With The Medal Men at Clark's

Being The Story of The Plant and Of The Men Who Built It By Building the Quality of Their Souls Into Their Work

CHAPTER 1

Over at the big industrial plant that hums on the other side of McCoy's creek there are 117 men still in harness...

During the past few months the writer has had from one to several conversations with over forty of these twenty-year men...

There's quite a lot of conjecture as to why these men have staid put for so long, and while we stated up above that it was on account of character and ability...

So if you go into one of the boy's homes and see one of those handsome medallions on the piano or the what-not, you may just infer that he was one of the boys...

In those days the boys were younger and had younger appetites, so naturally they left the plant for dinner a lot faster than they went to work...

beneath, sawed upward through. Then he parked (only they didn't use the word then) himself in a position of vantage...

Of course we couldn't divulge the source of information for the above or the identities of any of the parties and if you have anyone in particular in mind...

It was some years after the Clark Equipment company (then the George R. Rich Manufacturing company) moved its equipment from Chicago to Buchanan...

Just to fill out the picture this story will delve a little into the story of contemporary industries. And it will attempt to build a picture of the home lives of men...

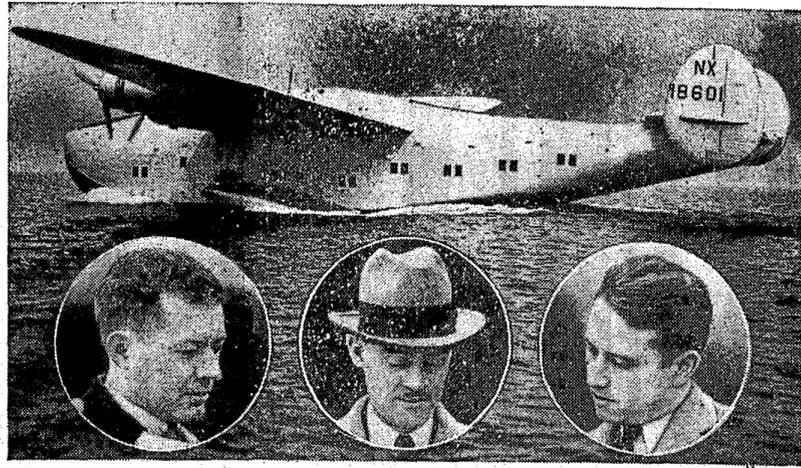

We would like to state further that we will try to be accurate but when we slip we will be glad to be told about it. This series will relate to things that scores of others still living here know better than we do...

The story will deal mainly with the working experience of the men and the development of the industry, but the story will be lightened occasionally with side touches of the amusements and the humorous things that sometimes entered even into the working hours...

During the publication of preliminary chapters and until we reach the beginning of the chapters where personal stories enter we will attempt to redeem a pledge we made to our forty and more informants to relay back to them copies of their stories...

We hope that the series will be of interest; that it will afford a real picture of the old town; that it will hold up for your consideration an accurate picture of social and personal life as it was then; that it will afford a real picture of an adventurous and ambitious young industry forging a place for...

Dear Friend Hawes: Michigan climate is preferable to that we have encountered in California so far. We appreciate the absence of ice and snow...

Orange grove smudges often conceal the snow covered peaks 11,600 feet high just north of our bungalow and sometimes gives the people Mexican complexions.

Clark Equipment Co. Develops Aluminum Car for City Subways

Experimental Car Being Built at Battle Creek For New York City

The following article is taken from the Feb. 8 issue of the New York Sun, and describes a new type of rail car for use in city subways, the first unit of which is being built at the Clark plant at Battle Creek for experimental use...

Interested, as explained below, in the construction of the car are the Aluminum Company of America and the E. F. Goodrich Company. The description follows:

After having endured jangling noises, dust-laden air and daily jouncings and jarrings in the subways for years, New Yorkers soon will have a chance to ride in a train that eliminates most of the causes of their sufferings...

Its ventilating system will keep a stream of clean air moving through the compartments. Its rubber springing and articulation of sections will remove the sway which keeps straphangers clutching frantically for support.

Painted dark blue and ivory with Chinese red stripes, the new train will speed through the subways on local runs at the same average rate of speed as that maintained on express runs, according to the designers.

Its ventilating system will keep a stream of clean air moving through the compartments. Its rubber springing and articulation of sections will remove the sway which keeps straphangers clutching frantically for support.

The car, built in three articulated sections, is the result of a $1,000,000 research program instituted by the American street railway industry to replace antiquated trains with equipment embodying the best modern scientific design.

The trucks and motors have proved their value already in the quiet, fast-starting and quick-stopping street cars under demonstration on E. M. T. surface lines in Brooklyn for two years.

