Child Study Club Plans For Christmas For Needy

Serve as Xmas Clearing House

Any Organization or Individual Wishing to Aid Should Notify Chairman

The Buchanan Child Study club has started a drive for funds and materials for supplying the needy families of the city with an adequate Christmas, planning to again act as the clearing house for all activities.

The Child Study club has managed very competently in recent years and it has been the rule for other organizations wishing to aid to turn their donations over to them. The main needs are for money and food. The club would also like to be notified where used toys may be secured which may be returned for some needy child's stocking. Anyone who has such toys to donate is asked to notify
Mrs. Hugh Pierce, telephone 416, and the club will arrange to collect them.

Anyone who knows of a family
which might need such holiday aid is asked to notify Mrs. Pierce.
The club makes a practice of investigating all cases before any service is rendered.

The club delivers dinner baskets
and presents two days before Christmas so that members will be free themselves the day before the holiday. It is very desirable that all donations be in their hands not later than the Thursday preceding Christmas.

Buchanan Football Review for 1938

(By JOHN SCHULTZ)

Buchanan sport fans should be proud of their football teams for the past two years. The 1937 and 1938 teams have waded through the toughest of competition and haven't lost a ball game since the State High game of 1936. They have played sixteen games and have won thirteen and tied three games.

As a reporter I am glad I can say that I have had the great privilege of writing for the two undefeated teams.

The 1938 team, although not as powerful as the 1937 team of a year ago, had a great year. They won six games and tied two. The team last year had reserve strength, while this year's team
was weak in that department.
They faced practically the same teams with the exception of one team. Coloma replaced Central Catholic on this year's schedule.
The team as a whole worked together as a unit and as we all know a unified team wins their share of the games. A team that won't be beat can't be beat, we hope.

The coaching staff consisting of Head Coach Johnny Miller with
C. A. Langer, Robert Ellis, and Richard Donley, as assistants, deserve the honor of rounding out a winning aggregation. Mr. Miller this year missed 16 seniors from last year's team, and had to build from scratch and around seven monogram fellows that returned.
He built a team that learned a lot of football, and played a lot of football. Coach Miller used a clever baffling, offense that consisted of power plays into the line and around ends, and a deceptive passing attack.

Dale Leiter called the signals
from the halfback position and did it very well. He called the plays in baffling sequence. He also was in charge of the passing. He was a great passer, one of the best in Southwestern Michigan. We must also consider the receivers of these passes. Simpson and Beadle handled the receiving end of the passes in grand fashion. Simpson used his height to advantage in catching passes. He outreached the opposing defenders and snagged passes out of the air many a time for nice gains.

Beadle had charge of the punting assignment this year and did the job in A-1 shape. Beadle had an average of 28.8 yards per game for the year.

Buchanan's line was very stubborn and coordinate on defense. In the last four games Buchanan's line held four times inside their five yard line for downs. The center of the line, namely, Hamilton, Rotzeln, Heckathorne, and Bob Habicht were very tough and aggressive. Bob Hamilton showed his ability as a linesman in every game, playing most of the game in the opponents backfield bottling up the opponents plays before they got underway.

Buchanan made a total of 123 points to their opponents 33. In 1937 the Bucks piled up 174 points to their opponents 19. The scoring this year was done by the following men:

Simpson scored 8 touchdowns
for 48 points.
Beadle scored 5 touchdowns for 30 points.

Leiter made 3 touchdowns and 9
extra points for a total of 27
points.

Beadle made 2 touchdowns for 12 points.
Heckathorne scored one touchdown for 6 points.

Buchanan attempted 80 passes
during the season and completed 37 for a percentage of 46.2. Buchanan made 86 first downs to their opponents 49. Buchanan gained a total of 1952 yards from scrimmage. By rushing they made 1489 yards, and by passing they added 463 yards. Their opponents made a total of 1195 yards from scrimmage. By rushing they made a total of 619 yards, and by passing they made 576 yards.

The 1938 squad consisted of:
13 seniors, 5 juniors, and 6 sophomores. The seniors missing next year will be: Leiter, Best, Simpson, Heckathorne, Ingelright, Heiney,
Phiscator, Bob Habicht, M. Rauch,
A. Rauch, Lewis, Sult, and Stoner.

The 1938 record is as follows:
Sept. 24—Buchanan 18; Watervliet 7.

Sept. 30—Buchanan 18; Cassopolis 0.

Oct. 8—Buchanan 33; Paw Paw
0.

Oct. 14—Buchanan 7; Niles 7.

Oct. 22—Buchanan 20; Coloma 7.

Oct. 29—Buchanan 6; South Haven 6.

Nov. 5—Buchanan 14; Dowagiac
0.

Nov. 11—Buchanan 7; State
Eligh 6.

The first game of the season was played at home with Watervliet.
Buchanan got an early lead as Simpson scored from the one yard line climaxing a 59 yard march.
The half ended Buchanan 6 Watervliet 0. Taking advantage of the Bucks letup in third quarter the Vliets scored a touchdown and added the extra point. Trailing 7 to 6 the Bucks came back in the fourth quarter to score twice in rapid fire succession to win 18 to 7.
Simpson scored one of the touchdowns after a blocked punt. He scored from the four yard line.
Beadle scored the other on and eight thrust at tackle.

Buchanan traveled to Cassopolis
the following week to engage Coach Dean's boys. The first quarter found Buchanan on defense most of the quarter. In the second quarter Heckathorne, playing heads up in the line, picked a fumble out of the air and raced 31 yards to score standing up, just before the half ended. A 15 yard pass Simpson to Leiter was good for the Bucks' second score. A sixty yard march ended in Simpson going over from the one yard line for the final score and an 18
to 0 victory for the Millerites.

Buchanan made their second appearance at home the following week against Paw Paw. The Bucks ran rough shod over Paw Paw 33 to 0. They scored at will against a team that lacked fundamentals of the game. On the fourth play of the game Leiter made a sparkling jaunt of 53 yards for the first touchdown. A wave of interference swept out the Paw Paw men to provide an open field for Leiter's run. The Bucks marched 64 yards in the second quarter with Simpson scoring from the 1 yard line.
Another march of 60 yards gave them touchdown No. 2 in the second quarter. Best scored from the second quarter.

