roti, Cress Watson, Robert Reamer, Claude McGowan, Mrs. McLean, Miss Marjorie Lamb, Leonard Wood, American Legion, Clark Picnic fund.

Returning local Legionnaires stated that they were fully satisfied in other features of the convention, although their candidate for state commander, Art Clarke of South Haven, was defeated for the office by W. B. Haldrup. Although Buchanan worked hard for Clarke, the local Legionnaires stated that they were convinced that a capable commander had been elected. The state convention will be held at Escanaba in August, 1939.

Harry Banke is leaving today for Kaleva, where he will again teach history, speech and the social sciences in a consolidated high school.

Financier Develops Picturesque Farm

Replica of First Covered Bridge In Indiana

Reconstruct Old Church Near Buchanan

E. M. Morris Restores Bits of Early America on St. Joe River Estate

Reconstructs Old Church Which He Attended in Youth at Teegarden, Ind.

Nestling among the groves of his 500 acre estate on the south side of the St. Joseph River east of the E. B. Clark home E. M. Morris, chairman of the Board of the First Bank and Trust Company of South Bend and director of the Clark Equipment company, has installed some interesting bits of early America, including a replica of the old church he attended as a boy in Indiana, now nearing completion.

Morris has been building up his holdings there during the past eight years but has carried on the above developments only during the past three years. His estate consists of all of the old Fie farm, the Ives farm, part of the Neib estate, and the northern ends of the E. B. Storms and Metzgar farms. The whole contains 2 1/2 miles of St. Joseph frontage, and about 70 acres of virgin hardwood timber. In addition he has planted 100 acres with about 100,000 evergreens, including a number of varieties of pines, spruces and arbutus vites. He has also set out small groves of Chinese Elms, Walnut and Tulip trees.

Although he erected a beautiful house and barn as the central headquarters several years ago and has gradually added many structures since, none have attracted attention as much as the church now being built. It is a copy of the old Dunkard "Central Meeting House" which he attended as a boy at Teegarden, Ind. He first received the idea from the discovery on his farm of the old pioneer cemetery which contains the graves of many of the pioneers of the section. By the old Teegarden church had been the cemetery on land deeded by his grandfather, and known as the "Morris cemetery." He decided to investigate to see whether he could secure the old structure and move it. He found that it had been torn down but he was able to locate the original pews, the bible and twelve coal oil lamps with tin reflectors which he brought here to furnish the structure. The main part of the church is copied exactly after the church of his boyhood, except for the addition of a tower to give the building a more "churchified" look. The tower is a replica of that of St. John's church, Richmond, Va., where Patrick Henry uttered his famous "liberty or death" speech. Across the lane from the church a parking ground is in course of construction. The pews are divided in the middle in the old Dunkard fashion, according to which the women sit on one side and the men on the other.

Restores Niles Blacksmith Shop Another restoration is an old farm blacksmith shop, part of the equipment of which is that of the old Nels Peterson shop of Niles. This includes the old forge and handbellows. An electric blower and other equipment of a modern shop have been installed, but the old hand bellows is available so that friends of Mr. Morris, when they visit the shop, may hear them roar and blow the sparks in the old time way. In charge is a veteran blacksmith, Ed. Kleckner, formerly of Warsaw, who acted as instructor in horse shoeing in a training camp during the World War. Kleckner does all the shoeing of the Morris saddle horses, and all of the other farm work and also some custom work for the nearby farms.

Following the winding turns of the eight miles of gravelled roads. Here and there along the river and through the forest on the eight miles of gravel roads and the fifteen miles of bridle trails are many other interesting bits, including a restoration of a beaver dam, an old sugar camp which is used each spring, a flagstaff on "Lookout Point" where a fine view over the state and two miles up the river is available. Most interesting is "Red Horse Inn" at which is the old E. B. Storms farm residence done over into a restoration of an early inn, with a fire place adorned with a beautiful screen made by Blacksmith Kleckner, and furnished in an imitation of early American style. Here on winter days the parties of horse-back riders may tie their horses at the rail in front and build a fire to warm up, or cool off in summer as the care may be.

