Make Headway On Construction

Pouring Concrete This Week on 20 Foot Wall of Digester
The firm of Haines & Haines of Dowagiac had completed installation of forms for the 20-foot wall of the digester tank of the sewage disposal plant and are now pouring concrete. The number of men employed has been gradually growing, 15 working last night, 20 this week, with prospects of the peak of employment during the next three weeks. All of the men employed are local with the exception of four foremen. The digger has started excavation for the main plant which will house the primary and secondary treatment tanks, the pump house and the three aerators. This structure will be 54x84 feet and will consist of six compartments each 26 feet square. The pump house will include the headquarters for the plant and will be the only building, with a glazed tile interior and red brick walls. The remainder of the structure will consist of tanks only slightly above the level of the ground. The digester tank, a circular structure with walls 20 feet high topped by a circular dome, takes care of the treatment of the solids after they are pumped from the secondary tank.

Maroons Defeat Cassopolis 18-0

Buchanan Takes Overhead Route to Pile Up Points
Buchanan kept their undefeated record by an 18 to 0 victory over Cassopolis last Friday afternoon. Cassopolis played very good football, even though they failed to score, but they couldn't seem to stop Buchanan's passing attack in the last half. Buchanan's first touchdown came in the last part of the second period, when Cassopolis fumbled while going around right end. Heckathorn recovered the ball and was off for the first touchdown. Both team's playing was about the same during the first half; neither gained much territory except for Buchanan's lucky touchdown. In the last half Buchanan started an aerial attack which Cassopolis couldn't seem to stop. In the third period Buchanan marched the ball down to the enemy's 15 yard line, when a short pass from Simpson to Letter went over for Buchanan's second touchdown. At the last part of the final period, Ingelright intercepted a short pass over center, and Buchanan promptly carried the ball down to the Cassopolis 1 yard line and Simpson went over center for Buchanan's final touchdown. Score by quarters: Buchanan 0 6 6 6-18 Cassopolis 0 0 0 0-0. The lineup follows: Cassopolis Pos. Buchanan Rickman LE W. Habicht Collins LT R. Habicht Haines LG Rotzien Zimmerman C Ingelright Jukadey RG Hamilton Merwin RT Heckathorn Jr. Rickman RE Heiney Cabell QB Topash R. Wooden LH Letter Davis RH Beadle Garner FB Simpson Officials: Referee, Clevenger; head linesman, Brenner.

Injuries Weaken Maroon Line-Up

Paw Paw Brings More Veterans; Encounter Will Be Acid Test Before Niles Classic
If the Buchanan grid team can successfully hurdle its third obstacle in the form of the Paw Paw team which comes here Saturday afternoon it will achieve the aim of Coach Miller to bring his proteges to the Niles game on Friday Oct. 14, with a clean slate. The Maroons disposed of the Paw Paw eleven rather easily last year, defeating it 36-0, but the visitors will bring more of their '37 letter men into the game than Buchanan will Saturday. Among other factors in Paw Paw's favor will be the absence of Hamilton and Rotzien, the two regular guards, temporarily out because of injuries. Coach Miller said that he might start a new man at right tackle. The only line Coach Miller had on the merit of the invaders was their 12-0 victory over Otsego last week. Year in and year out Paw Paw produces good teams. On the following Friday the Maroons will face a Niles eleven which lost its first game to Michigan City 20-0, its second game to Riley high 25-0, and which faces a severe test in its game with Benton Harbor this week. The fact that the game with Buchanan will be under the lights possibly favors the Niles eleven. The game with Paw Paw Saturday will begin at 2:30 p. m.

Trapp, Gene Kobe, Jean Dalrymple, Pete Liske, Arnold Herman, and Elwood Vergon. Several promotions were also made among members of the junior staff: Dick Habicht, troop scribe for several years past, was promoted to the office of senior patrol leader; Bob Donley, former patrol leader, was appointed scribe. The new Stag patrol leader is Bill Beardsley who will have Gene Kobe as his assistant. This promotion of junior leaders is in keeping with the new plan for concerted troop activity, promoted by the senior staff this fall.

