Editor Wiggins of the Gledorrey Bugle sez the kin allus tell when he prints a piece the's fair to both sides—it don't suit neither.

The rite of free speech is sumpthin' like the rite to carry a shotgun—it don't mean that it pays to be shootin' off in all directions all the time. Sum fellers seem to think the rite to talk and the necessity of talkin' all the time are one an' the same thing.

How Do You Say It?
Myself, a plain, oldfashioned egg incline to call the city Prague; But others say I've slipped a cog And that the proper way is Prague, And other purists chew the rag Insisting that it should be Prague But high brows give us all the hah.

Referring to the town as Praha.

Publishes in National Magazine

The following graceful verses by Dr. E. T. Waldo were given a place of honor under a beautiful frontispiece photograph of the October copy of Osteopathic, national organ of the American Osteopathic Association published in Chicago:

Evening
By E. T. Waldo, D. O.
Last night I saw the sunset sky,
Large fleecy clouds went floating by Like ships that from their piers had fled
To sail on seas of gold and red.

Tonight I saw the bright moon rise,
The earth became a paradise
With silhouetted elm and pine
Against a gay horizon line.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kauffman arrived yesterday for a short visit at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Harry Post. They are on their way to their home in Seattle, Wash., from Grand Rapids, where they had been visiting the former's parents.

Late Corn and Potatoes Lag

No Frost Yet; 38 Above Zero
On Sept. 20 is Low
Mark of Season.

Warm weather during the latter part of September favors the development and maturity of late corn and potato crops in the Buchanan district, no frost having been experienced to date, with 38 above on Sept. 20 the lowest temperature.

Last week the weather changed, following a cold and wet early September and late August, which had held back late corn. The warm weather of the last week has hastened maturity. Corn is practically out of danger on the light soils of the Portage Prairie district, but late corn in the heavier and colder soils north of Buchanan and in the Bend of the River need time yet.

Late potatoes still require about two more weeks before killing frost but are maturing fast.

Vegetation is unusually green for the end of September, the plentiful rains of late summer and the absence of frost having preserved the summer greenery with little change.

Burn Records Of State Bank

Papers of Defunct Bank to Be Burned Tonight at River
Street Plant

Something new in the way of autumnal bonfires will be held in Buchanan at 5 p. m. today when the records of the Buchanan State Bank will be burned in the furnace of the River street plant, a small truck load of papers constituting the fuel.

The act finally closes the existence of the bank and the trust which has been capably handled by Harry Boyce will be closed when he has sent an affidavit of the burning to the Circuit Court and has received from the court a discharge and a release from his bond.

The bank closed Oct. 16, 1931, almost seven years ago. During the interval a total of 75% of the assets have been paid back to the depositors, an unusual record for state banks.

Boyce has remitted all funds left in the trust to the county clerk of Berrien County, as follows: unproved claims, $148.49; checks unclaimed, $72.06; money for checks outstanding, $93.39. Any future redemption of checks must be made through the county clerk's office.

The records of the receivership are to be stored in the vaults of the former First National Bank, now the offices of the Farmer's Mutual Insurance company.

He explained how temperatures may be raised to 106 degrees to treat internal fever for the treatment of certain diseases. He also demonstrated the use of the electric needle in "bloodless surgery," showing how the force of atomic discharge from the point of a needle will sever flesh without direct contact with the needle. A piece of raw meat was used in the demonstration.

Lester Thiele Takes Own Life

Veterinarian Becomes Despondent When Wife Fails to Rejoin Him After His Release from Prison

Despondency because his wife did not keep her promise to rejoin him at the prison gates when he was released from the federal penitentiary at Chillicothe, O., on August 1 is credited with having been the reason of the suicide of Lester Thiele, 43, veterinarian ex-army officer, who died suddenly from a self-administered dose of chloral hydrate in his room at the Hotel Rex about 11 p. m. Thursday.

Ralph Jones of Galien had talked with Thiele shortly before, leaving his room about 10:30 p. m. At 11:10 p. m. his roommate, Francis Brennan, went to the room to go to bed and found Thiele on the floor, apparently dead. A physician was summoned who confirmed his death. An autopsy conducted by County Coroner Bernard Reiser the following day ascribed death to a self-administered dose of chloral hydrate.

Thiele had been drinking heavily for some time, while bemoaning the fact that his wife had not come to help him start anew as she had promised. He said that he had received a telegram from her on Tuesday preceding the Friday when he was released from prison, stating definitely that she would join him. Instead she went to Mexico and did not reply to numerous telegrams which he forwarded to her.

