Business

A friend of the Record recently handed us the following clipping from a western paper, which we herewith reproduce as worth passing on:

BUSINESS is getting up at six to meet a customer at eight who doesn't show up till ten.

BUSINESS is pleading with your customers to be patient while you exercise the privilege of being impatient with your subordinates.

BUSINESS is scheming ways by which you can help your customers to make an extra dollar in the hope that they will let you keep ten cents for yourself.

BUSINESS is driving all day to see a man who is 'in conference' when you get there.

BUSINESS is reaching for the restaurant check and getting stuck with it nine times out of ten.

BUSINESS is getting indigestion and liver trouble from entertaining the trade.

BUSINESS is borrowing money to pay the tax collector.

BUSINESS is pretending that you are prosperous when you haven't made a cent for two years.

BUSINESS is showing a prospect how a job should be done and then having him give it to a competitor.

BUSINESS is felling happy about landing a job on which you will probably lose your shirt.

BUSINESS is erecting barriers against salesmen who want to see you and advising your own salesmen how to get through the barriers erected against them.

BUSINESS is fun—if you like it.

Six Members of Fairman Family and Elaine Blaney Take Precautions

Official notice is carried elsewhere in this issue of a quarantine on all dogs of the city voted by the commission at the March meeting Monday night and effective March 7 until June 7.

The action was taken on notice from the city health officer, Dr. J. C. Strayer, that seven persons are being given Pasteur treatments for rabies, including Mr. and Mrs. George Fairman and Miss Elaine Blaney. The Fairman's dog was killed last week on suspicion of rabies and the head was sent to the University of Michigan laboratory which returned a positive report.

Miss Blaney had been bitten by another dog.

The quarantine requires that all dogs in the city shall be securely chained or securely confined by the owner on penalty of fine or imprisonment or both. No provision is contained in the order for permitting dogs to roam abroad with muzzles.

Co-ops To Observe Annual Farm Machinery Day March 15

With The Medal Men at Clark's Being The Story of The Plant and Of The Men Who Built It By Building the Quality of Their Souls Into Their Work

CHAPTER 4 Containing A Rather Disjointed Relation of The End and the Beginning of The Lee & Porter Works

Not long after midnight on the morning of Feb. 11, 1913 a young man might have been seen—in fact was seen—galloping madly northeastward through the then northerly outskirts of the city, intent on arriving with the utmost possible speed at the scene of an evidently major conflagration raging in the Lee & Porter Axle works plant, which had stood until that fateful morning on the hither bluff of the St. Joseph river about opposite the site of the present Indiana & Michigan Electric company power house.

The young man's name was George Kelley, then and now a well known citizen of Buchanan and the reason for his speed was the fact that in a small wooden cupboard nailed to a post in the buggy machine shop were the hourly records, constituting the only evidence by which he could collect his pay for the previous week. Kelley had long been a trusted employee, doing for the most part special expert work, and he had been permitted to keep his own time. The week's pay was about $30—good pay for those days, but Kelley sometimes ranged as high as $50 weekly on piece-work at the Lee & Porter plant.

That was the reason why his long bounding strides carried him past all the other foot travelers on the path angling through the snow and weeds on vacant lots since developed as the Burkhard addition. (Continued on Page Five)

Two File for City Office

One Commissioner; 2 Supervisors, 2 Constables to be Elected

Two petitions have been filed for offices to be filled at the coming city election on April 3, Edward F. Mitchell and Fred French having entered petitions for re-election as constables, two to be elected.

The wide-spread understanding that three commissioners are to be elected this spring has been proven wrong, as the amendments to the city charter voted in 1937 make the following provision:

"In the event of a vacancy in any elective office the mayor shall fill such vacancy for the unexpired term, subject to confirmation by a majority of the commissioners."

According to this amendment the two commissioners, Leland G. Fitch and John Kobe, who were named by Mayor J. C. Wilson, in place of Frederic Smith and Fred Swartz, resigned, will hold office for the terms of the men they replaced rather than until the next election.