Former Buchananite Writes of Life in Fighting Zone in China

Tells of Difficulties of Mission Education Under Japanese
The following letter, written by a former resident of Buchanan to a relative here, is reproduced as a vivid first-hand account of conditions in the Orient. August 17, 1938. Dear Harriet:— This has been a very different half year from the last, then we were in the center of fighting, now we are on an island shut off from the rest of China. Even here in the foreign settlements the Japanese encroach as far as they dare and only draw back when checked by the powers that be. They have taken over everything Chinese, the post office as far as censorship is concerned (this goes out another way), the customs, telegraph, radio etc. Schools are supposed to register, to teach Japanese, use Japanese published text books, teach no Chinese geography or history up to 1927. This spring we escaped by turning into an American school, flying American flags in the most conspicuous spots etc. How long we can get by, we do not know, but some of the above things we won't do. And so we go on from day to day not knowing what is coming. All our property is in the occupied areas—many of our buildings have been totally destroyed, all looted. The Japanese have vacated some of them so a few people (missionaries) have gone back to occupy them and so hold them from further quartering of soldiers. The Chinese in these cities who could not get away, or who have gone back are pathetically glad to see these people. There is not a great deal that can be done—clinics opened (our hospitals are two of them still in the hands of the Japanese. One of them being used as a fortress), refugee work, some church work (the Japanese preachers who have come to preach to the Chinese attend the services), some clubs and classes. We have decided that for the present we will not reopen our schools in the interior. There are many reasons for this—it is against Chinese policy, must be done absolutely on Japanese terms, helps reestablish the status quo, which is the last thing the Chinese want. So for the present at least we will depend on the irregular classes to do what little educational work is done. Behind the lines we find a different condition. There is a spirit of unity which has never existed before. Everyone is working for the winning of the war. Thousands of people have gone to the west and south. West from this part of the country, educators, business people, those in government circles as well as those who have been pushed along ahead of the army. The western provinces are being developed at an amazing rate. The Y. M. and church people have sent repeated calls for workers from this area to help with school, etc. for these people. We now have two leaders from our church investigating the ways in which we can cooperate in existing work. We are all spending our summer in Shanghai. No one could think of risking not getting back into the country. Fortunately it has been very pleasant for Shanghai, unbelievably so. Love to you both.

P. O. Site Agent Here on Business

Victor Burlingame, site agent for the federal postoffice department, was in Buchanan Tuesday conferring with local owners of prospective sites. He stated that no decision had been arrived at but that examination would be continued and there would be definite selection and construction as soon as possible. He stated that price as well as advantageous location would enter into consideration, as the total allotment for site and building had been set at $75,000 and an expensive site would necessarily diminish the money available for the building.

Around About Buchanan

Insurance Reliefs
John Kobe of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company has two relics of interest in the safe of his office in the old First National building. One is a policy written for Charles E. Gillette of Bertrand township in May 5, 1860, one of the original eighty policies required by law for the organization of the company. The policy represents the beginning of 78 years of continuous fire protection written for the Gillette family on the homestead now occupied by the grandson of the holder of the original policy, Charles E. Gillette, Jr. The first loss incurred during that period resulted from the fire which destroyed the barn there on the night of July 1, 1938. The payment by the Farmers' Mutual of a claim for damages of $2,731.27 for loss of the barn, livestock and produce is reported to have more than reimbursed the Gillette family for all premiums paid in during 78 years. The original policy was for $1,200 on the dwelling house, barn and grain, and was signed by the president, Michael Swobe, and the secretary, Reuben Groot. The other exhibit is a notice served on Charles E. Gillette on April 4, 1863, of an assessment of $2.04 to pay loss of $1,200 for a fire which destroyed the home of S. B. Broadbury in Niles township. The assessment was at the rate of 1.7 mills to the dollar and was made payable to John H. Hart of Bertrand township, secretary.

Famed for his beautiful and authentic historical illustrations, artist Norman Price was recently commissioned by The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company to create the "theme picture" for the 79th Anniversary Celebration of its A&P Food Stores which takes place during the month of October. Mr. Price's painting, now completed, faithfully portrays a waterfront scene typical of the year 1859—the year of

A&P's beginning in a little shop in Vesey Street of Old New York. It was in the early fall of 1859 that a high-masted sailing vessel carried to America's shores A&P's first stock in trade, a cargo of Canton teas brought from half way around the world. A&P began its business with that clipper ship cargo of tea.

In creating his A&P Anniversary "theme picture," Norman Price's skillful artistry of pen and brush was supplemented by a comprehensive, intimate knowledge of the subject. He spent many hours in research before the first line of the picture was drawn. Even after the composition was well worked out and the details carefully sketched, Mr. Price had an old sailor who had spent years "before the mast" check all details of the construction of the clipper ship and its rigging, so that every line would be technically accurate.

Gilbert's Store in New Quarters

Buchanan people who visit South Bend have been increasingly attracted recently to the beautiful modern building in which Gilbert's have re-established permanent quarters, on the site at 813-817 South Michigan street, where their former building was burned nearly a year ago.

Attention is first drawn to the handsome front of terra cotta and bronze. A canopy framed in bronze extends over the sidewalks and entrance. The firm name is displayed in cut-out bronze letters on the outer edge of the canopy and in a vertical neon sign extending over it. On either end of the canopy is the store's slogan: "One Man Tells Another."