A Vest-Pocket Review
I have just finished reading
"The Buccaneers," by Edith Wharton, that popular author of "The Children," "The Age of Innocence," "House of Mirth," and many other delightful novels for which she won the academy award in the U. S.

This remarkable novel, "The Buccaneers," is neither complete nor finished in all its parts.
There are some parts so characteristically achieved that I am confident Mrs. Wharton would never have retouched them. Others again are evidently either provisional or at most just blocked in; and this is as you would expect, for the novel had been growing in her mind for a number of years before she ever wrote
a word of it.

This novel deals with the adventures of three American families with beautiful daughters who attempt the London social adventure in the seventies—the first time the social invasion had been tried in England on such a scale. The whole theme is built around that old phrase, "keeping up with the Joneses". Each of the American beauties wants to marry a distinguished Englishman with a title, and each of the gentlemen have a strange passion for the wealthy American heiresses, so there's a grand rush
for the altar; and then everyone is unhappy.

Things straighten themselves
out somewhat, however, and Mrs.
Wharton brings the novel to a satisfactory (which does not mean happy) conclusion.

Project Costs to Total $102,712

City Delays Action on Street
Paving Until After
First of Year

The WPA project providing for the practical completion of Buchanan's sewer system received the final approval of the city at the open meeting for objections held at the city hall Monday evening, insufficient objections being received to block any of the ten projects.

The project now awaits only final notice of federal approval from Washington, D. C. The cost of the entire project is estimated at $102,712, of which the city will provide $26,663 to pay for supplies, rentals and equipment. The federal government will provide $66,384 for labor and $9,665 for supplies.

The projects will install sewers
on all or parts of the following streets: Portage, Elizabeth, Arctic, Fulton, River, Michigan, Ry-nearson, Alexander, Oak, Smith, Roe, Cayuga, Short. Moccasin will be equipped with sewers as far as the H. W. Brown residence and the Burkhard addition streets
will be sewered east to Victory.

The board decided last night to delay any advertising on the paving projects until after the first of the year as the city would not be allowed to sell bonds for the projects until the end of the fiscal year on March 1.

Gloucester Fishing Craft Aground on Rocks

Ripped by jagged rocks where she ran aground off Gloucester, Mass., the 100-foot fishing schooner, Uncle Sam, was pronounced a total loss by coast guardsmen after being abandoned by her captain and crew. Nearly 50,000 pounds of fresh mackerel was dumped into the sea to lighten the boat in an effort to save it.

Hurricane Sells Apples

One would not ordinarily look for a hurricane to promote the sale of apples. But the recent wind and flood devastation in New England produced that very result.

Except for the comparatively small part of the crop harvested before the storm, the New England apple crop was on the ground after the hurricane passed—four to five million boxes. Many of these apples were damaged when blown from trees, hence normal storage and marketing was impossible—they had to be consumed within a short time, or be a total loss.

As soon as the situation became known, without red tape or delay, the First National Stores of Boston, with retail outlets throughout New England, began publicizing the situation and selling these apples at once. It said to the public:

This emergency calls for your help. Use apples liberally. Eat two apples a day. Baked in pies, in sauces and in countless other ways, use apples; turn this emergency to your health and advantage. Your neighbor apple grower isn't asking for pity. He's got apples to sell. Buy them!

Here is a striking illustration of the manner in which modern merchandising and sales methods provide the way to turn the tables on what would otherwise have been disaster for this farm crop. Following the lead of the chain stores, other distributors joined in the program.

It is probably impossible to estimate the tremendous value of such service to the apple growers of New England, but it is typical of service rendered by private enterprise at its best.—Industrial News Review.

Children in Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

An Expensive Bus Ticket
The price of a half fare bus ticket landed a thirteen year old girl in the juvenile court.

Twenty-four hours before her apprehension by juvenile authorities for stealing from a ten cent store, this child heard her mother tell a bus driver that her daughter was only eleven years old. While the parent saved a few cents by misrepresenting her daughter's age, this proved to be the most expensive bus ticket she ever purchased with a lie, for she set a most effective example of dishonesty for her child.

Teacher vs. Parent
Each year thousands of parents throughout the nation eagerly await the opening of school; they are only too anxious to shirk their duties and let schools assume the major responsibility in training their children. The schools cannot accept this task without the cooperation of parental discipline in the home. Often a conscientious teacher's nine or ten months' arduous work is nullified instantly by bad home environment and pernicious examples.

Greeted no less enthusiastically by the metropolitan press than by the thousands who jammed New York's Radio City Music Hall for its world premiere was "Four Daughters."

Abandoning the usual Hollywood adjectival measure of success of words such as "gigantic," "colossal," and "stupendous," New York reviewers summed it up in one word, "charming," or as Walter Winchell said, "The rave of the city, to read the critics, is 'Four Daughters' at the Music Hall. It gives your emotions a workout. Pictures like 'Four Daughters' will put Bank Night out of business."

SECOND FEATURE American film fans will see the English countryside in its true colors for the first time in "The Divorce of Lady X," Alexander Korda's technicolor comedy which stars Merle Oberon.

BUCHANAN FOOTBALL

REVIEW FOR 1938

12 yard line. Best showed his prowess as a line plunger on the first of two touchdowns in the final quarter. He climaxed a 59 yard march by busting over from the 13 yard line. Taking the ball on the 50 yard stripe, the Bucks passed their way to their final touchdown. A pass Leiter to Simpson was good for seven yards and the final touchdown of the over-whelming victory. Leiter added 3 extra points from placement.

The big game of the season came next. The rival foes were Niles and Buchanan. Niles, under Coach Bradford, former Buck coach, outgained the Millerites, but the Bucks took advantage of the 95 yards of penalties against Niles to come out of the game with a 7 to 7 tie. Leiter scored the touchdown and added the accompanying point for the Bucks.