Next Monday, March 13, is the last date for filing petitions of candidacy. One commissioner, two supervisors and two constables are to be elected.

New Subway Car Shipped from Battle Creek Plant to New York City Sunday

Is Latest Product of Research in Municipal Railway Improvement

Shipment was made Sunday from the Battle Creek plant of the Clark Equipment company of the new aluminum bodied subway car completed there for the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company, for experimental use in New York City.

The car had been placed on its trucks and was loaded in this way on three flat cars, the unusual height of the shipment making it necessary to route to New York City over lines where no low bridges would obstruct passage. It was estimated that the car should arrive in New York City today.

The construction of this experimental subway car is the latest development of the $5,000,000 program of research begun about eight years ago by an organization including the heads of the street railways of ten major American cities, with a view to developing an improved car for street railways that would counteract the trend toward bus transportation. The undercarriage of the new car is the same as that used in the modern street cars, for which the Battle Creek plant has built 800 sets of trucks for the cities of Chicago, New York City, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Los Angeles, Washington, D. C., San Diego and Toronto, Can. Eighty of these new street cars now operate on the Madison street circuit of the Chicago street railways.

The new car is striking and attractive in appearance. The exterior color design is light blue at top and bottom with a wide middle panel of ivory. The colors are separated by lines of bright Chinese red. Over the length of the monitor top and down each end runs a dark blue stripe. Inside the color scheme is blue-green with green upholstery.

The cars are built in three segments, this articulation tending to relieve the swaying of the cars in rounding the subway turns. The cars are governed to the maximum speed of 45 miles an hour, which is "tops" for city rail transportation.

Time saving is made in quick pick-up. The passenger capacity of the car is 84 seated and 318 standing. If the cars prove successful, they will eventually be operated in trains of seven cars, carrying 2290 passengers.

Other companies interested in the success of the car are the Aluminum Company of America, which aided in engineering the aluminum body, the E. F. Goodrich company, which is interested in the new type of rubber springs supporting the car body, and the Westinghouse Electric.

Evidence of the interest in the new car was afforded by the presence of head officials of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company, who were present much of the time at the Battle Creek plant while the new car was being constructed.

William Gardner Dies in Detroit

William Gardner, 88, retired farmer of Glendora, died Tuesday, March 7, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Myra DeSonia, Detroit, where he had gone for an extended visit early last winter.

He was born in the Glendora community in Weesaw township Nov. 2, 1850, and spent his entire life in that vicinity. He married Sarah Stevens in Berrien Springs May 25, 1879. They celebrated their golden wedding nearly ten years ago. His wife died June 23, 1938.

He lived many years on the Gardner farm between the Painter and Gardner schools south of Glendora, where his son, Howard Gardner, now lives. About twenty years ago he retired from farming and he and his wife moved to Glendora. Survivors are three children, Mrs. Myra DeSonia, of Detroit, W. E. Gardner of Albion and Howard Gardner of Glendora.

County Candidate Talks to Teachers

A group of teachers from the south Berrien county area met Tuesday afternoon at the Thompson school on the Niles-Buchanan road, County School Commissioner Jennie Mechem aiding them to outline plans for the remainder of the year. Edward Murdock of Three Oaks, the Republican candidate for county school commissioner, spoke briefly before the meeting.

Frank Hurst Dies Three Days After Being Caught in Buzz Saw Belt

William T. Richards, 79, county poor supervisor and former city assessor and member of the county board of supervisors from Buchanan, was fatally injured Monday afternoon when his car was struck by the caboose of a switching train as it backed over the Hickory creek crossing on US-31 three miles south of St. Joseph.

Mr. Richards died in the St. Joseph Sanitarium a few minutes after he was taken there.