Thiele came to Buchanan about three years ago, opening an office and starting in practice as a veterinarian. He had previously been dismissed for alleged cause from service as a veterinarian in the regular army, where he had held an officer's rank. He constantly complained of alleged injustice in his dismissal and also constantly wrote in complaint to heads of departments under which he had worked.

Finally a year ago last spring he was placed under arrest by federal officers, who produced thirteen postcards which he had written to Secretary Henry Wallace of the Department of Agriculture and other federal heads, containing alleged defamatory matter and language constituting breach of federal mailing statutes. He was sentenced to a year at Chillicothe.

Mrs. Remington caught three, including the second largest weighing 11 pounds. The Buchananites, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Burks and Herb Beck, are still there and report that business is at its highest for the season.

B. H. S. Wins From Watervliet 18-7

Fourth Period Rally Gives Maroons Two Touchdowns
for Opening Victory

In the very first play, Olson, of Watervliet, was taken out of the game with a broken leg. It was a very close game up till the last quarter, when Buchanan showed its supremacy by scoring two touchdowns and winning 18-7. It was really a tough and tangle game, there were many penalties against both teams.

During the first quarter Letter made a very good gain, and by bucking the line they came very close to scoring, but lost the ball on downs. They came very close several times, but still failed to score.

By a series of passes and bucking the line Buchanan again had the ball within a few yards of the enemy's goal during the second period, and Simpson succeeded in breaking through for a touchdown. Their try for the kick was way low. Watervliet gained quite a bit of yardage in the second period, but failed to score.

In the third quarter Watervliet finally started functioning, they got the down by Buchanan's goal and put it over for a touchdown, they made their kick good, which gave them a one point lead. Buchanan just couldn't seem to get any place and Watervliet had possession of the ball most of the third quarter.

It looked as Buchanan's chance of winning had disappeared into thin air, but it seemed at the starting of the last quarter Buchanan had suddenly decided it wanted to win. They took Watervliet off guard and marched the ball within a few yards of their goal, and Simpson again succeeded in going over for a touchdown. They again missed the kick for the extra point. Buchanan soon got possession of the ball again, and marched the ball down to Watervliet's goal, before they could recover from the last attack. This time Beadle got through the line by some very good running for Buchanan's third touchdown of the game. In the last minutes of the game Topash intercepted a pass, and Buchanan again started marching to the enemy's goal, but the ending of the game saved Watervliet from further embarrassment.

Buchanan looked very good for their first game. They succeeded in doing something that last year's team failed to do, and there are chances of this year's team really going places.

Between halves the Buchanan Band marched and played the school song, and made a very good showing with their new uniforms.

Patricia Ann, Bruce and Virginia Kelly, children of Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Kelly, attended a supper party honoring the fourth birthday of their cousin, Ann Elizabeth Andrus at the latter's home in South Bend, Monday.

Trend of Voting in Michigan Defeats All Tax Increases

Buchanan taxpayers followed the tide of disapproval for increase of levies in the face of unfavorable economic conditions by snowing under the proposal to issue bonds for a new school building by a vote of 532 to 175, or approximately 3 to 1 against.

The vote cast in percentages was: for 26% against 74%. The vote on the 4.8 mill levy was slightly larger, being 543 against and 187 for. Six ballots were spoiled.

The trend of the vote was forecast by many observers who noted the defeat of the county bond issue for courthouse and jail improvement by a 2 to 1 vote, and the defeat of building proposals recently in Sturgis, Cassopolis and Three Oaks.

While the question at issue may not have been generally understood in all its phases, the vote nevertheless clearly indicated that the return of fuller employment and of better financial conditions will be required to secure any popular endorsement of construction.

Old-Timers Had Trade Secrets

In early times cities strove with each other for the leather trade, as they did for the lace trade, when hand-made lace was in great demand at fabulous prices. Tanners were encouraged to find new processes by which a fine new leather could be produced. The formula was kept secret and the product was put upon the market under the name of the city in which it was produced. Thus trade secrets are as old as industry and tanning is among the oldest industries.

HOLLYWOOD

Wife Kisses Pal; Hubby Looks On—Gloria Dickson kissed an assistant of husband Perc Westmore on the cheek while Perc was watching. "Again—and press harder!" said Perc, who is head make-up man at the Warner Bros. Studio.