Buchanan then came home to play hosts to Coloma. Best recovered a Coloma fumble to pave the way for the Buck's first score in their 20 to 7 victory. Best scored from the one yard line. In the third quarter the Millerites marched 80 yards for their second score. Beadle and Best did most of the ball carrying. Beadle scored from the three yard line. With the Bucks in possession of the ball on the middle stripe Leiter tossed a five yard pass to Simpson who pivoted and ran 45 yards to score the final touchdown. Some nice blocking by Hamilton paved the way for the fast ten yards of Simpson's run. Leiter added 2 extra points from placement. Jolley took a Buck punt from the Buck's 19 yard line and raced to Coloma's touchdown. They added the extra point to close the scoring in the game that ended Buchanan 20 Coloma 7.

The Bucks then traveled to South Haven the following week and came home with nothing but a tie, 6 to 6. Facing a big eleven the Bucks scored on a final two plays of the first half. A pass Leiter to Habicht, after an end around to Heinley, put the ball on the Havenites one yard line. Simpson scored on his first attempt. South Haven tied it up in the third quarter on a pass over the Buck goal. The Bucks defense held for seven downs from the three yard line in the final quarter.

Buchanan played their final home game of the season the next week when they met Dowagiac. The Bucks played their best ball of the season and consequently the Indians were sent home on the short end of 14 to 0 score. The Chiefs started out fast but when the Buck's defense got to clicking the march was stopped. The Millerites marched 82 yards and 46 yards respectively to score touchdowns. Best scored the first touchdown from the 6 yard line. Leiter passed to Simpson for the final score. Leiter added the 2 extra points from placement.

Buchanan closed their second undefeated season with a bang up victory over State High of Kalamazoo with the score being Buchanan 7 State High 6. Leiter's pass was intercepted by Cook who raced 43 yards for the touchdown.

Trailing 6 to 0 at the half the Bucks settled down in the third quarter to take advantage of a break to score. Best recovered Sangren's fumble on State High's 21 yard line. Best made two yards. A pass Leiter to Simpson was good for 18 yards putting the ball on the one yard line. Best scored on his first try. Leiter's educated toe added the extra point which was the margin of victory. The game ended with the Bucks in possession of the ball on State High's 23 yard line.

Coach Johnny Miller's record in his four years as coach here is as follows: 1935—Won 1, lost 4, and tied 3. 1936—Won 2 and lost 6. 1937—Won 7 and tied 1. 1938—Won 6 and tied 2. In other words since he has taken over the duties as coach his teams have won 16 games, lost 10, and tied 6.

Coach Miller—Because of his knowledge of the game and his ability to teach it, plus an abundance of patience and hard work Johnny Miller developed a powerful football machine that has dominated the play in each game of the past two years.

Credit must also be given to C. A. Langer, Robert Ellis, and Richard Dunley for their able assistance in helping to mold together an aggregation that caused so much havoc in each of the opponents football camps this year.

Personnel of the team:
Seniors:
Dale Leiter, a three year monogram winner, was one of the men to play on both the undefeated eleven. He was a very shifty halfback and ran well in broken and open field. Dale was very good on defense also. He leaves a big vacancy for Johnny Miller to fill up next year.

Dale Simpson, also a three year monogram winner closes his high school career this year. Dale had height which he used to an advantage in his play. Dale played fullback, end, and tackle; filling all positions in A-1 shape. He was on the receiving end of one of the best passing combinations in the county.

Bob Best, one year man, played excellent ball at the fullback spot. He was the battering ram of the Buck attack. He ran hard and used his power to move on for additional yardage when being tackled. Bob took a lot of punishment from this position, but he could also hand it out so he was the best man for the position.

Russell Heckathorne, a two year man held down the tackle position which is the toughest spot on defense. He played this position very well. In holding down one of the toughest spots on the front line "Heck" played heads up ball throughout. He charged very fast and was one of the main cogs in the Bucks many goal line stands. He played havoc with the opponent backs.

Ed Ingleright, the beef of the team, was a two year man. He was a tower of strength on defense. Ed played center and played grand ball all season. He used his weight to advantage in backing up the line. An injury slowed him up in the last two games, but he made up for it in the first six games.

Bob Habicht, was a tower of strength on defense and was a big help on offense. His height helped him in mastering the offense of the opponents as he could look over the offense and see what was coming. Bob played some last year and was a regular this year.

Kenneth Phiscator one of the smallest men on the line played his first year on the varsity eleven. He has been out for football four years but his size kept him out of action. He made up this deficit in scrap however to receive recognition this year. He played a guard and fulfilled the requirements in every respect.

Mark Heinley, a senior who played his first year on the varsity squad, played an end. He was slowed up by injuries and lack of experience. He was very good on end and arounds and could snag passes also.

Melvin Stoner played guard this year. When substituted into the battle he played very well. He was another worthy constituent in the Bucks forward wall.

Glen Sult played his second year on the varsity squad this season. He played tackle and played this position very capably. He outcharged his opponent quite frequently to open up holes for the Bucks backs.

Wallace Lewis played his first year on the football squad. He got a late start and had lots to learn and learned it fast. He did just what he blocked very well and was a hard tackler. He charged fast and consequently was valuable on offense.

Matthew Rauch was another man who was out for football for four years. Mat lacked weight, but gave all he had to cope with the opposition that outweighed him. Mat was a good pass snagger and when used was fighting for his alma mater.

Adolph Rauch returned to football after a two year rest. He tried for all he was worth and was a successful man when substituted. He also lacked sufficient weight but was a good pass receiver.

Robert Hamilton plugged up the middle of the Buck line. He played a guard and what a guard he was! If any lineman should receive state recognition it is he.

He flashed a world of power on offense. He was even better on defense. He was the same impassable guard of former years. He smashed through what seemed impregnable lines, and he made a specialty of cracking opposing backs for big losses. He also played the same position last year. He was the most aggressive man in the line. Bob should have his biggest year next year.

Philip Rotzien, known to us as "Mike" played his second year on the varsity. Mike was a good, dependable lineman. He was a bear on defense and he fitted splendidly in the Bucks' line. He was also very good offensively, outchaging the opponents and opening holes for the backs to make sizeable gains. He should prove to be one of Buchanan's best men next fall.