His automobile, which officers said was carried 90 feet along the right-of-way, was demolished. Mr. Richards was riding alone and the only witness was Theodore Lausman, who was standing at a filling station on the curve south of the crossing, about two city blocks distant. He saw the train and auto approaching the crossing and waived and shouted, without avail.

The train, consisting of three freight cars and a caboose, was backing, caboose foremost, toward St. Joseph on the Gallien branch line.

Mr. Richards either did not hear the train's whistle or became confused.

The crossing commands a clear and unobstructed view in all directions.

Deputy Sheriff Ted Aushrook, who, with Deputy Charles Davis, investigated the accident, said members of the train crew said the caboose struck the front end of the automobile, swinging it parallel to the track and dragging it along the cinder grade.

The train was in charge of Conductor Frank Barnhart of Niles. The engineer was Tagg Noey of St. Joseph. William Brown, St. Joseph, was the fireman, and John Schilla, Benton Harbor, and Ralph Armsby, Michigan City, brakemen.

No passenger trains have operated on this line for several years. Mr. Richards was en route to the county hospital and infirmary at Berrien Center with pay checks for employees there.

He had obtained the pay checks at the court house here about 20 minutes prior to his fatal accident.

Richards was born in Pennsylvania Sept. 15, 1859, the son of William and Mary Richards. He was reared and educated in Pennsylvania, being graduated from the Lock Haven normal at Lock Haven, Pa. After teaching several years in Pennsylvania he came to the vicinity of Hinckman, where his parents had preceded him two years. He taught in a number of schools in that vicinity, including the Burks and Mt. Taber schools.

He came to Buchanan in 1908 and was engaged for years in painting and paper hanging here. He served a term as city assessor or as member of the county board of supervisors from Buchanan. In 1933 he was appointed county poor supervisor and had served in that capacity since.

He is survived only by a niece, Miss Allene Harner, Buchanan, and a cousin, Mrs. John Stover of Berrien Springs.

Services will be held from the Swem Funeral Home at 2:30 p. m. today, with Dr. John D. Perrin, Congregational minister from Waterville, in charge. He will be buried in Hinckman cemetery beside his parents. Pallbearers will be Howard Westfall, James T. Clark, Miles Miers, A. G. Haslett, John Wynn, and William Miller.

Killed in Buzz Saw Accident Military honors were accorded Frank Hurst, 45, World War veteran, at a funeral held at 2 p. m. yesterday from the Swem Funeral home, with the local American Legion post in charge of arrangements and Rev. R. C. Puffer as the officiating clergyman. Burial was made in the American Legion Mound at Oak Ridge cemetery. Hurst died at 3 p. m. Saturday in Pawating hospital as the result of injuries incurred Thursday morning when his arm was caught in the belt operating a buzz saw. He was thrown some distance, his head striking a block of wood. His (Continued from page 5)

Librarians Report Increase in Reading in U. S.

More library books, less employment, and greater interest in current happenings have increased the reading habit of Americans and pushed upward registration and circulation figures of large public libraries, according to Carl H. Millam, Secretary of the American Library Association.

He reported findings from a survey of 35 cities of more than 100,000 population in the United States and Canada during the mid-winter conference of the American Library Association held here recently.

The European situation has sent people by the hundreds to public libraries, it is reported from many cities. Books about Czechoslovakia, about the Jews and their history, about conditions leading up to the Munich crisis, and other volumes dealing with current political and economic trends are as widely sought after on the West Coast as on the East, or in the Middle West, it is reported.

Aid to Education

The unusual interest among grown-ups in filling more education in the gaps left open in their earlier school days has been responsible for much of the increased reading, many librarians stated. People attending adult education classes learning more about vocations, about literature, music drama, and practical crafts crowd up to the library desks for books on the various subjects.

The increased popularity of the radio throughout the country is also responsible for more reading, it is claimed. People gathering in listening rooms to listen to radio broadcasts on public questions, continue their own debates after the broadcast is over and ask for more books on pertinent subjects.