The idea was to test a lipstick Gloria was to wear in "Racket Busters," coming to the Hollywood Friday and Saturday. "I'd rather have it on my own cheek, but I wanted to see it directly as it would appear on a man's cheek, and not in a mirror," Perc explained.

Gene Reynolds Portrays Robert Taylor As a Boy—Gene Reynolds, who plays Robert Taylor as a boy in "The Crowd Plays," coming Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, was born in Cleveland, O. A natural talent for acting was encouraged by his parents. After eight years of stage training, Reynolds received his first motion picture experience making commercial talking films in Detroit. He moved to California with his family a year ago and was appearing at the Pasadena Community Playhouse when Director Clarence Brown discovered him. Reynolds recently scored in "Of Human Hearts," "In Old Chicago" and "Madame X".

San Pedro Natives Rub Their Eyes at Sight of Film Ship—Natives of San Pedro, California, awoke one morning recently to find the breakwater at Los Angeles harbor swarming with people, and odd-looking boats, manned by strangely-dressed sailors, maneuvering out to sea to greet the big freighter "Fortuna".

Closer inspection revealed that the motley-garbed crowd cheering the ship's arrival was within range of batteries of cameras and microphones. The enthusiasm over what ordinarily would be just the sight of another ship steaming into port was whipped up by Director William Dieterle's staff for scenes in Walter Wagner's production, "Blockade," the romantic drama of war-torn Spain currently co-starring Madeline Carroll and Henry Fonda at the Hollywood Wednesday and Thursday.

The vessel, in real life the "Ernest H. Meyer," but renamed "Fortuna" for story purposes, was supposed to be a relief ship bringing food to inhabitants of a war-stricken city on the Mediterranean. One-hundred Latin type extras welcomed the ship—and thousands of curious spectators joined in the excitement back of the cameras before the day was over.

Rhine River Camouflaged—The mighty Rhine river, flowing through half of Europe, is camouflaged when it reaches Holland. The traveler need not ask, when in Holland, where is the Rhine? Not even the natives know. The river branches into many outlets when it reaches Dutch soil and each outlet has been given an individual name, the Dutch being careful to avoid the use of "Rhine." The Waal is part of the Rhine, uniting the Maas, which is known in its southern course as the Meuse, and then on its way to the North sea is neither the Rhine nor the Waal, but the Maas.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

CHAPTER 54
By HAWES

Well, friends and neighbors, at long last I am shipping from Paris for old England.
With passport duly vised at the English legation, I bought a ticket by the most direct route from Paris to London, via Dieppe and New Haven. So help me, I can't remember what it cost me. The journey was to be made at night, this decision having been made after due weighing of the desirability of seeing the country en route or having more time in London. I decided in favor of the latter—and also I would save another hotel bill by spending a night on trains and boats.

Across the city I went by subway train in early evening to the Paris Nord depot, to take a train out about 8:30 p. m. There was a milling throng waiting for the train, mostly an English crowd going home from the International Exposition. Advantaged by not too much baggage and the remnants of youthful agility in my aging frame, I charged up the steps in advance of the crowd that dashed for seats like a bunch of shoats en route to the trough in an Iowa corn lot, clinching a seat in a small compartment. My companions in the apartment were three women. One was a generously-built lady whose looks evidenced more good nature than beauty. She sat beside me and the small seat opposite was taken by two young French ladies, chic, precise, oblivious. They immediately hauled out French magazines and retired behind them.

The lady beside me and I sized each other up and struck up a conversation. She was a French woman, a native of Paris, who had by some circumstance married a Welsh coal miner. It might have been a war romance—she was about that age.
She had taken advantage of the Christian Science Churches

"Unreality" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, October 2.
The Golden Text (Job 15:31) is: "Let not him that is deceived trust in vanity: for vanity shall be his recompense."
Among the Bible citations in this passage (Isaiah 41:11): "Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 480): "Where the spirit of God is, and there is no place where God is not, evil becomes nothing—the opposite of the something of Spirit."

Then as suddenly as it had started the storm died down; the two dames slumped back in their seat behind their magazines, never through the whole incident casting as much as an embarrassed glance at their compartment companions. The French are like that.

As usual, the seats of the third class compartments were none too comfortable and I was dead tired. I went to sleep and remained so until I felt some one shaking me and awakened to find the two dames gone and my friendly seatmate standing over me.