Herbert Roe, Jr., and Robert Roe came Saturday to spend the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Roe, Sr. Robert was taken ill while here and it was necessary for him to remain in the home of his parents.

Alma C. Hawes Dies in Chicago

Long Illness Precedes Close of Life of Strenuous Service

The following article is not written in good journalistic taste and the writer does not mean to assume in so writing it that his losses are more significant than those of others. However, there are some who will understand that it is written as the writer must write it at this time.

Mrs. Walter C. Hawes, died at the Augustana Hospital, Chicago, at 2 p. m. E. S. T. Sunday, Feb. 12 after a long illness, the immediate cause of death being a sudden attack of pneumonia.

She was born Nov. 6, 1885, at Lobonas, Helsingland, Sweden, the daughter of John and Karin Nilsson. She received her elementary education in Sweden. At the age of eighteen, having determined that she would create for herself the career that was hard to achieve in her own land, she decided to come to America.

The brakes and motor are handled by the same controlling "joystick" instead of the usual differential handles to operate motors and brakes. The motor man has only one control to operate.

Among the innovations calculated to startle subway riders are mirrors in the wall paneling inside the car and the upholstery of the seats in green mohair. Though they add to the decorative quality of the car, the mirrors are to stop "mashing" by male passengers.

Experience has taught, E. M. T. officials say, that subway riders are not so likely to be naughty when what they do can be seen by every one riding in the car.

The new car was seen in a preview at Battle Creek last week by newspaper men and executives of the E. M. T., Clark, Aluminum and Goodrich companies, which developed the products used in its construction.

"An entirely new and revolutionary type of mass transportation vehicle has been created. It is with great interest as we look into the future that we contemplate the tremendous effect this car will have on the mass transportation system of not only Greater New York, but such other urban communities as Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston."

J. H. Connors, vice-president of the Goodrich company, pointed out that the car represented a transition period in the transportation industry in which rubber would assume the same important place in the transit and railroad field that it already has assumed in the automotive industry.

Ernest Minnum, a former resident of Buchanan, passed away at a Kalamazoo hospital Tuesday. According to local acquaintances of the deceased, he was confined to the Kalamazoo hospital a number of years ago, or about 1930. So far as is known, there are no living relatives.

Proposed Site Will Have 155 Feet Frontage on Front Street

A proposed site for a federal building in Buchanan submitted by Beatrice Vehle and Emily Wallace has been recommended to the treasury department by the Director of Procurement as a site for the proposed post office building, according to word received by postmaster A. G. Haslett.

The original proposal on this site made jointly by Mrs. Vehle and Mrs. Wallace, placed a valuation of $4,000 on the property of the former and $5,000 on the Wallace property, or $9,000 in all. The relatively lower valuation of this location over other available and possibly more desirable sites is thought to have been a factor in its selection.

The proposed site will have a frontage of 155 feet on the north side of Front street and a depth of 165 feet. The location is between Oak street and Moccasin Ave. Entrance to the rear will be provided by the alley which will permit trucks to reach a cement paved loading area.

Postmaster Haslett points out that the Buchanan postoffice has been within a half block of the proposed new location for forty of the past sixty years, and that the availability of the postal service to the people of the city will remain approximately as at present.

Boy Scouts

Troop 41 ended Scout week in high form by having a song fest Saturday night in the store which they had for their scout displays. Sunday evening they attended church services at the Methodist Church.

Troop 41 was buzzing with activity last Tuesday at scout meeting when John Olsen gave some demonstrations and a short talk about Physical Culture. Duane Chain was awarded the honor scout medal for 1938. Tuesday also ended the inter-patrol contest. The Stag Patrol won by a large margin with the Seal Patrol coming second.

Mr. Olsen gave demonstrations of what Physical Culture did for him, and told what kind of food and exercise to use to develop your body correctly. He also mentioned he would like very much to start a Physical Culture club if he could get some organization to sponsor it.

Duane Chain was awarded the Honor Scout medal of Troop 41 for 1938. Every scout in the troop rated each other on what he thought he was worth and Duane Chain came in first place with Dick Habicht taking second place with one point less than Chain's score.

The inter-patrol contest started in December and the Stag Patrol took the lead right at the start and stayed there. For winning the contest the troop awarded them with ten dollars which they can use to take a trip where ever they wish to go.

R. R. Revival Would Employ 500,000 Men

America's railroads in the next five years profitably could spend a billion dollars a year for new locomotives, freight cars, rails and for repairs, the Michigan Railroads Association declares in its February monthly bulletin.