Duane Beadle played his first year on the varsity. He was a fleet halfback and a hard, shifty runner. He could skirt the ends or plunge the line. His services were all the more valuable to the team because of his punting. A big year is ahead of Duane next year.

Lester Hanover played his first year on the varsity squad this year. His defensive power was his biggest asset to the team. On pass defense he was the best on the team. He tackled decisively. Offensively he could circle the ends, block very well, and he had a sweet stiff arm. Les will return to the backfield again next year.

Lee Topash also played quarterback. He could block and tackle very decisively. He helped do the punting. He played his first year on the varsity and should return to the Bucks' lineup next year.

Bill Gregory played a guard on this year's eleven. He wasn't used much but when in the fray he held his ground and tackled anything that came his way. Bill will help next year's team.

Sophomores:
Dick Habicht was the only sophomore in the starting eleven this year. Dick played and played it very cleverly. He was a brilliant pass receiver and dangerous out in the open. Dick played alert ball at all times. He looked equally well on defense.

He turned in all plays that came his way and crippled the opponents' interference. In the last few games of the season Dick blocked several kicks and knocked down attempted passes. He should be the hub of Buchanan's aerial attack next fall.

Jack Hess played his first year on the varsity this fall. He was a fleet halfback and a fine broken field runner. He was good also on pass defense. He tackled viciously and will fill in the backfield of the 1939 football team very well.

Ed Hempel played his first year also as a varsity man. He played center and his ability to play the position came in handy when Ingleright was injured. He was faster than Ed but lacked experience. He has two bright years ahead of him. He was a sure tackler and backed up the line in fine fashion.

Warren Virgil played his first year on the varsity as a sophomore. He played the tackle position. He was a solid tackler and an unquenchable defensive man. He was a dreadful man to outsmart and will see regular service for the next two years.

Steve Skovera, also a sophomore tackle, played his first season on the squad. He held his ground very nicely and the boys met up with a stonewall when hitting any part of Steve. He has all possibilities of a real man for the tackle position for the next two years.

Gerald Weaver played a substitute guard on this year's eleven. Although small in size he used his courage to hold in the thick of the battle. He was a real tussler in the line and caused opposition plenty of trouble. He has two big years awaiting him.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

During the last session of Congress, through the kindness of the publishers and editors of the district, it was my privilege to tell you of a few of the things that were happening in Washington. During the campaign, by paid political ad, you were advised of my views on several occasions.

The campaign is over. May I thank you for the support you gave and express the hope that your confidence may be justified during the coming session?

It is not only my duty but my desire, in serving you, to carry out your wishes on matters of national policy. Many of you, either because you have read what I have written or have heard me speak, know in a general way the principles for which I stand.

Many said, during the campaign, that I was against relief, old age benefits, the laboring man.

As one who has but little property, who has always been forced to work; as one who may some day be in need of old age assistance, I have no personal reason to oppose legislation benefiting any of these groups.

Nothing could be further from the truth than the charges which have been made. Those charges probably have grown out of the fact that it is my belief that, before benefits can be paid to any class, the source of the money to make those payments should be ascertained; that all legislation which is labeled labor legislation is not necessarily of benefit to the actual worker; that I have not blindly followed the demands of organizers or lobbyists.

It is my desire to give first consideration to the needy, the unfortunate, those least able to protect themselves.

All money paid out by the Federal government come in the beginning from taxes, which are paid "in the sweat of the man who labors"; hence, it seems of first importance that no Federal money should be wasted; that Federal political officeholders should be reduced in number; that waste and extravagance should stop; that relief funds should be used solely through local agencies for that purpose; that the Wagner law should be amended so as to give protection to the man who wants to work, protection to the employer, to the innocent bystander and citizen; that the National Labor Relations Board should have a house-cleaning; that the Acts which permit the purchase of gold and silver at fictitious values should be repealed; that the chief executive should be required to account for the two billion dollar stabilization fund; that the secretary of state should be deprived of his authority to make reciprocal trade treaties; that the American market should be restored to the American farmer; that monopolies should be prevented; that private business should be freed of excessive regulation which hinders and hampers and prevents reemployment; that, instead of talking about balancing the budget, the nation should at once enter upon a course which will keep our expenditures within our income—this I believe we can do without letting anyone suffer, if we cut out the political expenditure of public funds.

It is my desire to give you the best possible service. That I may do so, help me with any constructive suggestions you may have, but don't ask me to do anything as your Representative which you would not advocate in connection with your own personal business.

Sincerely yours,
Clare E. Hoffman,
Member of Congress.

Tight-Wadding It Through Europe

CHAPTER 60

By Hawes

Readers, if such there be, are hereby warned that this chronicle of a day and a night in the famous Lake Country of England is destined to be a bit fine-haired for some perfectly intelligent tastes and viewpoints, dealing as it will with Messrs. Wordsworth & Coleridge, Inc., with a glance at two or three other century-old literary personalities.

But this beautiful place is a tourist attraction chiefly because it was for some years the home of Mr. Wordsworth, and the place where some of the finest literature of the English language was written, including the best of Wordsworth and much of the best of Coleridge. And consequently, for reasons that I may dimly attempt explanation, the perverse human race has chosen to select the Lake Country and especially the little hamlet of Grasmere, no larger and no more pretentious than Dayton, Mich., as a shrine of the human spirit.

Just why Mr. Wordsworth should cast so long a shadow, from the dawn of the 19th century down across the blatant late thirties of the twentieth seems strange, although I believe explainable. The center of attention in this little burg is a rambling old stone cottage set in miniature yard on a little winding lane. It is known as Dove Cottage, the home of Wordsworth from 1799 to 1808. Wordsworth did not own the cottage, he merely leased it for a ridiculously small sum, possibly three or four dollars a month in our medium, for the reason that he couldn't afford to own a house, and also couldn't afford to pay any more rent unless he quit writing poetry and went to digging potatoes or herding sheep for the local farmers. From the traditions handed down he was a queer like and the neighbors in Grasmere thought him a bit dumpy, what with his self-absorbed wanderings about the fabulously beautiful Northumbrian hills, and his sitting motionless for hours on a rock while the wild things of the hills hopped about him as though he was a part of the scenery.