The main entrance is flanked by two display windows for showing suits and coats. Two auxiliary windows extend from the sidewalk to the door for displaying men's furnishings. Smaller, recessed windows at either end of the front windows display hats.

Lighting Effective

The interior color scheme is soft yet effective for lighting. Soft tan walls are offset by a deep brown base. The ceiling is a shade which reflects the glow of indirect lighting over the walnut and bronze fixtures and the brick-red leather upholstery.

A neat appearance is achieved by the unique construction of false walls around the room. Piling of excess merchandise on counters and cluttering of the room with suit racks are eliminated by stock rooms hidden behind the parapet wall. The store is really a room within a room, with the passageway behind the parapet wall providing ample space for stock.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

CHAPTER 54 By HAWES

I'm not sure of the directions, but I think it was a bit down the street north from my small lodging house at Hyde Park corner that they were building fortifications and planting aircraft guns this past week.

There was very little war talk and no signs of war in London while I was there, any more than you would see and hear in Chicago. The only echo of European troubles were the wordy battles between the vendors of Communist and Fascist newspapers opposite Victoria station. Each evening they held forth a few rods apart. The Fascists sold a sheet called "The Black Shirt," and I forgot the name of the Communist publication. I bought copies of both for a chance to talk with the salesmen. Both were men—there seem to be no newsboys in Europe. Selling papers is an adult occupation over there. In the Scandinavian countries papers were sold mostly by women.

The Fascists I talked with in London were most snappy young men, cocky, self-assured, and (but that was likely my prejudices) almost offensive in their attitudes. The Communists were a milder lot, more of the workingman type, of the poorer classes from the East End. The first day (Saturday) I learned that there was to be a parade of Fascists across London into the East End, stronghold of Communists.

"We're going to have a little fun with them," said the young man selling "The Black Shirt." "I don't expect much roughing but we'll stir 'em up a little. They're strong over in the East End."

So I planned to take the trip with them, but the Sunday morning newspapers carried banner heads, "Police Ban Parades." There was no reference to this specific parade, but it was evident that it was designed to stop it. That night I talked with a Communist salesman, a short, shabby dressed specimen of English social maladjustments. He was angry about the police ban.

"They say they are coming it to stop the Fascists," he said. "But they know they're hitting us the most. We don't pull any rough stuff, our demonstrations are always peaceable like. It's the Fascists that get smart."

Anyway that was one parade I did not march with. It may have been as well, for when the police ban was lifted a few weeks later the Fascists marched across London and attempted to demonstrate in the East End, but the radicals there broke up the demonstration and laid out a number of Fascists by bouncing large rocks off them, including their leader, Sir Oswald Moseley.

I had another lucky break in getting to London when I did, for it was Bank Holiday, the only occasion in the year I was told when the English populace had two days holiday at a stretch. For the English people in the London district were working in the summer of 1937, with no sign of unemployment. While I was chinning the Fascist and Communist newspaper vendors, Victoria station was thronged with dense crowds enroute out of London for the weekend. Everyone that could afford it was bound to Bath or Brighton or other resorts on the seashore. I wandered through the stations and watched them—young men and women clerks predominated. I thought, mostly of the middle or lower middle class. Probably it meant a little fling of romance in a desert of labor. There none of the English "toifs," the snobs, in sight. I suppose they went by "motor" or by plane. Also none of the half-starved looking East Enders, whom I joined the following day at Hampstead Heath and on Parliament Hill.

The English were a much more approachable and likeable lot than I had been told, although a little on the bristly, independent order, especially the women. Such as the woman who flopped into my seat when I left it for a moment at Victoria station, "You've taken that man's seat," admonished a companion.

"That's all right," she said, not batting an eye. "When I got up they took my seat and never apologized to me."

The English women of the clerical class seemed to me to be a little on the mannish order, and as a matter of fact the same went for the working class. I saw a number of them bound home with what I took to be their husbands, late at night and both comfortably tight. It seemed to be an old family custom for the man and wife to go out Saturday night and get booked together—and when you looked at it, there was a sort of fairness about it.

But one thing—you might see women drunk on the streets in London but you never saw them half-dressed. Drunk or sober, they were always dressed. There were no bareback shows or naval parades on the streets. The styles worn by the women in public were almost Victorian in their primness. I don't know anything about the bathing suit styles. I remember one long-legged young English lady I saw sauntering through the streets. Her dress was Victorian, except for a comfortable-length walking skirt, but a cigarette hung from her mouth; sort of rowdy-like, and she strode rather slouchily along with hands stuffed in the jacket pockets at her side. She had a discontented look on her face, whether crossed in economics or romance I never knew. But in spite of all the above disparaging description, her manners only added force a look of mental independence in her face, and she was by no means without charm.