B. G. U. Sorority To Finance Dental Work for Pupils

In order to assure dental aid to those junior and senior high school students who might not be able to finance such care themselves, the B. G. U. Sorority has assumed the task of raising funds to finance this worthy cause. Beginning last year, the sorority, with Mrs. Reba Lamb, school nurse, and local dentists cooperating, succeeded in financing dental care for several advanced pupils who do not share in the free dental service given lower grades in the local schools. An extension of this service is being planned for the coming school year and the first activity in this connection will be a rummage sale by the sorority to be held this Friday and Saturday in the Desenberg building on Front street, formerly occupied by Fay's Smoke House.

Money for dental care is either given or loaned the pupil needing such care. Their activities are confined to pupils of junior and senior high school and to those recommended by the school nurse.

Accidental Gun Shot Injures Boy

Robert Metzgar, Summerville, was injured by a gun shot wound while boating with a group of young people from Niles on the St. Joseph river Sunday afternoon, a local physician being summoned. One of the young people accidentally struck a loaded .22 rifle which laid in the boat, discharging it. The bullet went through the fleshy part of the boy's leg, but the wound was not serious.

Strayer Honored on Anniversary

Physician Completes 25 Years of Service in Same Office and Offices at Over 2,000 Births

An event of no little interest occurred Monday evening with the party given at the Quin Waters farm honoring Dr. J. C. Strayer on the completion of 25 years of professional service to the Buchanan community.

An interesting fact is that he has remained in the same office at 113 1/2 Main street during the entire period. He came here and opened the office Aug. 24, 1913, a young doctor fresh from the medical department of the University of Michigan and a year's internship at the West Penn hospital at Pittsburgh, Pa. In the following winter he was married to an attractive and capable young nurse whom he had met in the Pittsburgh hospital and who is still Mrs. Strayer.

For a time he performed his ministrations to the community afoot until he was able to invest in a Ford, so he cannot be exactly considered a "horse and buggy" doctor. During the 25 years he has been attending physician at the birth of over 2000 babies of the Buchanan community, including some of the second generation, and has performed numberless other ministrations and services.

Clever features of the dinner party were the tongue depressors used as place cards with clever art work by Miss Bernetta Andrews of Pittsburgh, a guest at the Strayer home, and the following verses written for the occasion by a patient:

Twenty-Five Years of Service
For twenty-five years he has practiced

A code we all might well use
Of service unselfish and faithful
This Doctor, so loyal and true.

No matter how bitter the weather,

He hurries to answer your call;

No matter how rich or how poor,

He gives the same service to all.

Right here in Buchanan alone.

He has used the very same office

While steadily his practice has grown.

The babies who owe to this Doctor

Their well being here on this earth

Are numbered by scores and by hundreds

By the doctor who helped at their birth.

And some of those very same babies

Who to men and to women have grown

Have called on this same faithful Doctor

When looking for one of their own.

Our greetings to you, Dr. Strayer,

Who has served us for twenty-five years.

All Buchanan extends its best wishes

For such service we give you three cheers.

—A Patient.

Softball

By JOHN SCHULTZ The softball teams have been taking part in the sectional tournament, at Niles during the past week. Thus there has been no games played at the athletic park. There are two Buchanan teams left in the tournament. The Dry Zero and Phillips 66 tens are still in the thick of the battle. The Dry Zero ten has won two games in the tournament. Both of their victories have been over Buchanan teams. They eliminated the Future Farmers by the score of 7 to 3. Their other victory was over Bakertown. This score was 14 to 1. Phillips 66 has one victory to their credit this was over the Elks of Niles. They won out in the ninth inning 8 to 7. Tuesday night August 23 Dry Zero meets the Sawyer Auto Sales ten. Phillips 66 next test is Rutherford of Niles and what a test it is. These teams battled it out in Buchanan once and a fifteen inning tussle took place. Two real pitchers will battle in this game. Niles Sensation of the year Irving Eberwagon will pitch against Buchanan's Ace Bill Freehling. Other Buchanan teams scores were: Presbyterian Church forfeited to Sawyer. Gnodtke lost to Dickow's from Gallen 13 to 7. Clark's beat Three Oaks Legion 8 to 5 in eleven innings. Then they lost to Rutherford. Boyce lost to Kellogg's from Cassopolis 6 to 0. Poorman's lost to Troost's 9 to 1. The Foundry lost to the Hoosier Beer ten from Niles 7 to 3. When the tournament is done as far as Buchanan teams are concerned play will continue at the Athletic Park with five rained out games and then the city series. Two teams are tied for first place in each league. Poorman's and Clark's are tied in the American League, while Phillips 66 and Boyce are tied in the National League.