"It's time to take the boat," she said. Whereon there was another of those mad dashes through the dark, through corridors of customs officers, with submission of passports, and then scaling of gangplanks and stumbling down steep stairs into the third class boat compartment. Those two ferry voyages across the North sea and the English channel in the night were not pleasant experiences, and the latter was the worst. Even in August it is miserably cold on those northern waters at night. There were no seats for us in any cabin or salon and for over an hour I tried to make myself comfortable on a bench on the deck. The wind drove across the ship and the spray ever and anon dashed over the deck. Two young couples had preempted the only comfortable place on deck, snuggling down in a warm nook next to a smokestack.

Finding no warm place or anyone to snuggle with, I finally picked up my baggage and went down to a dining-room, with a forbidden sign to third class passengers. I saw some of my train companions comfortably parked there nevertheless, so I drew up two over-stuffed chairs and stretched myself comfortably. They never do more than throw you out and they didn't.

Again in the dim dawn I was awakened by another stampede, and I dragged out on board to see dimly the white chalky cliffs of old Albion. (England to you) Again we stampeded down a gangplank and raced for seats in a waiting train. Then we started across the rough southern downs of England—a country at first of pastures and sheep, almost as rocky and bare as Wyoming, but with little English cottages nestling here and there and crooked hedge-rows typical of England. I saw nobody in the train, keeping my face glued to the window. Many a night down through the years I had dreamed I was in England, sometimes so vividly that in my sleep I would say: "It can't be a dream this time." Then suddenly the seeming substance would dissolve like morning mists on a Swedish river. But this time it was really not a dream.

It was not long—really surprisingly soon, when the houses began to grow thicker and the train sped for a long time between ever-thickening houses, the great, sprawling environs of London. Here over a great expanse lived Greater London's ten million. At last the train swung over a bridge across a river and stopped at a tremendous depot—Victoria Station on the southern edge of the business section of the city. Like a person in a dream I threaded the throngs through the great depot, about 5:30 a. m. Dead tired, wolfishly hungry (perhaps you're not interested but try it yourself, partner) I headed for the railway restaurant reckless of expense.

The sign said "Very reasonable prices." As a matter of fact I got an excellent breakfast for two and six or two bobs and sixpence—Oh well 62 1/2 cents. In spite of all I had heard about English cookery it was plentiful and well cooked—or may be I am not a judge. The waiter did want to give me tea.

I then began my usual procedure of parking my baggage and going after a room. I found the parcel department and deposited my two grips on the counter. The man in charge was a glum, morose chap and I imagined the sight of that Swedish-American steamship placard on one grip deepened his frown.

"It'll be six pence" he said. "Now or when I get my baggage back," I countered, with what possibly sounded like American flippancy. He turned and gave me a silent, poisonous look, and then grabbed both grips and slammed them violently on a truck. If there had been any glassware inside it would have fared worse than the French dames' wine bottle.

It was a poor start, but one of the very few instances of discourtesy I met in great sprawling, crowded England.

That done I undertook step No. 2. I asked a policeman if he could direct me to a respectable but cheap hotel. That was my first experience with the famed London "Bobbies," all tall stalwart men with lofty helmets that increase their gross altitude to about seven feet. I found them then and afterwards the soul of courtesy and helpfulness.

There's a little place on Grosvenor street, just about behind the depot where you can get bed and breakfast for six and six," he said, "It's perfectly all right."

Six and six meant six shillings and six pence. In the event that you don't remember, a shilling is almost exactly equivalent to a quarter and there's twelve pence in a shilling so six and six meant about $1.62 1/2. Plus of course 10% or about 16 cents. That was certainly reasonable enough. Let me add a word here about European currencies. In the first place, I see no reason in having any trouble. I don't pretend to be a mathematician but I was rarely in doubt as to what I was paying. But I heard the most outlandish stories, of expenses and finally figured that too many tourists never fully worked out the difference between the foreign currencies and their own. Eating prices are terrible in Berlin, they said—coffee costs 80 cents. It doesn't cost 80 cents, but at the best restaurants along Unter Den Linden a pot of coffee and coffee cake will cost 80 pennies (pfennig). The German penny is one hundredth of a mark, which is about equivalent to 40c in our money, which makes the pot of coffee and serving of coffee bread, a very satisfactory and complete breakfast, about 32c. Food prices were indeed higher in Berlin.