"Such a program depends upon the ability of the railroads to re-enter the private credit market for the sums needed," the bulletin declares. "It would vastly increase the lines' efficiency, add great numbers of men to the roads' payrolls and provide employment for around 500,000 workers."

The lines' yearly locomotives during the next five years, under the survey, are placed at 2,000 with a cost of $200,000,000, about the average of the 1923-1929 period. In the years 1930-35, the average yearly locomotive installations were 174. In 1936, only 83 were purchased.

New freight car purchases during the 5 year period are set at 100,000 a year, to cost $300,000,000, against a yearly average of 21,000 in the 1930-35 period. Yearly purchases of new rails are placed costing $90,000,000.00 with yearly ballast requirements fixed at $10,000,000.00.

In addition, $25,000,000 can immediately be expended for locomotive repairs so as to reduce "bad order" locomotives to the standard 10% of the total, and $55,000,000 could be expended immediately for freight car repairs, to reduce the number of "bad order" cars to the customary 8%.

A sum considerably over one hundred millions a year could profitably be expended over the next 5 year period, the bulletin declares, to reduce railroad curves and grades, install automatic signals, build heavier bridges, fully ballast tracks, and for shop machinery, and otherwise to put the line in first class condition to meet the nation's freight demands.

Lloyd George, British statesman of World war days, is shown as he assisted Mary Wylie, a "water diviner," during a demonstration of her power on the former's estate at Churt, Surrey. Her visit was made at the statesman's invitation after he chanced to see the green fields on her farm, watered from a well that she discovered through her "power." George Washington

NEVER THREW A DOLLAR AWAY

George Washington did not throw a dollar across the Potomac, nor is there any recorded instance of his throwing a dollar away at any time.

The father of His Country was a thrifty business man and successful farmer who was noted for his sound management of his financial affairs. He was a shrewd, careful buyer who not only did not throw dollars away, but kept accurate records of every penny spent.

In your personal struggle for financial independence you may find inspiration in the life of George Washington.

Pheasant Hunters May Wear Numbers on Their Backs

Michigan pheasant hunters next fall may wear identification tags on their backs if a proposal now being considered by the conservation commission is given favorable action.

The proposal was offered before the Commission at its February meeting as a possible method of bettering relations between farmers and sportsmen.

Deer hunters for several years have been forced to wear identification tags on the back of their hunting coats, the tags bearing large numbers identical with the wearer's license number. According to conservation officials the method has not only been successful in identifying hunters involved in game law violations, but it has had a deterring effect in that hunters hesitated to violate the law knowing that they could be easily identified. It is proposed to extend the same system to apply to Michigan's half million small game hunters.

The proposal came as a part of a discussion on various county Sunday hunting laws. Several of the state's southern counties are now closed to Sunday hunting. There are now bills in the legislature which would close three additional counties. Although such acts are entirely a matter for legislative action and for local determination, Senator George P. McCallum, Ann Arbor, asked the Commission what might be done to clarify the present situation. It is felt that with some counties open to Sunday hunting and some closed, there is an enormous hunting pressure on the "open" counties.

Test Pupils For Hearing Defects

Eighth grade pupils were tested with the county-owned audiometer last week for defective hearing.

The tests were conducted in the arts room of the manual training building with the pupils facing one another over the desks. Before each place was a slip of paper with blanks, to fill in about any previous trouble with the ears. Earphones having a phone on one side and a leather pad on the other were then given each pupil. When the victrola to which the earphones were attached was started, the pupils heard first a woman's voice which dictated three-digit numbers to them. The voice gradually faded away. Then a man's voice repeated the process.

After the right ear was checked in this manner, the left ear was tested.

Those showing low marks were tested over again to exclude any possibility of doubt. A request will be sent to parents of students with defective hearing asking them to comply a doctor.

The audiophone set consists of the victrola and several units to which are attached about twelve earphone sets. All are carried in two motor fabric suitcases.

Junior Play Is One Rib-Tickler

Tonight the junior play is to be presented at 8:00 o'clock. Directed by Miss Orpha McNeil, it's guaranteed to scare away the cares of the audience.

Lorraine Fletcher and Bill Ednie play the leads as Mrs. and Professor McIntyre. They are the parents who see their children in a bad attack of adolescence and don't know what to do about it.

One doesn't know whether to sympathize with them or laugh at their concern.

The play has very few adult roles, so the characters are allowed to give full rein to their abilities to portray people like themselves. It's "gonna" be good!

ANNUAL PICTURES ALL TAKEN

All pictures for the school annual, The Pines, have been taken by Paul Frank. They must be in the hands of the engraver by the end of the month. The seniors pictures were taken before Christmas, but the group and class pictures were completed only last week.

H. S. Considering A Constitution

A typical high school council government constitution has been posted on all room bulletin boards for the inspection of the pupils.