Many as were leaving London for the two-day holiday, there were almost as many coming in. Trains Saturday disgorged a swarm of English from the outer provincial towns, even from the seaside towns, whose idea of a summer holiday was a couple of days in London. I was struck by the number of young men and young women trailing around alone, or was it only accidental. It seemed different especially from Oslo, Stockholm and the northern lands, where the boys and girls trailed about universally in twosomes, but never got offensively romantic in public, more than to walk along hand in hand.

I remember the incipient romance I inadvertently broke up in a little tea room on the corner of Keat's Grove and Hampstead road the following day, merely by asking questions at the wrong time. I was making a dinner out of a dish of tea and a cold meat pie for about tuppence or thruppence, when a charming English lad from the hinterlands sat down opposite me. I did not fully awake to the fact that he was sparking the waitress rather more than giving his order, so intent was I about striking up a conversation on my own hook about war, employment, Edward and Wally, etc. He did not apparently resent my intrusion, but I got some poisonous looks and rather poor service from the girl. Well, well, I don't blame her, I liked him myself.

It was funny, but if the young English women of the clerical class were mannish, the young men and boys of the same order were correspondingly girlish, at least in their manner of speaking. Of course I never got a chance to talk with the young women. But it was a treat to talk to the boys—with their P. J. Wodehouse language and their gentle courtesy. I ran into a number of these clerks during the holiday and found them a thoroughly obliging, sociable lot, entirely at variance with the current picture of the brusque Englishmen. I found also that it was not hard to get a push in the face if you made unduly direct approaches to the silk-hat type.

This lad in the tea room off Keats Grove was from Devonshire. I only remember what he said about Edward and Wally, and the smiling friendliness with which he answered questions.

The English people liked Edward, but he did the right thing when he resigned. That was pretty much agreed on by all—that it was the right thing. And you some way had a feeling that that phrase "the right thing" had connotations of social attitudes that would be a little hard for an American to understand.

Sensing that my interview was interfering with the main business of the day I got up and left, but I remember the engaging friendliness of his parting "cheerio, I hope you enjoy England."

It was only a few blocks away, however, that I was wandering in a maze of streets looking for the old town of Hampstead to the side of Hampstead Heath or 'ampstead 'eath, as the case may be. Strolling toward me came a tall Englishman whose block figure indicated, I thought, generations of good feeding. He carried a pair of gloves in one hand and swung a cane in the other. At his side walked a lady of the same type and appearance—both most correct in appearance and remote in manner.

"Pardon me," I said, "I'm an American just off the boat—" "Quite right, quite right," he interrupted with a level freezing, insolence, "So you are."

That was the end of that conversation but it was eminently enlightening and worth while from my point of view and I learned more about the English. A group of young Scotch traveling men and clerks in a little lodging house at No. 6 North Street, Edinburgh, laughed uproariously when I told them about it.

"But you're mistaken when you say they were English aristocrats," said a merchant from the Scotch interior, "A real aristocrat might have been stiff but hardly impudent. You just struck a couple of would-be aristocrats. That's where you find that stuff." (To be continued)

Etta Kett's Column

The home economics food class is studying table manners and other manners in general. This column will appear in the paper every week to help high school students in etiquette.

For Girls Only

1. A girl should invite her boy friend to her house and introduce him to her parents before she goes with him.
2. A girl should follow the usher when entering the theater.
3. A girl should start the conversation but not talk continually.
4. A girl should not keep a boy waiting when he calls for her.

For Boys Only

1. A boy should always walk next to the curb, and never between two girls.
2. A boy should remark about a girl's new dress or hat, but never complain about her nail polish or hair dress.
3. A boy should let the girl have some idea of where they are going on the date, so she may dress accordingly.
4. A boy should always take a girl to a desirable and respected place.
5. A boy should not speak of the girls he's gone with in the past in front of his present girl.

JOBS AND TITLES

Peas in a pod: Betty Batchelor, Evelyn Briney, and Monnabelle Dretzler.

We wonder how some of the girls liked their appearance in the movies.

Nice to look at: Barbara Schram.

Bells to the teachers who realize that other teachers give assignments and, consequently, make theirs moderate.

A brassy gong to the people who talk so much in class that the others can't hear the assignment. An organ melody to spring vacation.

Mildred Ashby's hobby is taking photographs, but that's all the hobby writer could get of her. Mildred doesn't want her name in the paper.

Note: Only 74 shopping days till Christmas. Do your shopping early!

Wonder of the modern world: That the auditorium balcony doesn't collapse when the seventh and eighth graders stamp their feet for applause.

Another wonder: No one has copied Venus de Milo's hairdress yet!

For the scrapbook: Doris Patterson wears size four shoes.

Most of the girls aren't wearing lipstick so much now, but a select few wear enough to make up for it.

Nominated for Andy Devine's double is Eugene Stultz.