But it was in this little cottage, this cheap rented home furnished with partly home made furnishings, that Mr. Wordsworth coined the phrase "plain living and high thinking" and what is more, demonstrated it and developed a philosophy expressed in fragments of memorable distinction.

But let's get down to earth. As I penetrated further into the Cumberland hills by train and bus on my approach to the Lake Country, the mounting hills grew to a more brilliant emerald, and the hills reared their heads to a surprising height, lost in part in broken rolling clouds.

It was evidently a land of mountain pastures. Threading the vividly-green hill sides were rambling black lines dividing them into fields. These I learned were stone walls, many centuries old and some by tradition dating back to the time of the Romans. Brilliant sunny weather or prevailed, yet the "misty mountain winds" of Wordsworth were forever draping wisps and half cloaks of cloud about the high hilltops.

The bus which completed my journey wended its way through winding lanes edged by old stone walls and bordered by ancient stone cottages, all dating long back in the past. A large block of the Country, I was told, had been placed under some sort of National Administration which forbade any modern developments and labored in every possible way to preserve the appearance of the past.

We whirled across an old stone-arched bridge, past an ancient church and into a little cluster of houses—Grasmere. Here was the heart of the Grasmere Lake Country—and in a special sense, Wordsworth's country.

Whatever preconceptions anyone might have had regarding the Lake Country, it would scarce be possible to be disappointed. Had there been no shrine of the human spirit, no historical association of any sort, the loveliness of the place would repay a visit by anyone with half an eye for such charms.

Whatever the drawing power, it was most evident that Grasmere was a center of attraction for tourists. Not in the oppressive sense reported from Stratford-On-The-Avon, but to a considerable degree. When the bus came to a stop in front of a cluster of rambling old stone buildings I was aware of several of those specially-chartered tourist busses parked about and groups of tourists wandering here and there. Mingling with them were sturdy boys and girls with knapsacks on back, and staff in hand, clad in khaki shorts or short khaki skirts and liberal expanses of bare arm and leg.

Wordsworth or no Wordsworth, the question of accommodations and cost came first to the fore.

Several buildings about the rambling little "square" in the center of the town had signs out for tourist accommodation. Into one of them I went and inquired of a woman as to rates.

"I don't think we have anything," she said in a dialect that I will not try to reproduce, "but I'll go see the missus." As she did so, I saw a sign on the wall with the rates of the place—and fled forthwith, not waiting for the missus. I asked another traveler where Wordsworth's cottage might be and he directed me, back a half mile along the road the bus had come. A few hundred yards down its windings I came abreast of an old stone farm house, very plain and simple, with a hotel sign. Here I applied. They showed me a room. It was antiquated as could be and very plain, but clean and tidy enough to be reassuring. The rates were five and six for bed and breakfast. Five shillings and sixpence represented something like $1.40, plus 14c for service. I took the accommodations for the night. I had two more nights in the British Isles, one of which I intended to spend here and the other in Scotland, at Edinburgh or Glasgow.

Free of baggage I went on along the lane toward Wordsworth's home, a part of a straggling procession on foot or bicycle bound for the same place. The winding road made an elbow that approached the very base of a mountain, and from the point of the elbow there jogged an incredibly narrow lane, narrower than any American alley, edged with stone fences and hedges and wending up the "bottom" stair" of the hills a short distance. On the left hand side of the little lane was a rambling old stone cottage with a little enclosed yard in front and a garden close in the rear on the steep hillside—Dove Cottage, the place of pilgrimage.

It was evident that the place was commercialized in a moderate way but not offensively so. Admittance cost a shilling, tickets being sold at an old farm house across and down the lane a few rods, constituting a sort of office. I had to wait there a little while, until a conducted party had been shown through the cottage. Then I took my turn in another group and we started milling through. Ordinarily such tours are ruinous as far as capturing any atmosphere goes, but this tour was somewhat different. This was because of the guide.

She was a folksy, middle-aged woman, who discoursed of the Wordsworth family in a gossipy way as if they were contemporaneous neighbors. This room that we entered from the front door was originally the kitchen, then a general living room. The room opening off it was once that of Dorothy, sister of Wordsworth, later, after the poet's marriage, occupied by him and his wife. In this room was a washstand and set used by Wordsworth in later and more affluent days at Rydal Mount, another Lake Country town a few miles away. I take this stuff from a little book I bought in the office, not from memory.)

I won't go into too much detail, but in the remainder of the nine rooms in the cottage much of the furnishings were those actually used by Wordsworth and his family. Most significant was the upstairs sitting room. Regarding it I quote from the pamphlet:

"Upstairs over the living room was the sitting room where they had their breakfast and tea and entertained their friends. Wordsworth's books (at that date) stood in a bookcase in one of the recesses by the fireplace. It is of this particular fireside that the poet speaks in his sonnet 'Personal Talk':"

"To sit without emotion, hope or aim,
By my half-kitchen, my half-parlor fire.
Here we can picture Walter Scott and his wife, or De Quincy and Mr. 'Slave-Trade' Clarkson, talking with the Wordsworths, and their most frequent visitor, Coleridge, far into the night; or in the earlier hours of the day, Wordsworth himself sitting at the table, musing, reading, writing, or dictating to Dorothy, while the rest of the family came in and out. Dorothy writes in the winter of 1807-8 that the severe weather 'has often compelled my brother to the sitting room when in a milder season he would have composed in the open air; indeed I cannot but admire the fortitude and wonder at the success with which he has labored in that one room, common to all the family, to all visitors, and where the children frequently played beside him.' More than any place within doors this room is associated with the writing of his poetry. 'While we were at breakfast,' writes Dorothy in her journal, on a Sunday morning in March, 1802, 'he wrote the poem, To a Butterfly. He ate not a morsel but sat with his shirtneck unbuttoned and his waistcoat open when he did it.' It was their habit for Dorothy to write at his dictation while he composed, and they toiled together at the laborious work of altering, revising and copying his poems."