Two years ago the question of whether H. S. should have a student council was put to a vote. It was defeated.

There will be no action taken unless students wish to adopt the plan.

Show 1st Picture With Projector

The first picture shown with the new school sound projector was "Backward Civilization." This picture was a splendid example of what visual aids may do for grade children. Following is a paragraph written by a fifth grade boy after the picture.

"A Chance to Look at the World"

Bring the world to the classroom is the rule being followed by the Buchanan Schools. The school has bought a moving picture projector and a sound projector. If possible there will be a moving picture, one for the high school and one for the grade schools, shown sometime each week. Both Dewey and High School will attend the entertainments. The first of the pictures was called "Backward Civilization." It was a picture about a tribe of people in northern Africa who are almost entirely cut off from the outer world. These people live in caves and stone huts. Beautiful pottery, perfectly made locks, and fine baskets were shown. Methods are used that date back to Christ's time for making all the things—such as bread, cloth, wicker work, everything is made as the Bible folks made them. The name of this tribe's people is Berbers. Living in a land of sand and mountains the Berbers have mingled with their goats for years and probably will for years to come unless the outer world's ways finally break into that backward country. The grade school will expect many other interesting films and speaking of them I would say they have appreciated the first and are looking forward to the next one.

Eugene Spatta, (Fifth Grade).

Gay Pares Not So Gay These Days

The twelfth grade French class has handed in drawings of interesting sights in France. Pictures of famous cathedrals and castles predominated, but several excellent drawings of French peasants and nobility are included.

Particularly interesting was a pictorial map of Paris which showed principal avenues and buildings.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

"House in No End Hollow," by May Justus, is interesting, though it follows the time-worn formula for most mountain girl stories. That is, the heroine is struggling to get an education, is learning to utilize her talents to make money and keep the starving family alive. She teaches school in the teacher's absence.

MOVIE OF THE MONTH

"If I Were King," starring Ronald Colman, has been voted the most outstanding movie to come to Buchanan this month. "Kentucky" was second choice and "Dawn Patrol" third.

Projectors Shows Shanghai Bombing

The new projector was used at a general assembly Monday of last week when pictures of the bombing and evacuation of Shanghai were shown.

The chemistry classes were shown a movie about the Berbers, a savage tribe of Northern Africa.

Boys Will Have Recreation Room

The F. F. A. members have utilized the Ag. room for a noon hour recreation room. They have in the room a ping pong set and a radio.

While the plan is still in the test stage, it is hoped that it will become a permanent feature.

The pupils are enjoying a Cape Cod weather glass. The water is dyed so it can be seen by all in the room. The girls and boys think it great fun to foretell the weather.

Demonstrates How Pupils Should Read

Miss Geraldine Fritz gave a demonstration lesson in second grade reading at a regular meeting of the grade teachers. Silent reading was followed by oral reading. Children asked for individual help with words when they needed this help during the silent reading period. Isn't it important for the child to assume the responsibility of finding out when he does not know? A check was made of the words which the children did not know. These were reviewed later. If the word was phonetic, the individual was shown how to figure out the word for himself. They were words which the child felt a need for knowing or working out because he met them in a natural reading situation. One cannot get the meaning from the printed page unless the symbols which convey this meaning are known. The demonstration was followed by a discussion and an evaluation of the lesson. In this discussion all of the teachers participated.

Home Management Class The Home Management class of Buchanan high school gave a luncheon on February 14 honoring Mrs. Clarence Bradley, a former member of the class. Miss Lucille Quade, teacher of the commercial department was a guest also. The table was decorated in red and white, carrying out the spirit of Valentine's Day. Miss Natalie Proud acted as hostess and Miss Ramona Dalenberg as host. Miss Helen Krebs is the instructor of the class.