Urge: To watch the first play produced by the new dramatic club.

The straw hats the future farmers were wearing have probably met the ash heap by now. May be the vegetables were eaten.

Mary Ewing isn't popular with her brother. He's the only one, though.

Austerity personified: Venus de Milo. She's the only one in school who's dignified all the time.

Most vivacious seventh grader is June Johnston, who moves more in a day than we superannuated infants do in a year.

Suggested for the movies: Martha Sands with Lester Hanover for a leading man.

We wish Miss MacNeil would smile more; she has nice teeth.

Confidentially, since the pep meeting a couple of weeks ago, we're willing to bet that Donna Smith and Mary Zupke make the best cheer leader team B. H. S. has ever had.

We have only a mild case of seventh graders this year. We haven't yet stepped on one.

Notice the brilliant cretonne shirts the boys are wearing? How do they ever get enough courage to appear in them?

Miss Henry's curtains have disappeared from her office. Now her privacy is on the same level as that of a goldfish in a bowl.

Mr. Carter's desk is usually littered with apparatus or chemicals. In spite of that, he does a lot of running to get more with which to demonstrate.

Some embryo writers have been discovered in Mrs. Dunbar's English class. Best of all was Margaret Miller's story.

Shortest hour: That, which is spent in the chemistry lab. There's seldom time to finish an experiment.

Shyest class: The eighth grade. We see freshmen, seventh graders, sophomores, juniors and seniors, but it's hard to find one of this elusive species.

The new chairs have offered a new field to the pencil artists.

They're already pretty well marked up.

Question: How many people write notes to Mary Ewing and Paul Ewing? We already know a few, and expect to know more.

The G. A. A. girls have as many meetings as the President has press conferences.

Good luck to the football team this year. If Johnny Miller is as good as ever, it won't need our best wishes.

Morbid curiosity: We'd like to know what Mr. Moore says to those offenders caught running in the halls.

HOBBYHORSEMEN

Kathryn Hess clips the continued stories from newspapers and makes notebooks of them. She is working on three at once now (she takes two newspapers and borrows the third) and has seven complete stories in her collection. She started on an impulse about two years ago and has pursued her hobby since.

Because few pupils seem to have hobbies, we have decided to print a suggestion each time in addition to the regular article. Our choice this week is paper mosaic which is useful, ornamental, and inexpensive. The materials needed are a good grade of glue, a paper punch, some colored paper, and black paint. Any article may be chosen to be decorated, but if it has been waxed it should be washed with gasoline. Paint the article with the black paint and allow it to dry.

Coat small areas with glue and apply the small bits of paper produced by the punch in a design. After the article has been covered let it dry. When dry, paint with shellac.

H. S. CLASSES

Elect Officers

The annual election of class officers has taken place in the classes from the seventh through the twelfth. They are as follows:

Seniors—President, Rex Proud; vice president, Dorothy Arnold; secretary, Leland George; treasurer, Mary Garoutte; advisor, Mr. P. J. Moore.

Juniors—President, William Ednie; vice president, Mildred Ashby; treasurer, Marion Hansen; advisor, Miss Helen Krebs.

Sophomores—President, Aris Fairman; vice president, George Fitch; secretary, Bonnie June Chain; treasurer, Bob Mullman; advisor, Not elected as yet.

Freshmen—President, Robert Dodge; vice president, Charles Trapp; secretary, not elected; treasurer, not elected; advisor, Mr. C. L. Langer.

LIBRARIANS ELECT

Librarians met for the first time this year, Friday, September 23. The meeting was for election of officers. They are: president, Fred Manning; vice president, Martha Trapp; secretary, Elayne Blaney; treasurer, Wanda Wideman. Wanda Wideman was selected as chairman of a committee of three to choose a play to be given by the club later this year. The meetings were scheduled for every second and fourth Mondays of each month.

This is a very active organization. Plans are being made for a lively social season.

SPEECH AND DRAMATICS

Miss MacNeil is teaching speech this semester, dramatizes the second semester. Speech was taught by Mr. Eilers last year. She also teaches some 7th grade English.

"The classes this year average 40. They are nice, hard-working classes with plenty of ideas. The speech class is especially interesting this year," says Miss MacNeil.

After being asked how they liked the classes and the way they were taught, the students replied, "We like the classes very much, and we especially like the way Miss MacNeil teaches them."

SPEECH CLUB

Miss MacNeil has organized a speech club for the members of the speech class. The following officers were elected: President, Leland George; vice president, Mary Garoutte; secretary, Dorothy Skinner; program chairman, Maxine Arthurhultz.

BWING VERSUS BEAST

Students in 5th hour study hall were entertained by a visitor not long ago. A large dog decided it was the proper time and place for him to become educated. He sauntered into the room and was given a royal welcome by all pupils. After much confusion our fearless hero, Paul Ewing, jumped to the rescue and the large beast withdrew.