Hollywood Installs An Ozone Machine Hay fever addicts who haven't the time or the money to escape northwards can nevertheless get relief henceforth by attending the Hollywood theatre where Manager E. C. Hoffman installed an Ozone machine yesterday. This device has the recommendation of state medical authorities and of noted health authorities as affording relief for hay fever, asthma and sinus trouble and also as generally reconditioning the air. It is warranted to keep all odors and germs from the air of the theatre, and will be a genuine safeguard to the patrons against infectious diseases. A recent editorial in Colliers has the following to say of the principle: If you could see the air laden with disease germs and foulness, human excreta, exhaled by the hundreds housed together in churches, schools, theatres, factories, stores, restaurants, office buildings . . . you would add your voice to the multitudes demanding that . . . all places of amusement at once adopt the only known and certain means of air purification—OZONE. The ozone machine installed in the Hollywood changes the air in the building from O2 to O3, which makes the oxygen highly active, and ensures 100% germ-free air.

Straub Herd High In U. S.

Gallen Dairyman Rates as Most Consistent Producer Over Stretch of Years Rated as operating the most consistent high producing herd in the nation is the record held by a Michigan dairyman, Doan Straub of Gallen. Other herds have beaten his Holsteins in some years, but these other records fail to show the consistency of herd averages recorded for the Straub animals. In 1932 he had 12 cows averaging 629.8 pounds of butterfat in 12 months, a national record. It's a family proposition, for Mrs. Straub is an active part of the management of the herd. For the 12 years, according to figures in the office of A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College, the herd has averaged 549.54 pounds of fat for each animal milked. In 1937 the figure of 550.1 pounds was third high among Holstein herd averages in the United States. At the start the Straub herd included grade cows until some suitable purebred females were found. The Straubs then began to use a testing association and refused to keep animals that would not deliver at least 400 pounds of butter fat in a year as two-year-olds. All feeds are homegrown except soybean oil meal. Heavy alfalfa feedings and some silage make economical rations fed out in very efficient but moderate cost buildings. From this record, however, sales have placed animals in 25 locations in Michigan and even more than that in northern Indiana.

Everywhere one looks you see somebody in distress. I saw one little boy dressed in clothes white as snow. But he slipped and fell right in the middle of this mess; And if his mother knew him then, I'd surely miss my guess. I tried to deliver my magazines. And did after several attempts. It doesn't matter who you are. It seems no one is exempt. I tried to go after groceries. But such a time, gee whiz; Everytime I'd get on my bike and get started

The reading room, in the church at Dewey Avenue and Oak street is open each Wednesday afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock. Christian Science Churches "Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 28. The Golden Text, (Mic. 5:2), is "Thou, Beth-lehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall be come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." Among the Bible citations is this passage (Isa. 9:6): "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with key to the Scripture," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 583): "Christ. The divine manifestation of God, which comes to the flesh to destroy incarnate error."

Methodist Episcopal Church Thomas Rice, Minister Sunday School at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Glenn Haslett and Mr. Con Kelley superintendents. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. The special music is in charge of Mrs. Claude Jennings, who has asked Miss Dorothy Thompson, Mrs. Harold Stark, Mr. John Strayer to sing. Sermon subject: "Labor's Rights and Rewards." Thought for today. Charles C. Selemcan newly elected Methodist bishop gives us this challenging thought: "The last place where men look for the secret of failure is in themselves."