This and more the pamphlet said in description of the room, but this will do here. I was amused at the gossipy chatter of the woman, running something like this:

"This here was the sitting room where Mr. Wordsworth and the family spent their time and where they used to entertain visitors, and where Mr. Coleridge, whose home was up at Keswick, really spent most of his time. Fact was, he spent more time at Grasmere than he did at home and some think it was on account of Mr. Wordsworth but there's others that think it was more on account of Dorothy, who was Mr. Wordsworth's unmarried sister. It seems like that Coleridge was really in love with Dorothy, him as had no right to as he had a wife of his own."

Naughty, naughty Coleridge. On we milled, through the nine rooms and out the back door into a tiny garden, whose rear end pitched steeply up the beginning of the mountain side, ascended by some rude steps which Wordsworth is reported to have built with the aid of a neighbor. The garden was simple, rather ragged, but beautiful with the wild flowers that rioted in banks everywhere over the Northumbrian hills. But now I'm getting into something I want to relate in another chapter, and as I returned again and again to the winding lane, we will herewith exit from the garden gate with a backward look at the wild foxgloves blooming under the cottage window.

Editorial

The greatest fault from the teachers' viewpoint of the average student is misdirected energy. Certain people, though their marks average a "C" spend their study hours having a good time. It wouldn't do any good to have increased assignments, because the conscientious pupils would then be overburdened and the others still wouldn't do their work.

A possible remedy for this condition might lie in teaching subjects so that they interest the pupil, which is not always easy to do.

Another cause of this misdirected energy may be the unbalanced schedule which a student elects. Some load themselves with extracurricular activities, while others, ignoring the "snap" courses, take a reasonable amount of serious work, with a healthy interest in clubs, but not so much that there is no time for homework.

It seems as if there isn't any hope for the people that do a large amount of "fooling" in study halls except by appealing to the sportsmanship of the lawbreakers. We cheer for touchdowns and shooting baskets; why not cheer for good citizenship?

Ambitions

Lorna Stretch wants to be a hairdresser, so sometime in the future when you want your hair done up, remember to look up Lorna.

If you want to learn how to dance, just look up Thelma Flanagan and Betty Myers. They are going to be great dancers.

Genevieve Davies would like to be a stenographer.

Norman Ferris desires to become a farmer.

Madeline Huebner's hobby is roller skating.

Donald Burrus and Donald Ochenryder enjoy eating candy.

We wonder why Fred Hagley always faces the back of the room instead of the front.

Pupils Fashion Block Pictures

They're quite lovely, the block pictures when pressed on cotton material cleverly make up by the skillful hands of our junior high school art class. The color scheme of black and white is very effective. Some of the pictures will be used to stamp Christmas greeting cards.

The class, along with this modern art selection, is studying the book, "Understanding the Arts," by Helen Gardener.

GIRLS' SPORTS

The girls' sport calendar for the winter hasn't been made definite yet, but Miss Henry predicts that there will be more practice and harder work among the girls due to the fact that there is more teamwork and not as many poor sports. Because of a change in rules, she cannot start the class tournaments until December.