Books of the Week

Men Ag'nt Death
Paul de Kruiff writes with a vigor that makes all of his works well worth reading. When you have once started this book, you won't want to stop. It is about the progress men have made against disease in both preventing and curing disease. I found the chapters on parrot fever particularly interesting.

"Speed of itself is not dangerous. Slowness is not of itself safe." This unusual statement is from Ray W. Sherman's new book, "If You're Going to Drive Fast."

Some of his rules are as follows:
1. "All other drivers are fools."
2. "Eyes never off the road."
3. "Never out-drive your eyes."
4. "Driving and liquor don't jibe."
5. "Don't be the show-off."

The author doesn't give horrid, strict rules and regulations for driving, but just good sense. This book would be advisable for people who are just learning to drive, also some of you older folks who think you know all about it.

It is one of the new books.

POLLY'S CRACKS
Editor: Good morning, Polly. What have our classmates been doing last week?

Polly: Awrrrk! Classmates? Where were you after the dance Friday night? By the way, who was that—

Editor: Ah, ah, Polly! Remember you're being paid to find out what our students do. Anyway, what could I do that would make news?

Polly: Oh, nothing, only Friday night—

Editor: Quiet! Let's get this column on the way. You'll find some crackers in the file.

Polly: Awrrrk!
When will Lillian Fabiano and Fred Manning put on the gloves? They get their workouts in second hour government.

No girl in first hour study hall can quote, "Sweet 16 and never been kissed" after the F. F. A. initiation. FACT: Each lassie had her hand kissed. Venus de Milo was merely hugged.

Rex Hungerford admits his conscience got the better of him. This time it was the "Red Man."

Better hold on J. K., E. P. is doing all right latest reports say. Five cheer leaders! Can they survive???

Polly: Say, Boss?
Editor: Yes, Polly?

Polly: I don't want to sound soft or anything, but can I add a thought for the week?

Editor: Why, sure, Polly. Let's hear it.

Polly: "Let us give thanks that our fore-fathers made us a republic, and let's pray we stay that way."

Editor: Your's right, Polly—"Our Father—"

NEWS OF LAST YEAR'S GRADUATES

We find that Michigan State is not favored by last year's graduates as much as it has been in former years, but those who did go to our state college are: Earl Stevens, Sidney Deming, Dale Lyon, and Charles Bainton.

The business school at South Bend seems to be the choice of the graduates for we find there: Mary Mae Dretzler, Ruth Willsey, Lawrence Zupke, Agnes Kovich, and Betty Penwell.

There are several really ambitious ones. Mary Hamilton is working for her brother; Caroline Webb is taking a nurse's training course in Chicago; Marne Trapp is working at Allen's Hardware; Shirley Trapp at Hafner's Five and Dime; Olen Smith at The City Market and Grocery; Jack Banke is helping at his father's shop; Kenneth Metzger at the Building and Loan; and Clifford Keller and John Schultz are working at the Atlantic and Pacific Store.

Post-Graduates are Numerous
The number of students taking post-graduate courses this year ranges high. The majority of them were members of the 1938 graduating class, namely: Mildred Hartline, Don Beck, Keith Dalrymple, Rex Shreve, George Riley, Jerry White, Beverly Koons, Carol Koba, Virginia Sanford, Bob Russell, and Richard Donley.

Two of them, Ben Franklin and Harold Jackson, were 1936 graduates.

Jack Polley, a 1937 graduate, was a former Purdue University student.

Mary Ewing graduated from Broken Bow, Oklahoma, in 1937.

THIS AND THAT

If "Chesty" Beadle could make touchdowns as well as he can dive, we'd win all the games. P. S. Duane, don't get high-hat.

George Lauer, that little bundle of charm, is called "Flash." Why? Ask Evelyn Dalrymple.

Why can "Peanuts" Ewing get along with any girl, any time, anywhere, and any place?

When will Cress Watson get his next permanent?

School for girls—Private instructor—in ten easy lessons. See Jack Morris.

JANITOR'S OFFICE

Mr. Flenar, the school janitor, reports that so far this year there have been fewer repairs than last year. He also reports that the boys are much cleaner in the locker room and that they are careful of the window lights. He appreciates this fine attitude and wants to thank the student body.

MANUAL ARTS

Mr. Miller informs us that he is enjoying his classes very much this year. The drawing class is much larger than that of last year; other manual art classes average from 35 to 40.

"These classes are too large for the building, but we can take care of them if we absolutely have to," said Mr. Miller.

Do you need help with the housework? There are high school girls whose homes are in the country, that want the opportunity to work for their room and board.