In Minneapolis, for instance, there was a gain of 450,000 books borrowed for home use during the first 11 months of the year. This was due partly to an extensive series of lectures, forums, and club meetings which brought 30,000 people to the library. A steady increase in the number of requests for reading courses in labor problems and economics is noted in Minneapolis.

Demand for Non-Fiction
In Seattle, Wash., Judson T. Jennings, librarian, reports a greater demand for non-fiction than in 1937. Books on economics in general, he said, including information on social security and co-operatives, the Supreme Court, international relations, books written by foreign correspondents on the European situation are all very popular. Books which exceed all others in demand are those dealing with the Spanish War, China, Japan, Hitler, and the Jews, he said.

The general increase in books borrowed in St. Louis libraries is attributed to shorter working hours, and more duplicate copies of popular non-fiction titles. Furthermore, it is noted by librarians there that the European situation has increased the demand for pertinent titles. In addition, a special interest is shown in amateur photography by the number of books checked out on this subject. Moreover, people are interested in self-improvement, it seems, and are borrowing books on good English, political and economic questions of the day, creative writing, biography, history, and other educational subjects.

Fictional Favorites

Although non-fiction appears to attract more people than fiction, yet many novels are in demand. In St. Louis, the 10 books of fiction most in circulation in 1938 were—"Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell; "Citadel" by A. J. Cronin; "Northwest Passage" by Kenneth L. Roberts; "The Rain Came," by Louis Bromfield; "And so Victoria" by William Vaughan Wilkins; "Mortal Storm" by Phyllis Bottome; "The Yearling" by Marjorie Rawlings; "My Son, My Son" by Howard Spring; "Nutmeg Tree" by Margery Sharp; and "Wall" by Mary Roberts Rinehart. For the past few years regional novels have been more in demand than novels of the soil, St. Louis librarians report.

Among the most popular non-fiction titles during the past year in many libraries were the following—"The Importance of Living" by Lin Yu-tang; "The Horse and Buggy Doctor" by Arthur E. Hertzler; "With Malice Toward None" by Margaret Halsey; "Listen to the Wind" by Anne Lindbergh; "Madame Curie" by her daughter, Eve Curie; "How to Win Friends and Influence People" by Dale Carnegie; "My Battle" by Adolf Hitler; "My America" by Louis Adams; "America's 60 Families" by Ferdinand Lundberg; and "Alone" by Richard E. Byrd.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Allen and daughter, Niles, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hagley.

Ray Babcock returned home last week after enjoying several weeks in Florida. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Babcock expect to return home the middle of this month.

The M. E. Ladies Aid Society held a business meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Ernest Renbarger. After the meeting the ladies sewed carpet bags.

Bobby Renbarger has been quite ill the past two weeks with whooping cough and bronchitis and is under the care of Dr. Kuppeling, Three Oaks.

Naming of Patron Saints
In the old Norman French village of Vaucelles the Fifteenth-century choir of the church named its patron saints very democratically, for here are statues to Monsieur Saint Paul, Monsieur Saint Pierre, Madame Sainte Anne, and others.

Greatest of Chinese Poets
Li Po, born 701 A. D., is considered by many critics the greatest of Chinese poets.

When White Man Grabbed Land Got Hunting Rights

Right to Hunt and Trap West with Land Ownership

Although the matter was decided by the United States supreme court more than 20 years ago, the department of conservation continues to receive inquiries concerning the hunting, fishing and trapping rights of Indians. The impression still seems to prevail among some tribes that they have a right to hunt, fish and trap at any time and anywhere, and to take whatever they want, regardless of the state's game laws. Delegations have even visited the department to announce that they are planning to defy the game laws in a test case.