Girl Succeeds

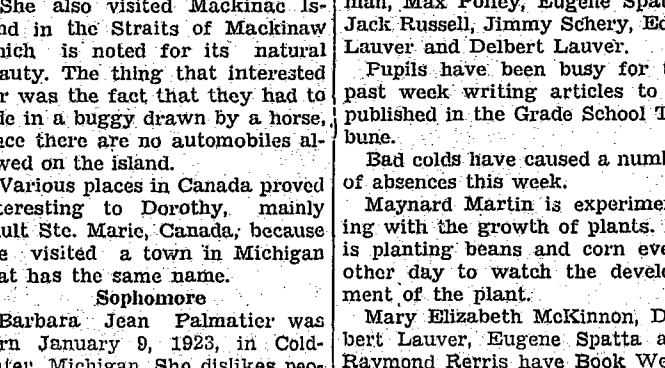

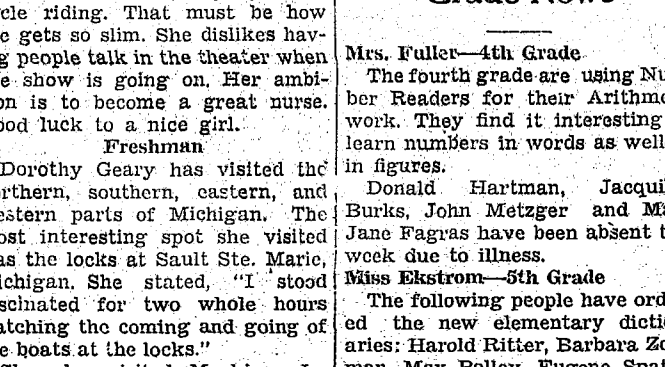

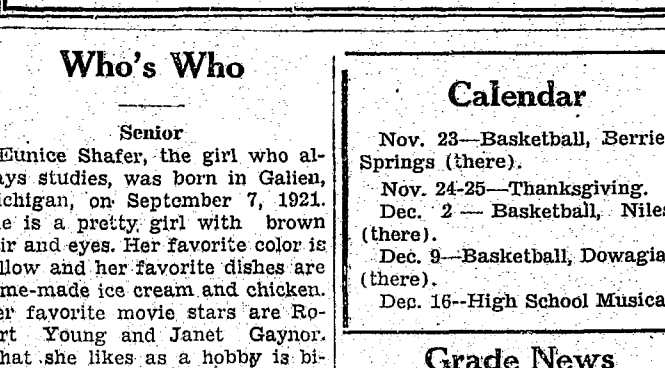

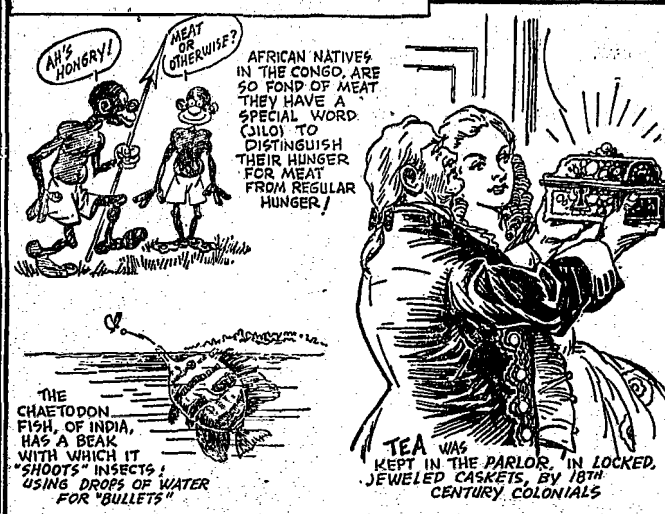

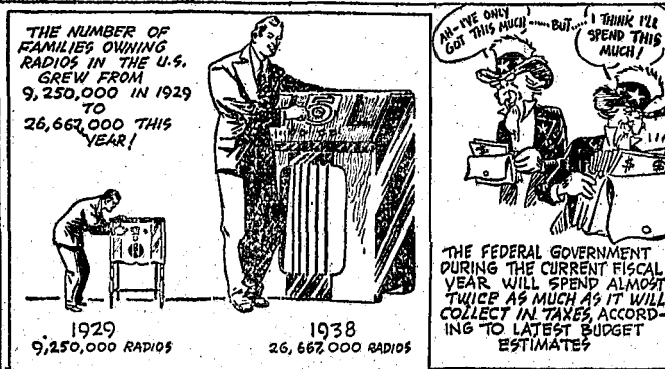

in Use of Tools

Roberta Davis, girl student of manual training, has effectively proved that a girl is an handy with tools as any boy.

She has recently completed a wrought iron end table in connection with the study of metals and woodwork.

The top is of polished walnut and made in two pieces dovetailed together so closely that the joining is not apparent. The legs are spiral and join the top with screws.

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE

Who's Who

Senior

Unice Shaffer, the girl who always studies, was born in Galien, Michigan, on September 7, 1921. She is a pretty girl with brown hair and eyes. Her favorite color is yellow and her favorite dishes are home-made ice cream and chicken. Her favorite movie stars are Robert Young and Janet Gaynor. What she likes as a hobby is bicycle riding. That must be how she gets so slim. She dislikes having people talk in the theater when the show is going on. Her ambition is to become a great nurse. Good luck to a nice girl.

Freshman

Dorothy Geary has visited the northern, southern, eastern, and western parts of Michigan. The most interesting spot she visited was the locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. She stated, "I stood fascinated for two whole hours watching the coming and going of the boats at the locks."

She also visited Mackinac Island in the Straits of Mackinaw which is noted for its natural beauty. The thing that interested her was the fact that they had to ride in a buggy drawn by a horse, since there are no automobiles allowed on the island.

Various places in Canada proved interesting to Dorothy, mainly Sault Ste. Marie, Canada, because she visited a town in Michigan that has the same name.

Sophomore

Barbara Jean Palmatier was born January 9, 1923, in Coldwater, Michigan. She dislikes people who talk in the snow, but likes to dance, so she attends all the school parties. Her favorite dish is baked ham and her favorite color is blue. Her ambition is to be a private secretary. She belongs to the Latin and Home Economics clubs.

Paul Edgar, Jr., "Peanuts" to you, was born February 6, 1922, in La Harpe, Illinois. He says he dislikes women, but who will believe him? His hobby is trying to be a good boy. (Note trying). His favorite dish is peanuts and his favorite color is blue. Paul is a junior in high school and belongs to the Speech Club. His ambition is to be a sailor. He is five feet, four inches tall and has gray eyes. Mae West is his favorite movie actress.

Have you noticed a little short boy who has blond hair and blue eyes and who, by the way, is going to be a lady killer in the years to come? His name is Francis Clements.

He was born May 10, 1924, in South Bend. His height is five feet one inch and he weighs ninety seven pounds. His hobby is swimming and his favorite dish is ice cream. His favorite movie stars: Wallace Beery, Will Rogers, and Mickey Rooney. Not one a girl. His favorite color is red. He likes everything because he said he didn't have any dislikes.

Workmen's Compensation

The oldest known attempt to provide workmen's compensation is the agreement, in a Roman district, that a vine trimmer killed in his work must be given a funeral pyre and grave by his employer.

Mary Elizabeth McKinnon, Delbert Lauver, Eugene Spatta and Raymond Ferris have Book Week Posters exhibited down town this week.

Miss Jeffery—6th Grade. Martha Fagras has been absent this past week. "The Book Week" Posters made in Miss Jeffery's room are displayed in the stores. Our milk sales have increased this week.

Victory String Is A "Brain Product"

With a record of three ties and thirteen victories in the last two years, the football team is making Buchanan history.

The winning streak isn't due to luck, though, phenomenal as it may seem. Coach Johnny Miller has contributed some fine work with the boys doing their best and long practice has created a man-power machine that works as smoothly as the best.

With a good backfield, and a nicely worked-out offensive, opposing teams are submerged by the "brain" playing of our team. Brown is essential, but a few well-chosen plays do a lot toward evening odds.

With the long string of victories, school spirit has revived amazingly. In fact, it has grown so much that five cheer-leaders are now yelling at every game.

Likes Art and Beauty

An Esthete is a person who professes (often used to describe one who extravagantly professes) to be a disciple of the creed that art and beauty are the most important things in life.

High School News

The Berrien Springs High School is sponsoring their annual "Popularity Contest" to claim the "Queen of Popularity" to preside over the carnival. Last year the winner was Miss Maxine Christmore, a former Buchanan High School student, who was a senior at that time. The winner is usually presented with a gift and a crown.

The Home Economics Teachers of Berrien County met at Dowagiac Monday, November 21. Miss Gladys Love, assistant state supervisor of home economics, was the leader. Miss Helen Krebs of Buchanan, president of the organization, presided at the meeting.

The Berrien County Teachers' Institute was held Thursday night, November 17, at 8 p. m. in the Baroda High School auditorium. The speakers were Mr. Frank Albrecht, director of the Field Museum, Chicago, and Mr. Davis, secretary of the Federated Teachers' Club.