Alma E. Hawes Dies in Chicago

(Continued from page 1) spoken English and a fluent and correct knowledge of written English. She secured admittance to the Augustana hospital and graduated from the course with honors. After a few years of work in her profession in Chicago she went to Marshalltown, Iowa, where she served as instructor in nursing in a hospital. Since she had not been certain at first whether she would remain in America she was not naturalized when the United States entered the World War. She enlisted in Red Cross nursing service and nursed in army camps during the flu epidemics. She meanwhile applied for enlistment as an army nurse as soon as she could get citizenship papers. The war ended shortly before the completion of this process. Following the war she served as superintendent in several hospitals, including one in the environs of New York City, Binghamton, N. Y., and another near Schenectady, New York, her work being terminated in each case by trips to Europe to her home, whenever a member of her family there died. In 1922 she was called to Wheatland, Wyoming to reorganize a hospital and establish a nurses' training school there. She conducted this school from 1922 to 1926 and received wide attention, her students regularly taking the honors in the state examinations then required for nurses there. There she met the writer and began a friendship that resulted later in marriage. In 1926 she resigned to go to her home in Sweden following the death of a sister. During this trip she traveled in several countries in Europe, in Egypt and in Asia Minor. Returning in 1927 she entered private nursing work in Chicago with the idea of supporting herself while completing her education in English. She enrolled in a Chicago preparatory school and completed the four years of high school entire in one year, graduating with honors, while working part time at nursing. She then continued in special studies at Northwestern and DePaul universities, with the idea of ultimately getting a degree. This was terminated when she and the writer were married at Geneva, Ill., Oct. 4, 1929, at which time she marked a finish to her ambitions and transferred them entirely to her husband. From this time on she wrought with a single purpose and whenever an appearance of self-seeking entered her life it was the mask of a passionate purpose in behalf of another. Marriage to her did not mean getting down, but a change of purpose. With that love of a tasteful home that is typical of the inhabitants of her native Sweden she set her self to realize in a measure at least her ideals in a mutual dwelling. At the time of her marriage she had offers to return to her position at Wheatland, Wyo., and to organize a new hospital for the Swedish Lutheran church in Kansas City and to accept the superintendency. But by that time the driving force of a spirit which had brought her alone from the Old World to the New and had carried her through two ordinary lifetimes of work and achievement began to tell on a body that had been strong but not strong enough. She refused to heed ample warnings and carried on. Her last final drive on her physical resources was the realization of a determined purpose that she and her husband should go to her native home in Sweden and visit her mother and two surviving brothers, and that in the course of this trip her husband should have an opportunity to see some of that world which she had seen. This too she did. They had the pleasure of an unforgettable visit in Sweden. She arranged that her husband leave her home and make his trip through Europe, while she spent the summer with her mother. She remained too long and encountered the difficult fall trip across the North Atlantic. It was at this time that the illness began which ultimately wore down her strength. Arriving home she fought for health but with a spirit that began to flag. Then it came increasingly upon her that she would not recover. The nature of her illness was never diagnosed with any agreement by physicians. After several trips to the Augustana hospital she finally entered it for the last time Dec. 29. After a searching examination doctors diagnosed her trouble as a rare muscular affliction called myositis gravis, very difficult of treatment. Others refused to believe that she would not come out well; she determined on the contrary. The last weeks were spent as systematically as any of her life, working assiduously that nothing unsettled or misunderstood should survive her, and to set her remaining life rigorously in order for the last event. Life she loved and hoped for but she faced death steadily. Through a multitude of letters written with declining strength she wrought to see that her husband should suffer or regret as little as possible. The end came suddenly and unexpectedly when she was suddenly stricken with pneumonia Friday night after several days of apparent improvement. She was clear in mind to the last and conversed with her husband for several hours before the end writing with a pencil and paper since her illness prevented talking. She died dauntlessly and with a full knowledge of the immediacy of the event which those bending over her lacked. Her last lines, scrawled aimlessly down the page, were: "It comes to all; I want to have the courage—" ed an estate in futurity. This is not a proper news story but the writer hopes only that it would have pleased her. "The grace, divine, definitive, Clings only as a faint forestalling; The laugh that love could not forgive Is hushed, and answers to no calling; The beauty, shattered by the laws That have creation in their keeping, No longer trembles at applause Or over children that are sleeping; And we who delve in beauty's lore Know all that we have known before Of what inexorable cause Makes time so vicious in his reaping."

HOLLYWOOD

FRIDAY — SATURDAY "Up The River" announced as a hilarious combination of music, broad comedy situations and prison football, opens with a cast featuring Preston Foster, Tony Martin, Ulyssis Brooks, Slim Summerville, Arthur Treacher and Bill Robinson. Most of the action takes place within the walls of a mythical state penitentiary, where the happy inmates boast of a radio in every cell and gates that are practically directed by Alfred Hitchcock. Second feature is another one of those comedy hits that will please all from 6 to 60. "Thanks For the Memory," starring Bob Hope and Shirley Ross.

SUN. — MON. — TUES.