Boys, too, are ready to do the many odd jobs which the season makes necessary, as: taking down screens, putting up storm windows, raking yards, and shoveling snow. Call the high school, telephone 40, and you will be given the names of high school boys and girls who have registered for such work.

BOWLING TEAM ORGANIZED

Do you want to keep your girl's figure? Yes? Then you must take up the popular sport of bowling as many of the teachers and students are doing. Two teams from school have been organized.

Reamer's team composed of students are: Geraldine Reamer, junior; Lillian Fabiano, junior; Daisy Reamer, graduate; Donna Brant, junior; Virginia Lolmaugh, graduate.

The other, Patton's team, is composed of: Allegra Henry, gym teacher; Virginia Anderson, kindergarten teacher; Mayme Proseus, recreation worker; Edna Reams, opportunity room; Jane Spear, fifth grade teacher; Florence Bradley, nurse in surgery at hospital in South Bend.

Fourth Grade

We have elected Georgine Chain as editor for the newspaper from our room. For the Citizenship Council we have elected Robert Pazder, Captain; Sally Thanning and Charles Vergon as lieutenants.

We have started a mural done in chalk that depicts the life of the people that live in cold lands.

Kindergarten

We have elected two more pupils, Marilyn Hewitt and Joanne Slocum, raising the attendance to 74.

The boys have been making aeroplanes and boats out of orange crates.

We have gathered several types of leaves and have waxed them for an experience chart.

First Grade

The first graders have some grasshoppers and caterpillars to watch and care for.

Our citizenship councilmen are Marian Dempsey and Dick Lauer. Betty Coleman was elected to the paper staff.

G. A. A. ELECTS

Election for officers of G. A. A. was held Friday, Sept. 22, in Miss Henry's office. All officials were selected by unanimous vote.

They are: President, Alta Ferris; business manager, Ramona Dalenberg; hiking master, Donna Smith; and secretary, Elayne Blaney.

A committee consisting of Mary Comers, Mary Louise Zupke, Eleanor Schneider, Natalie Proud, Eleanor Naugle, and Alta Ferris were chosen to plan a calendar of social events for the coming year.

The members will sell candy at games and plan a very active season in sports.

Library

Mr. Stark has given Miss Cernan permission to order new books and magazines for the library. In making out the list she would like the students to give her some idea of what they like. These books will be ordered sometime in January.

One hundred and thirty high school library books have been mended and rebound and are now on the shelves. The books were mended during the vacation months by the P. W. A. Last year many of these books were out of circulation because of needed repair.

The teacher and student librarians have been working very hard the past few weeks getting the files in order, the new and mended books on the shelves, and new grade books recorded, but there is still much left to be done.

BIOLOGY AND AGRICULTURE

The agriculture classes are grading and packing fruit. The sophomore class has 14 students while the junior and senior classes have 20 each. The biology classes average 37 students to the class. These classes are much larger than they were last year.

"The agriculture classes are 100% better this year than they were last year. Perhaps it's because farm boys only are eligible for the course this year," stated Mr. Langer. "The biology classes, because they are so large, are hard to teach properly. There are enough pupils in each class for two teachers to teach," he added.

BOYS HOME ECONOMICS

The Home Economics boys have started cooking and have elected officers, Mark Heiny is president; Bob Wesner, vice president; Paul Ewing, secretary; and Herb Russell, treasurer. The boys are learning how to set the table. This week they made white sauce on toast.

Sleeplessness and Insanity

Springs Flow at Night
Some springs flow only at night. These usually are in the woods. This is because, according to an authority, the ground water has two outlets, one by seepage and veinlike drainage to springs, and the other through evaporation from the myriads of leaves overhead. Evaporation is least at night. Hence seepage is greatest.

September Book
Total 2d Highest

Local Library Circulates 1568 in Sept.; 82 New Borrowers Get Cards

Circulation at the Buchanan Public Library for September was second highest in the history of the institution, totaling 1568. The record was set during the reading contest in August, when the books loaned topped 2,000. The third highest was 1410 in January. The librarians were much pleased with the September circulation, since it had been anticipated that it might be much lower, because many of the young people were distracted by the opening of school. A total of 82 new cards were entered for new borrowers.

Among the events of the month was a visit by the first and third grade sections taught by Miss Carnagan and Mrs. Fischnar. The library staff is classifying the books according to suitability for outside reading by the pupils of the local schools. Mrs. Milton Ludwig reports an increasing use of books for reference. The library board is now carefully considering merits of encyclopedias suitable for the needs of the local library.