With similar disregard for accuracy they mistranslated the Swedish crowns, worth 27c, into dollars. Fruit is terribly high in Sweden, they would say for a box of strawberries costs 90 cents. What they really cost was 90 ore, one ore being the hundredth part of a crown, which was worth 27c last year, 26c this year. Such mistakes in reports bandied between tourists were so common as to constitute extensive misrepresentation.

I went around the depot by a side street to No. 36 Grosvenor and rang the doorbell. A pleasant-faced lady came to the door. "My rooms are all let," she said, "but there's a good place at No. 40, just two doors along, where a man was to leave this morning and perhaps you can get it. There's a great scarcity of rooms because this is Bank Holiday and everybody who lives in London leaves town and everybody outside London comes in."

I rang at No. 40 and a lady not quite so prepossessing came. She hesitated, then admitted she had a room.

"How much?" I inquired. Again there was just a slight hesitation as she gave me a quick once over.

"Seven and six" she said. I knew the prices along that row were generally six and six, but I took it, was shown to a small but pleasant room and took a two-hour nap. I was awakened by music outside the window—the strains of "The Isle of Capri." A street singer, a man good-looking, fairly well dressed, was singing and accompanying himself on an accordion. A small world, eh, what? as we English say.

News of Buchanan Schools
Collected and Edited By Members of the Journalism Class

F. F. A. News

The new Future Farmers members were initiated Thursday, September 22. They had to wear farm clothes to school including a straw hat. They also had to have a string around their necks with a red corn cob on one end and a white corn cob on the other end. Each boy had to have a gourd or a squash to carry around school all day.

The old members thought this wasn't enough initiation, so they made the new members respond to whatever they were told to do. The new members didn't mind this last act at all, especially sitting with a girl.

Final touches to the initiation were given Thursday evening when all members met in the agricultural rooms.

The Future Farmers' Club went to the Hartford Fair Wednesday, September 14. There were 31 boys who attended.

The boys had the pleasure of judging grain, apples, and stock.

In order to raise some money, the boys are selling football pins with the word, "Buchanan," on them. They are also selling pencils with the year's football schedule neatly printed on them, and they have charge of selling the season football tickets.

The boys want to publicly thank each and every person who has purchased one of these articles.

The boys' home economics class met last Friday morning. The boys nominated and elected officers. They are: Mark Heiney, President; Robert Wesner, vice president; Paul Ewing, secretary; Herbert Russell, treasurer.

The class will meet every other Wednesday. The name decided upon was "Magic Chefs." Many things are expected to be done in the near future to keep the name in the minds of the students.

HOBBYHORSEMEN

Collecting miniature dolls is Norma Yoder's hobby. It's an interesting one, we admit, but hard on the eyes. She started when a friend brought her some dolls from France, Belgium, and Italy. She now has about thirty, one of which is only one-half inch tall and has real hair on its head. It is supposed to be very old.

Norma also collects hotel and restaurant menus. One whole wall of her room is covered with them. We've heard of collecting hotel towels and silverware, but (being a bit unsophisticated) this is a new one on us.

B. H. S. WELCOMES NEW STUDENTS

This year, as of other years, Buchanan High School welcomes quite a number of new students. The freshman class boasts of twenty-four new comers. They are: Henry Aalfs, Marguerite Bliss, Genevieve Bunker, La Von Eagley, Ethel Good, June Hartline, Rita Hemminger, Marjorie Huss, LeRoy Larson, Lillian Letcher, John March, Don Marsh, Edward and Meryl Myers, Kenneth Olson, Francis Post, Richard Proud, Frieda Ryder, Esther Starr, Kathleen Stoner, Agnes Francis, LeRoy Wallquist, Marcelle Zenninger, and Myra Richter.

Additions in the sophomore class are: Cleo Myers and Richard Treiber.

New juniors: Paul Ewing, Nandor Patus, and Grace Spack.

New senior: Betty Widmoyer, a former Buchanan student.

NEW EQUIPMENT

The school has added a new stoker in the boiler room to its list of new equipment obtained during the summer. The list also includes fifteen new uniforms for the football squad. In the home economics room we find two new electric Hot Point stoves. Mr. Carter added a new meter, gas tube, and electrolysis apparatus to the physics laboratory equipment. In the orchestra we find two violas, two cellos, and two bass violas. The manual training department obtained no new equipment but is planning to acquire some at a later date.

THE QUESTION

Leading the cheering sections this year will be Donna Smith and Mary Louise Zupke. These girls will do much to bring the Buchanan school spirit off cold storage where it had been during the summer months. They will do their part. How about you, student body?