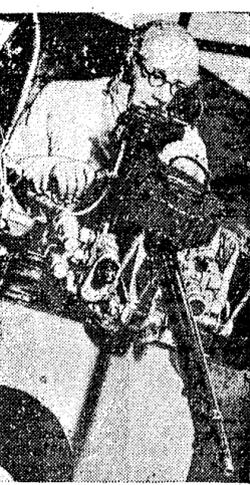

A new Jeanette MacDonald, and Nelson Eddy and a new warmth, color and comedy spirit in musicals makes itself manifest in "Sweethearts," fifth co-starring musical of the famous singing team. Technicolor has given both singers a more vivid personality, while the up-to-the-minute story devised for them by Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell from the Victor Herbert operetta provides the stars with comedy characterizations which should win them legions of new followers. In "Sweethearts" Miss MacDonald and Eddy portray two Broadway musical comedy stars who are husband and wife in private life. Their quarrels, temperamental outbursts and jealousies, together with their joint attempt to outwit a producer who wants to prevent them from accepting an offer from Hollywood, make for a comedy which is rich in laughter and at the same time replete with beautiful and original song and dance presentations.

The tune is "being hummed about town" by a number of young people who have learned the tune and with whom it has caught on. "Although the lines do not read very smoothly as verse, a little examination will show that they have something of the lilt that would make them adaptable to the rhythm of swing music. Facts About the Telephone

The first telephone exchange in Ohio was opened at Cincinnati on September 1, 1875. At one time, before the development of underground cable, the top of Detroit's city hall served as a support for several hundred telephone wires. Put down the figure 10, then add 88 eighths, and you will have the amount the voice is amplified by repeaters on a telephone call between New York and San Francisco. In large cities, much of the central office telephone equipment is of such weight and height that telephone buildings are constructed with floors 50 per cent stronger and stories several feet higher than most buildings.

LIGHT UP FOR SAFETY To brighten old lights ask your Buick dealer about his new headlight safety service. Spring's on the way! Get out and meet it! Easy on the eye—easy to buy—on General Motors terms! NO, we're not trying to beat the gun—we'll be seeing quite a lot of winter before the spring buds burst. But spring always has come—and with it a sudden itch to get out and see the awakening world. And also—all too often—the sad discovery that to get the new car you want, you've got to wait till a flock of others get theirs! So what? So take steps now—to meet spring halfway! Forget that old, worn-out notion that there's a season for buying cars and a season for not buying cars! Take steps to retire that slow-motion number you're driving now—and replace it with a Buick bursting with newness and get-up-and-git. Put a Dynafash straight-eight under your toe to do battle with tough winter going—get the comfort of BuCoil Springing to float you smoothly over rough and rutted roads. Get a new outlook for winter horizons or for spotting the first flush of green on the meadows in Buick's "visibility unlimited," which gives you as much as 412 more square inches of safety plate glass to see through. Then consider also: Your present car is worth less each day as a trade-in. The risk of repair bills grows steadily greater. Old rubber's dangerous, tired batteries a bore—and a bright new Buick is sound and supple all through. Besides—the cost of keeping up an old car will go a long way toward meeting your monthly payments on a new one. And Buick's prices—as of course you know—are lower than a year ago, lower than you'd expect, lower than some sizes! So why not drop in to talk it over? You'll probably want to get your Buick while the getting's good! "Better buy Buick—NOW!" EXEMPLAR OF GENERAL MOTORS VALUE 120 N. MAIN STREET JOHN F. RUSSELL, Inc. BUCHANAN, MICH.

Children in Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield
Types of Parents
Three boys recently stood in court and illustrated the point that perfectly normal children can become delinquent even though they come from widely divergent types of homes.
The first youngster came from a splendid home, and became delinquent because of a brief laxity of supervision on the part of his parents. The child was permitted to return to his home, however, after his father and mother were made to realize that they were really capable of correcting the situation without outside support.
The second boy also came from a good home environment. His parents, however, were unable to control this child's conduct because outside influences interfered with their home discipline. In this instance it was necessary for the court to assist the parents by calling in the local police to remove the unwholesome influences that existed outside the home.

The third offender was a product not only of poor parentage, but also of a vicious environment. Therefore the court was compelled to remove this youngster from his environment and place him in an adequate boarding home. Even his procedure would not have corrected the symptoms of delinquency in the child if he had possessed a low intelligence quotient which would have prohibited him from expressing an earnest desire to reform.

The Broken Home
Reputable lawyers are today frowning upon members of their profession who specialize in divorce cases. The American Bar Association has finally become aware of the alarming fact that, for every six marriages, there is one divorce, and that children are involved in at least one-third of all divorce cases. The public should welcome any action taken by jurists themselves to eliminate the evils of the divorce mill which is directly responsible for hundreds of thousands of children being denied the rights to a normal home life.

Hardly a day passes in our larger courts that does not see one or more delinquent children tried, who are products of homes broken up by divorce. The states of Illinois and Michigan are to be complimented on the strict marriage laws which they recently enacted to put an end to divorce which is the result of a hasty marriage. If children are to receive proper protection in the future, society must not only make and enforce stricter marriage and divorce laws, but must also endeavor to promote stability and happiness in homes where death has entered. It has been estimated that approximately forty per cent of all delinquent children are rooted up from broken homes.