At the educational exhibit, Buchanan took third prize of eight dollars in an apple judging contest.

On December 8 a team of agriculture boys will go to Grand Rapids to a state contest where they will judge apples. Last year Buchanan took fourth prize. "We hope to do better this year," says Mr. Langer.

Can you tell the difference between a Stark's Delicious and a Wolf River apple? The boy's agriculture classes are studying apple judging and identification this week. We wonder who's going to eat the apples after they have been judged.

The Library Club has begun rehearsing on the annual play which provides the fund which pays the cost of its picture in the school annual. "The Ring and the Look" is the play chosen. The two male characters are taken by Fred Manning and Kress Warson; the women characters by Florence Brewer, Bettie Widmoyer, Dorothy Sherwood, Evelyn Benak, Jacquelin Belotti and Martha Trapp.

The Home Economics girls have planned to fill baskets for Thanksgiving. Each girl is going to donate food or money.

They have also planned to have a party on November 29.

The next meeting will be December 6. One student is going to give a report about manners at each meeting. Myra Richter gave a report at the last meeting.

THANKSGIVING

Maryette Richards

Oh! am I hungry. Gee! smell that turkey. I didn't eat any breakfast this morning so I would have plenty of room for that big bird in the oven.

I was certainly glad to have my brother home from college. It seems I see him about once every month. I noticed all the other kids in town are home from college, too.

We are waiting for my Aunt and Uncle Joe to come. It seems they were going to bring the potatoes. Oh! me, am I hungry! Well, here they come at last. When do we eat? That is the question.

Everyone is eating his share of everything. I must say I never knew our family could eat so much.

Ohhhh! Ohhhh! don't be alarmed it is only me after the big feast. I had the bright idea of running around the house so I could come back and eat some more, but it didn't work. I am now lying down with a "tummy ache." I will never forget this Thanksgiving.

FOR THE LADIES

What would you do if the boy suddenly turned the tables on you in a public place?

For Example: Suppose you went to a public restaurant and he suddenly discovered the fatal charm of another girl? And showed it!

Or his stocking feet fumbled for his too-tiny shoes—shed under the table.

Or all of a sudden he pulled out his electric razor and started to shave in place of you powdering your nose.

Or he ran a comb absentmindedly and publicly through his hair.

Or he pulled out a mirror to see if his hat was tilted correctly.

How would you feel? Next time stop to think how the man feels when you primp and tidy up in public.

North Buchanan

One Touch of Nature

More than a touch of human interest and an indication of the instinctive leaning of the human race toward natural surroundings was contained in the story which comes from New York city, regarding Master Henry Christie, the 14-year-old grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Murtfield, who own the old Coveny homestead. The boy and his mother had spent the summer at the Merchfield home north of Buchanan. Although it is hardly to be expected that a year-old baby would show any choice in exterior surroundings, the mother wrote that the boy was apparently depressed for a time after he was taken back to New York city. One fine day she took him out to Central Park for a touch of nature. Placed on the grass the baby scurried rapidly under his own power to the nearest tree and clasped his arms about it.

"Trees," he gurgled, "trees!"

This report being compiled for submission by Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, to Governor Frank Murphy, will cover a period of twelve months.

Michigan has 51 active and 4 liquidating state chartered Building and Loan Associations, 78,477 members and investors have $65,120,741.58 invested. The total assets of the 55 associations is $80,907,344.75. First mortgage loans number 21,518 with an investment of $36,766,798.40.

Cliff Dwellings in Colorado

In Mesa Verde National park, there are several cliff dwellings that have been dated accurately by tree-ring chronology. In Spruce Tree House are roof beams constructed between the years 1230 and 1274 A. D. The Cliff palace was built between 1073 and 1273. The cave in which Cliff palace, the largest of all cliff dwellings, is situated was occupied originally in the First century B. C. or A. D. The Pueblo culture on Mesa Verde, which began to develop at that time, reached its classical stage about the Tenth century.

The Basket Makers, as the earliest cliff dwellers are called, were the first agricultural Indians of the Southwest.

Thanks Service

at C. S. Church

A Thanksgiving day service will be held by Christian Science Society of Buchanan in the church edifice, Dewey and Oak streets, at 11 o'clock on the morning of Thanksgiving Day.

The service will open with the congregation singing the hymn, "A Grateful Heart a Garden is," No. 3 in the Christian Science Hymnal.

The Thanksgiving Proclamation by the President of the United States will then be read by Mrs. George Mathie, the First Reader.

The Scriptural selection will be Psalms, 146 chapter and will be read by the First Reader. After the Scriptural selection the congregation will unite in silent prayer which will be followed by the audible repetition of the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Hymn No. 30, "Brood O'er Us With Thy Sheltering Wing," will then be sung by the congregation.

The lesson-sermon for Thanksgiving day given in the Christian Science Quarterly and read in all Christian Science churches in the United States and many other parts of the world will follow the second hymn. The subject of this lesson-sermon will be "Thanksgiving" and has for the Golden Text: "Offer unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the most High" (Psalms 50: 14).

After the responsive reading of Bible passages Miss Dorothy Wessendorf, the Second Reader, will read the citations chosen from the Bible, while Mrs. Mathie, the First Reader, will read the correlative passages from Science and Health.

Among the Scriptural verses included: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." (Mal. 3:10).

And among the citations from Science and Health is: "The rich in spirit help the poor in one grand brotherhood, all having the same Principle, or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother's need and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good" (p. 518).

A solo "Thanks Be to God" by Dickson, will be sung by Mrs. Elmo Montague, the soloist, after the lesson-sermon has been concluded.

Testimonies appropriate to the occasion will be given by Christian Scientists in the congregation. This period is completely filled by expressions of gratitude for healings and other help received during the past year.

The closing hymn will be No. 342, "This is the day the Lord hath made," and will be followed by the Scientific Statement of Being from the Christian Science textbook, and the correlative passage from I John 3: 1-3, read by the First Reader.

The meeting will be concluded with the benediction: "God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us. That Thy way may be known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations. Then shall the earth yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless us."