BEST BOOK OF THE WEEK
Buckaroo, by Fjeril Hess. It's a grand yarn about interesting people. Everybody, especially girls, should like it. A young school teacher goes to a Nevada ranch. Her work and play are fascinating.

JOTS AND TITLES

'Amazing fact: that a girl as feminine as Elaine Blancy should look so well in a tailored suit. God's gift to women: sheer stockings and short skirts.

Hard to understand: why the bookstore runs out of books so often.

Essence of something-or-other is the smell from the chemistry lab. It's awful!

Wonder what happened to the cat that wandered into the study hall one day. . . .

Something ought to be done about the girls who wear "peasant"-dresses. They were meant for the kitchen, not for school.

Most studious girl: Kathryn Hess. We're pale with envy thinking of all her A's.

The right hand bets with the left that Dick Hayden's brain looks like the works of a clock.

Billy Ednie must be popular. He was elected president of the junior class without even an opponent.

We'd like to tell a lot of the fellows to pick up their feet. . . . the shuffling in the hall sounds like a chain gang.

Hope: that we get more poetry. A la Dorothy Skinner. The gal's got what it takes.

Satellite: Lester Hanover of Dick Hayden.

Miss Krebs is popular among the boys.

Karl Kobe is taking French. We'd like to know why. . . .

Madame Hercules: Donna Smith.

Mr. Carter is a pessimist; he furnishes unguentine to the chemistry classes.

Incidentally Ralph Rosenberg is trying to start a dramatics club.

Why is Kelly so popular?

Beverly Koons thinks she looks like Louise Rainer.

Amazing how much more attractive high-heeled pumps are than low-heeled sandals.

Doesn't Mr. Carter look nice in his gray suit? We recommend a scarlet shirt to relieve the monotony.

Valentine Paul looks like Nicodemus of the funny papers, but where's the pet whale?

Wonder of the modern world: Vivian Carlisle has taken out only one library book since school started. Maybe she's slipping.

Funny how happy the teachers are since cameras and photographic equipment began to clutter up the halls.

POLLY'S CRACKS

Editor: Where in the world is that confounded parrot?

Polly: A-w-r-r-k-k On the dot, boss.

Editor: On the dot, my eye. And I've told you.

Polly: OK, OK, but school has just begun. I couldn't get much, but what I've got is sizzling. Wow!

Editor: I suppose you're right. Here, help yourself to these crack-ers.

Polly: Thanks.

Who was Louis Pascoe's student, or shall he say who was Bonnie Chain's teacher while learning to drive in Bakertown?

Is Don Longworth really playing second fiddle to a certain country girl?

Reservations for midnight parties at the cemetery may be gotten from Kenneth Herman.

What were the dynamic words Paul Ewing quoth to Betty Meyers?

Since Mr. Robinson put his foot down, maybe band members won't let the band down.

June Hartline made her date debut with Buddy Matthews at the first dance of the season.

Who was the mysterious Miss X Rex Proud escorted to the show on Sunday night?

Jack Leggett. . . .

Editor: Whoa, Polly, that's just about it. Three pages. Sorry, can't get anymore in this week.

Polly: OK, just as you say, but it was a good one.

Editor: No doubt, but take your crackers and keep your eyes peeled at the dance tomorrow night.

Polly: So long, a-r-r-w-k-k.

SNEEZES

The man who invented that old adage, "Birds of a feather flock together," should have seen the Microphone staff this last week.

BATTILING MUSKETEERS

"Where is Comers? Why isn't she ever here when we get the ball?"

"Hey! Richards! Come on and get a little action."

"Zupke! Crawl between the legs and kick that ball. You're small enough."

It's just "Cannonball" and her three teammates coming down the soccer field, and, boy, everybody has to duck!

More Barmaids in U. S. Than G. I.'s in College

Chicago.—There are more tavern hostesses and barmaids in the United States than there are young women registered in all the universities and colleges in the country, says Miss Maria Leonard, dean of women at the University of Illinois. Miss Leonard so informed the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

"Education in its constructive aspects is not keeping pace with the destructive forces," said Miss Leonard. "The enemies of youth have been more diligent than the friendly educators. The motives of the former have been profits and cash, while the motive of education has been a slow process of character building."

New York Farm Has Been in Same Family 200 Year.