Gas Produces Eyes in Cheese
The holes or eyes in Swiss cheese are produced by the liberation of gases generated by bacterial action during the fermentation process. It was formerly thought that the atmosphere and grass of Switzerland were essential to the development of these eyes, but the U. S. department of agriculture has shown that good Swiss cheese can be produced in other parts of the world by employing a bacteria starter.

Jumping Mouse Is Strong
The jumping mouse, a species widely found in temperate eastern North America from Nova Scotia to Alaska and from Virginia to James bay, is possessed of exceptional muscular strength. It leaps as much as 40 times the length of its own body or 10 to 12 feet at a bound which is comparable to a deer leaping 100 yards in one jump.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Romans 11:33, 34): "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor?"
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health" with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 469): "There can be but one Mind, because there is but one God; and if mortals claimed no other Mind and accepted no other, sin would be unknown. Washington News Letter

Who is the Boss?—Neither
As has happened in the past, the President, head of the executive department, has collided head-on with a Senate, of the legislative department. The President had a "rubber stamp" Congress so long that it seems difficult for him to believe that it will ever assert itself. Unfortunately for him, he picked the worst possible issue for his last attempt to impose his will upon Congress when he insisted his nomination of Judge Roberts be passed upon by the Senate.
Perhaps misled by the action of the Senate in approving the appointments of Hopkins and Murphy to positions in his Cabinet, the President attempted to appoint a Judge of a United States Court, notwithstanding he was warned of the opinion of the Senate.
Hopkins and Murphy were members of his official family, charged with carrying out the policies of his administration; hence, whatever any individual might think of their qualifications, or of the suitability of the appointment, after calling the demerits of the two to the attention of the President, there was reason—because of their terms and when the President goes out of office—for permitting him to make his own selection of his aids; to pick good assistance if he wished; poor ones, if he insisted. In fact, from a political standpoint, the appointment of Hopkins and Murphy were advantageous to the Republicans, so their duty was finished when the public and the President were advised of their lack of qualification.
The selection of Federal Judges rests on an entirely different basis. They are not charged with the duty of carrying out the President's policies. They are in charge of the interpretation of the law as it affects everyone.
The Constitution expressly provides that the President shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint Federal Judges.
The President erroneously assumed that he could disregard the Senate but he found once again, as he did when he attempted to pack the Supreme Court, that he would not be permitted arbitrarily to ignore the constitutional provisions; hence the Senate by a vote of 72 to 9 rejected his appointment.
Neither the President nor the Senate is the "big boss." Under the Constitution, they act together, or not at all.
At the very beginning of our history as a nation, two appointments, one to the Navy, one as Minister to France, made by the Father of our country, President

Washington himself, were rejected by the Senate. Washington, abiding by the constitutional provisions, recognizing the right of the Senate, quietly withdrew his nominations and that without any criticism of Senate action.
Fifty-Billion-Dollar Debt
A federal statute provides that the United States shall not go in debt more than forty-five billion dollars $45,000,000,000. Now comes the Secretary of the Treasury and tells us that a fifty billion dollar debt will not be dangerous.
Quite evidently, the President intends to continue to spend more than the Nation receives and to ask Congress to raise the debt limit. It was in 1932, when the National debt, was $20,900,000,000, that the President told us that, if we continued to spend, the Nation would be bankrupt. This last statement from his Secretary of the Treasury shows that he anticipates that, by the end of his term or shortly thereafter, that debt will be more than doubled.
We are continuing to do the very thing which he said would "bust" us.
Where is the Fire?
The last Congress appropriated relief funds to carry us through until June next, but WPA went ahead, regardless of Congress' wishes, spent the money too rapidly and then came up for a co-located deficiency appropriation; that is, it came to Congress to pull it out of the hole it had gotten itself into. Congress, on the 2nd day of February, gave it $7,125,000, knowing that, if it cut out political grafting, purged its rolls and administered its affairs economically, that it would be sufficient to carry it through until June.
The President did not like it because Congress refused to give the 150,000,000 extra that he asked, so, on the 4th of February, back he came with a public emergency, telling us there was another great emergency.
Representative Taylor, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee could not see it, for, commenting on the President's message, he said, "We have just finished with this and conditions haven't changed any. There is nothing afire." This quite accurately expresses the sentiments of many Congressmen.
By the appointment of Roberts to the Federal Bench; of Amle to the ICC, the President challenged the right of the Senate to question his wishes. By now demanding that the House accept his version that a great public emergency exists and give him $150,000,000 for relief, he challenges the right of the House to determine the amount to be appropriated, although that authority is expressly given it by the Constitution.
Whatever your opinion may be on the matters above referred to, do some thinking about what is happening and consider, if you will—if you chance to be asking for Federal funds, that the Federal Government do this, that or the other, each of which costs money—that you, through taxation, must provide the money.
Sincerely yours,
Clare E. Hoffman,
Your Representative.