The strongest test case, however, was decided in 1916 when the United States supreme court ruled that Indians do not have any special fishing, hunting and trapping rights once they have ceased to occupy their tribal lands. The case was that of Chief John Williams, et al, of the Pottawatomies, versus the city of Chicago, the Illinois Central railroad, et al. The court ruled, first, that "the only possible immemorial right which the Pottawatomie nation had in the country claimed as their own at the time of the concluding of the Greenville treaty of peace of August 3, 1795, was that of occupancy."

On that basis, the court ruled further that "when this right of occupancy was abandoned, all legal right or interest which both tribe and its members had in the territory came to an end." The court stated that by the Greenville treaty the "United States stipulated with the Pottawatomies and other Indians that, generally, in respect to (the territory in dispute) . . . the Indian tribes who have a right to those lands are quietly to enjoy them, hunting, planting and dwelling thereon so long as they please, without any molestation from the United States," but when those tribes, or any of them, shall be disposed to sell their lands or any part of them, they are to be sold only to the United States and until such sale, the United States will protect all said Indian tribes in the quiet enjoyment of their lands against all citizens of the United States and against all other white persons who intrude upon the same." That protection, the court ruled, ended with the termination of occupancy.

Lengthy Books Were Popular in Italy in Middle Ages

Lengthy books, such as "Gone With the Wind" and "Anthony Adverse," are not products of this age alone. As long ago as 1480, only 29 years after Johannes Gutenberg invented the process of printing with movable type, printers in Parma, Italy, were turning out books of 1,000 pages or more. One such book, in two volumes, neatly printed in regular Roman type, with large margins and on good paper is included in a recent gift to the University of Michigan Library Collections. This book, described as a well-executed specimen of early printing, is the "Letters of St. Jerome," edited by Theodor Lactius.

The letters are in two volumes, the first containing 252 leaves, the second 28, making almost 1,200 pages, with 52 lines to a page. St. Jerome, author of the letters, lived from 340 to 420 and was one of the most learned Fathers of the Latin Church and a very prolific author. He is credited with translating the Old and New Testaments from Hebrew and Greek into Latin, and writing explanations of the Scriptures, theological controversy, history, and biography. His letters are ranked by scholars with those of Cicero, Seneca, and Pliny.

Along with this rare book the University was given two other incunabula, or books printed before 1501. These books are bound together in what appears to be the original binding of wooden boards, with the back and two-thirds of the sides covered with stamped pigskin. One of the books is a legal treatise by Platea, a celebrated canonist and preacher of the fifteenth century. It was printed at Speier by Peter Drach in 1489 and contains the mediaeval ideas on questions pertaining to daily living and morality.

Fear of Punishment
Indians of Guiana have a great fear of supernatural punishment for murder. It is there believed that a spirit brings punishment in the form of sickness or death, a hostile avenging spirit with the power of entering the body of a serpent, jaguar, or insect, in which form he follows the murderer for weeks until the culprit is poisoned, has his limbs dislocated or is killed outright.

Socialite—Honeymooner—Baseball Magnate

Miss Valerie Cole (left) of London, England, will be presented at court by her aunt, Mrs. Neville Chamberlain. She is making her home at No. 10 Downing street, the prime minister's home. Center: The former Gloria Baker, heiress to $11,000,000, whose marriage to Henry J. Topping, tinsplate heir, took place in December, left recently with her husband for Honolulu, where they will spend several months at the George Vanderbilt home. Right: Helen Winthrop Weyant, 37, former chorus girl, is the largest beneficiary under the will of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, brewery and baseball magnate. In addition to $300,000 in cash, she gets one-third of the income of the residuary and baseball trusts.

Washington

News Letter

A Miracle

"No new taxes," says Roosevelt. "Encouragement to business," says he, Morgenthau and Hopkins. At the same time we are requested to make continued excessive appropriations.

The politician's typical slogan—Vote against all new or higher taxation; vote for all additional, greater spending. How can the budget be balanced? Perhaps Artemus Ward gave us the answer long ago when he said, "Let us all be happy, and live within our means, even if we have to borrow the money to do it."