"We are warned to avoid two extreme errors: one, to expect wonderful works from above without human cooperation; the other, to attempt the impossible without divine assistance. If we attempt great things for God, we should expect great things of God."

And then I'd hit that oil. Everytime I did the wheels slid. And I'd land in that filthy oil. I bent my basket almost beyond repair. It really makes me mad enough to pull somebody's hair. My mother said, "for heavens sake you surely are a sight." That oil, that oil, it surely is a sight. I'll tell you what I'd like to do. And I know you'll say aye, too. That's get one of these city Dads on that bike of mine. Then start him down the street; And follow right behind. To see him loop the loop would surely be a treat. I thought after that first oiling they'd had enough of it. For its ruined rugs and clothing and everything in town. And after going down the street one looks more like a clown. Oh! Well, if we were colored folks it wouldn't be so bad. But as it is it really makes us mad.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

By HAWES
CHAPTER 30

To see Paris was more than any exposition, but since the International Exposition was on there, it seemed fitting to at least look in on it, and draw a few comparisons between it and the Chicago fair of 1893-94.

The Paris fair lay along the Seine river on the other side from the Louvre and the Champs-Elysees, with the great Eiffel tower centering the grounds. I am no exposition fan and a half day and evening were plenty. Most memorable were the throngs of visitors in all garbs of the civilized and uncivilized world as well. The general differences between the Paris and Chicago fair were, illustrative of the difference between the European and the American genius.

The Paris fair was far superior architecturally to the Chicago fair and its general plan embodied more of the classic and accepted architecture than did the more modernistic layout at Chicago. To the lay eye at least it was less bizarre, and far more pleasing. The great fountain in the court of nations with its flashing of colored waters at night was lovely, and the arrangement of structures about it was superb.

Most striking of all were the great Russian and German buildings. With an eye to contrast and possibly to promotion by rivalry the two buildings faced each other across the Court of Nations. Their structure suggested opposition. The Russian architecture was the most striking and dynamic on the grounds. With a main view of advertising the progress of the Soviets, the structure was designed to represent the idea of a forward rush of motion and it accomplished this in a powerful manner. In height it retreated in setbacks to the rear, but the lines of each level were projected forward to the front and topping the forward and highest level were two gigantic figures, a man and a woman worker, each carrying the hammer and sickle of the soviet emblem and each so imbued with forward motion that they seemed ready to leap the intervening space to the opposite German structure.

The German structure was equally impressive in architecture although hardly so dynamic in design. It matched the Russian design in a group of powerful, gigantic figures in front, military in character and exactly facing the Russian figures. The front was a modernistic tower, surmounted by a great Nazi symbol.

In the inner displays neither the German nor the Russian building were especially striking. In the German structure the American was oppressed by the eternal repetition of the Hitler motif. In the Russian the entire display was a not very successful demonstration of the progress of the Soviets in industry. There was every conceivable kind of device and machine, including railway engines, trucks and motor cars. In the case of the autos, even to a mechanical ignoramus like myself there was a lack of the smart finish of the American makes. They did not look as efficient as an American machine. And everywhere to an oppressing degree was the idea of advertisement of Soviet advance in endless repetition of placards and banners. There was no idea of letting the machines speak for themselves.

It may be that I am not a fair judge, as the endless wilderness of a great display soon bores me and a half hour was my limit. Much more convincing to me were the lovely displays of lace, fabrics, rugs, furniture and other hand-made objects of domestic art in the Belgium building, the finest I saw. There was also an immense display of diamonds in the Belgium structure, but the women were crowded so thick about it that I could not have got near if I had cared to. I hunted up the American building and found an empty shell, only the exterior completed and no chance of a finished exhibit until late in the fall. In fact the entire exposition has been carried over until the present summer.