HOLLYWOOD
Celebrity Story Means Overtime for Printer

The Hollywood printing expert who makes those newspaper front pages you see in the movies had to work overtime during the filming of the new Martha Raye-Bob Hope comedy, "Give Me a Sailor" which comes Friday to the Hollywood theatre. He had to print "extra" editions of papers from every corner of the United States, showing Miss Raye, as a beauty contest winner, dedicating a sailor's home, launching a battleship, receiving an honorary college degree, leading a parade and queening at a firemen's ball. Miss Raye engages in these activities in "Give Me a Sailor," when she turns from a family drudge into a national celebrity and the toast of the U. S. fleet. Also in the cast is beautiful Betty Grable, of the famous figure. Film Trio Re-Cast

In New Comedy Hit
For Douglas Fowley, his role as a gangster chieftain in "Passport Husband," marks something of an old-home-week.

"Passport Husband," a 20th Century-Fox comedy, depicts the trials and tribulations of Stuart Erwin who has to marry Fowley's girl, Joan Woodbury, to keep her from being deported.

In this film, coming Wednesday to the Hollywood Theatre, Douglas is seen again with former "team-mates," Pauline Moore, and Lon Chaney, Jr.

The last time this trio appeared in the same cast they made a delightful job of Jane Withers' "Wild and Woolly."

Ad Lib Butling!
Arthur Treacher, the cinema's biggest and best butler doesn't need to worry about old-age pension or unemployment insurance.

He can have a life-long job any time he wants it, if he tires of acting.

While playing in Deanna Durbin's new Universal film, "Mad About Music," coming Sunday to the Hollywood theatre, Treacher received a letter from far-off Burma, offering him life employment as butler for one Ram Das, self-described as a "dealer in precious stones."

Different Type of Heroine Introduced in "Rich Girl, Poor Girl."

A new kind of heroine is seen in "Rich Man, Poor Girl" which is to be shown beginning Wednesday at the Hollywood theatre.

This unusual type of character is Joan Thayer, played by Ruth Hussey, a girl who not only refuses to marry a man with a million dollars but goes out of her way to get rid of him. And amazingly enough, the man is tall and handsome, charming and quite in love with her.

Robert Young plays the role of Miss Hussey's suitor who finally in desperation threatens to give away all his money in order to bring himself down to her financial level. His characterization is in the same breezy style that earned him so many new admirers in "I Met Him in Paris," "Paradise for Three" and "Josseline."

Others in the cast are Lew Ayres, Guy Kibbee, Rita Johnson and Lana Turner. Based on the hit play, "White Collars," the new comedy was directed by Reinhold Schunzel.

Good entertainment and refreshments of coffee and doughnuts were enjoyed. Miss Evelyn Wallquist had as week-end guests the Misses Carol and Marjorie Sebasty. Three attendants of the Oronoko church will furnish cars to transport young people of the Mt. Tabor district to attend a Sunday School convention. Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Kann had as their dinner guest Saturday Mrs. Anna Dalrymple. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton had as guests at dinner Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Ben White and family and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Truen, all of Maple Grove. Mrs. Lynn Robbins and Mrs. H. G. Wallquist are attending an all-day meeting in Berrien Springs today, held at the high school for the child training club leaders of the county. A state extension leader is to give them the lessons to be carried on to their individual clubs. Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Alexander, South Bend, were dinner guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fedore. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Blackmun, Mrs. Dell Blackmun and Mrs. Maggie Stevens drove to Coloma Sunday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Scott. Mrs. Scott lived in the Glendora district several years while her daughter, Miss Bernice Scott, taught at the Hills Corners school. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton attended a Harvest Dance at South Bend, Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ruger had as their guest at dinner Saturday Ralph Bramlet of Chicago. Mr. Bramlet is remaining here this week to paint and repair buildings on the former Borden farm which he bought from the late H. H. Hansen. Members of the Hills Corners Christian Church enjoyed a dinner at the church Thursday evening. Rev. and Mrs. Frank Flagg came from Dowagiac, bringing as a guest, Rev. Pullen of that city. Rev. Pullen and Rev. Flagg each gave short talks. Mr. and Mrs. Dell Blackmun accompanied their son, Harold Blackmun and wife and son, Bob, on an automobile trip to the Cumberland mountains of Tennessee last Thursday, returning Saturday. Mrs. LeRoy Phillips is caring for Mrs. John Herman, who was released from Pawating hospital Friday and is now convalescing from an attack of pneumonia at her home. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Karsh, Chicago, were visitors Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sult. "It's the last half of the ninth for the farmers," said one North Buchanan farmer, when asked this week about farm work here. The fruit harvest is well out of the way except for late apples; corn cutting is well under way. Only corn husking and late potato digging remain. Charles Mutchler is harvesting his late apples this week, picking Stark's Delicious, Jonathans, Greenings and Northern Spys. Miss Doris Clinker spent the week-end as a guest of her father at Jackson. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mastain of South Bend were guests Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Letcher. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stoner and family visited Sunday afternoon at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wire, and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stoner of Elm Valley.