New York.—Long-term single ownership of land is by no means non-existent in this country despite the fact that we have here the freest system of land transfer of any country in the world. In the current news is a 450-acre farm near Warwick, N. Y., the recent sale of which revealed that it had been owned by the same family more than 200 years.

The owner was Mrs. Julia Dekay Winans, whose Dekay ancestors bought the farm in 1734 in exchange for 60 acres of Manhattan land. An old rambling colonial homestead stands on the estate, which is said was held at $40,000.

Appoint New School Dentist

Dr. Fred Wertheimer, Frederick, Md., will take the place of the late Dr. E. E. Leachman, who did dental work in the public schools of Niles, Buchanan, St. Joseph and Benton Harbor; it was announced Saturday.

Dr. Wertheimer is expected to arrive in Berrien county next week, with his wife and 13-year-old son. They will make their home in Benton Harbor.

Dr. Leachman, before his death in July, had served the public schools of the four cities for the past 12 years. He was employed jointly by the school boards of the cities, to make dental surveys of the children, who then were referred to their family dentists when remedial treatment was required. Through arrangements with the rural school districts, Dr. Leachman also had devoted some time to rural school pupils.

Dr. Wertheimer, it is expected, will follow the same course of procedure as was used by Dr. Leachman. The two dentists were once workmates in Saginaw, Mich.

The health program in the rural schools, begun last year under sponsorship of the Berrien county chapter of the American Red Cross, is to be continued this year.

Last year's efforts were experimental, and started with a health survey of the entire rural school system. The survey was to be completed within a year, according to the schedule, but was interrupted for six weeks when vaccinations were needed to guard against smallpox. This year's program will be started in the schools where the survey was not completed last season.

Work has included testing of vision, and physical examinations. This year children's hearing will be tested by means of an audiometer, purchased recently by the county board of supervisors and made available to all the schools. The health program is being conducted by Miss Emma Arnold, county school nurse, and

They Don't Listen

Many New Dealers, unable to defend the President's waste and extravagance, his assault upon the legislative and judicial powers; who realize that, under him, industrial strife, strikes and unemployment have increased, that we are on the road to bankruptcy, say "Why don't you offer something constructive?"

They forget that, if a man is drowning, it is constructive to offer him a life preserver; that, if a house is burning, it is constructive to put out the fire.

They know, but they will not admit, that it is constructive to call attention to the President's reckless spending, to ask him to carry out the promises he made in the Democratic platform of 1932 and practice economy. That it is constructive to ask him to call off his Labor Board and let the wheels of industry turn. That it is constructive to ask him to break with John L. Lewis and his Communists and let honest men return to work for those who would employ them. That it is constructive to ask him to see, as his oath of office requires him to do, that the laws are enforced. That it is constructive to live within our income, to let manufacturers give employment to those who desire to work.

That it is constructive to ask for the amendment of the labor law, so that working men may organize without interference, not only from employer but from labor racketeer—so that they may bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing with those who, through all the years, have given employment and met payrolls. That it is constructive to suggest that the President forget his effort to establish himself as the ruler over Congress, the master of the Courts—his desire to be a dictator.

Yes, we have offered many constructive suggestions. But the New Dealers "Eyes have they, but they see not; they have ears, but they hear not."

They have made of Roosevelt a "graven image." They worship him. They have made of him an idol. He demands the defeat of all who oppose him, the unquestioning obedience of the people's servants, whom he would make his slaves.

Let us regain control of our governments; protect our schools, our homes, our country, by electing sane, sound and safe men to public office.

Sincerely yours,
CLARE E. HOFFMAN.

Eskimos Can Outbite Even Football Players

Minneapolis, Minn. — Football players and armchair invalids have teeth of almost equal strength. Neither is any match for an average six-year-old Eskimo girl; and the girl's parents bite twice as hard as she does.

Dr. Peter J. Brekhuis, professor of dentistry at the University of Minnesota, acquired the information with his gnathodynamometer, which is a mouthful.

Dr. Brekhuis' gadget with the tongue-twisting name, operating on a hydraulic principle, measures biting strength in pounds.

He said that 108 Minnesota athletes with an average weight of 176 pounds and average height of 6 feet bit an average 126 pounds each; 108 dental students with an average weight of 158 pounds and average height of 5 feet 9 inches, bit an average of 125 pounds each.

He lent the instrument to a research worker who took it to Alaska where it was discovered the average six-year-old Eskimo girl had a bite of 150 pounds and her parents went as high as 340 pounds.