Fifty-Billion-Dollar Debt
A federal statute provides that the United States shall not go in debt more than forty-five billion dollars $45,000,000,000. Now comes the Secretary of the Treasury and tells us that a fifty billion dollar debt will not be dangerous.
Quite evidently, the President intends to continue to spend more than the Nation receives and to ask Congress to raise the debt limit. It was in 1932, when the National debt, was $20,900,000,000, that the President told us that, if we continued to spend, the Nation would be bankrupt. This last statement from his Secretary of the Treasury shows that he anticipates that, by the end of his term or shortly thereafter, that debt will be more than doubled.
We are continuing to do the very thing which he said would "bust" us.
Where is the Fire?
The last Congress appropriated relief funds to carry us through until June next, but WPA went ahead, regardless of Congress' wishes, spent the money too rapidly and then came up for a co-located deficiency appropriation; that is, it came to Congress to pull it out of the hole it had gotten itself into. Congress, on the 2nd day of February, gave it $7,125,000, knowing that, if it cut out political grafting, purged its rolls and administered its affairs economically, that it would be sufficient to carry it through until June.
The President did not like it because Congress refused to give the 150,000,000 extra that he asked, so, on the 4th of February, back he came with a public emergency, telling us there was another great emergency.
Representative Taylor, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee could not see it, for, commenting on the President's message, he said, "We have just finished with this and conditions haven't changed any. There is nothing afire." This quite accurately expresses the sentiments of many Congressmen.
By the appointment of Roberts to the Federal Bench; of Amle to the ICC, the President challenged the right of the Senate to question his wishes. By now demanding that the House accept his version that a great public emergency exists and give him $150,000,000 for relief, he challenges the right of the House to determine the amount to be appropriated, although that authority is expressly given it by the Constitution.
Whatever your opinion may be on the matters above referred to, do some thinking about what is happening and consider, if you will—if you chance to be asking for Federal funds, that the Federal Government do this, that or the other, each of which costs money—that you, through taxation, must provide the money.
Sincerely yours,
Clare E. Hoffman,
Your Representative.

Unemployed Rural Boys Working Way In State College

Quartered in an abandoned fraternity house, 28 young men, representative of Michigan's unemployed rural youth, are studying scientific agriculture at Michigan State College this winter...

These aspiring farmers come from all over the state—from Branch County on the Indiana border to Barabara on the shores of Lake Superior...

This novel resident work project started operation on the first of the year under the direction of NYA Supervisor Leslie A. Wilcox.

The average day at this resident work center finds the 28 young men going to classes from 8 to 12 in the morning and working at jobs directly related to their own academic instruction during the afternoon.

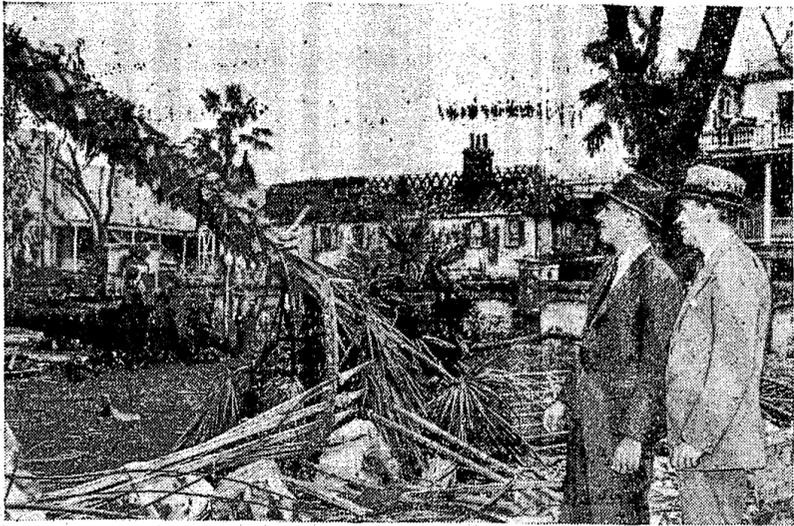

These youths, hand-picked from hundreds of applicants, are paid $25 a month by the NYA for their work. Their quarters are run on a cooperative basis and each must pay his pro rata share of the food and lighting expenses.

The most intensive correlation of study and work-experience on any NYA work center or resident work project in the state is a feature of this program.