It seemed useless to attempt to see all of the national exhibits, and I went to the general science and industrial displays. In these departments their exhibits were far short of the Chicago fair. There was nothing to even remotely compare with the tremendous demonstration of modern scientific marvels that the Chicago fair furnished. Their demonstration machines were crude and cumbersome in comparison. Their displays of advance in transportation were pitiful compared with the great displays in the General Motors and Ford buildings in Chicago. There was nothing to match the Chicago display of railway advancement or the "Wings of a Century."

If this display fairly represented European advancement then the supremacy of America in practical science and especially in all departments of transportation was demonstrated to be overwhelming.

This was in fact the basic difference in the two displays. In static art, in architectural magnificence the Century of Progress Exposition fell far short of the Paris International. But throughout the latter one missed the moving dynamic quality of the Big Chicago show. It was evident even in ways of getting about. There was only a sort of long low open motor bus but there were only a few of them and not many rode in them. Everybody walked. They are used to it in Europe.

So late in the afternoon I quit the displays and all interiors and sat down at the side of the great pool in the court of nations. The position of Paris as the international city was evident. The great Belgium building would have held all the genuine foreign displays that were to be seen at Chicago, with room left over. The position of the city as crossroads of the world was evident in the garb of the crowd. Men and women of all nations, all hues, all garbs and all languages were to be seen everywhere.

But the great thing to be carried away was the magnificent architectural picture. I stood at the foot of the court and looked up the great arrangement of buildings, dominated by the architectural hostilities of the German and Russian displays. Far at the upper end, up long flights of steps, was a tower and on it glimmered a light. It was to represent the "Star of Peace." But, envisaged between militant Nazi and Soviet groups it looked far, remote, feeble.

There was none of the brilliant, changing panorama of light that was to be seen at Chicago after sunset, nor any such pageant of light as the lighting of the system from a star. The lights were quiet, unchanging and lit up the quieter lines of the architecture in soft, indirect glows. The colored lights of the great pool presented the only change as they flashed in brilliant and lovely designs.

There was no honky-tonk, no midway full of hovey, no shoddy array of foreign products made in Chicago—also no glitter and dash of pulsating life.

Instead Europe was there—finished culture, loveliness of art, mechanical clumsiness, a longing for peace dwarfed by towering international hatreds.

At a reasonably early evening hour I left the grounds, caught the right bus going the wrong way, got off and took one en route the opposite way and went to my hotel. I had seen the Paris International Exposition and it was quite the duller thing I saw in Paris.

Charles Mutchler started his Bartlett pear harvest the first of the week. He reports a fair crop of very good quality.

"Sleeping Sickness" Declines

At the Bert Mitchell farm the horse affected has recovered and others have been vaccinated. It is reported that not all kinds of live stock afflictions sometimes referred to as "sleeping sickness" are epidemic.

Bumble Bees on Rampage
The bumble bees and the "bald-faced" hornets are especially thick this year and have been making trouble for the farmers who have been doing summer plowing with horses. They make their nests in the ground and object to their being disturbed by plows, attacking the horses and drivers. One hired man was so badly stung he was obliged to quit for the day.

Glendora Wilks Sawyer Nine 7-1
With Vic Hartline pitching for the Wolverines they won the baseball game last Sunday. Glendora's catcher was Styburski. There were quite a few changes made in the lineup. Prentker played right field, E. Hartline played first base, R. Paul played 2nd base, and D. Standard played short stop.

The Wolverines were going strong. Prentker made a three bagger, P. Sexton made a two bagger and to top it all off E. Hartline made a home run. The first to be hit this year in the Wolverine ball park.

Sawyer didn't make any runs until the first of the ninth. Bob Knight came in for the one and only run.

Glendora had 14 hits off the pitching of Wreiger, their catcher was Miller. While Sawyer only made 4 off the pitching of Hartline.

With some snappy playing by the Wolverines fielders and with V. Hartlines ability to "strike them out" Glendora held down Sawyer's hits.

The box score was Sawyer, 1 run, 4 hits, and no errors. Glendora 7 runs, 14 hits and 1 error.

The next game will be played Sunday, August 28 at Glendora with the East Side All Stars from South Bend, Indiana.