"Busted"
"We have a national debt of $40,000,000,000 and a guaranteed debt limit of $45,000,000,000. . . . Something must be done now to meet this serious situation. . . . If immediate and unified plans are not laid and enormous and unprecedented expenditures are continued with the national debt mounting, economic confusion and chaos are inevitable."

For four years I have been criticized by some, and by some abused, because I insisted on voting against excessive appropriations; because I believe such a policy would inevitably bring us trouble. Now the day is at hand when we must either vote to increase the national debt limit of $45,000,000,000, cut appropriations or vote increased taxation.

The words in the first two paragraphs under this heading are not my words, but the words of Democratic Senator Pat Harrison, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee made a similar statement. These two gentlemen, loyal Democrats, have been forced to express publicly the opinion they have no doubt long held privately, the principle for which I have fought through four hard years—that expenditures must not continue to exceed income—something we all know but which has been consistently disregarded by the New Deal spenders.

There is just one way to relieve the situation and that is to quit appropriating funds in excess of what we know the Government will receive. That I have been voting to do—will continue to do as long as I am here. Any other course means added taxation—money which "must be paid in the sweat of the man who works."
Last week Congress voted $17,000,000 for the building of another dam in connection with the TVA. Even if the purpose was good, the project sound, this is no time to spend tax money for something we do not now need. By a combination of political trading and log-rolling, other millions were appropriated for local purposes, everyone seemingly being interested in "getting his" while the spending was going on.

The President started this spending. He has made many people believe they need only ask to get Federal funds. The result is that many classes, many groups, Starting as a messenger boy at the age of 13, John G. McCarthy, 50, who served seven consecutive years as a director of the Chicago Board of Trade, was recently elected president of the organization. It is an honorary post in that he serves without pay.

While demanding economy in general, insist that more money be appropriated for the purposes in which they are interested. Everyone is willing to economize, provided the other fellow's appropriation is cut and his own granted. Kindly be patient with me while

I continue to use common sense. Act on the theory that, if we spend, we must pay. You follow that policy and find it good—in fact, the only safe policy. Support my efforts to apply it in national affairs.

Why Horse Is Called 'Dobbin'
"Dobbin" is a general or familiar name for any horse, especially an ordinary draft or farm horse. The name "Dobbin" was so widely used in England as a pet name for horses that it became a general nickname for the entire equine species. It was a familiar name for a horse in the time of Shakespeare. In the "Merchant of Venice," which was first printed in 1596, Old Gobbo says to Launcelot: "Thou hast got more hair on thy chin, than Dobbin my philhorse has on his tail." "Dobbin" is a diminutive of the proper name "Dob," which is a variation of "Robin" and "Rob," which in turn are variations of "Robert."

'Hobby' Meant 'Small Horse'
'Hobby' originally meant a 'small horse,' then a toy horse and favorite amusement.

Launch Sale of Wildlife Stamps Here

Drive On To Create Interest And Aid in Financing Restoration Work

Sale of national wildlife stamps now is under way in Berrien county to culminate in National Wildlife Restoration week to be held March 19 to 25.

John Monger, general chairman, has announced Berrien's quota has been set at 2,500 sheets of stamps, selling at $1 a sheet. Each sheet contains 80 stamps.

They are being distributed for sale through garden clubs, 4-H clubs, and sportsmen's clubs.

Proceeds for Conservation
The proceeds will be used to aid in wildlife conservation in local, state and national fields.

Twenty-five per cent of the proceeds may be retained by the local organization handling the sale of the stamps.

Ten per cent will go to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

The balance of 65 per cent will go to the National Wildlife federation.
In each instance, however, the money must be used in some form of conservation and restoration work.

A 3-Fold Objective
National Wildlife Restoration week is built around a three fold plan:

1. To bring about a wider and fuller public understanding of the wildlife crisis and to initiate public thinking.

2. To win organized support and effort along the wildlife program, to give the public an opportunity to act and do something about it.

3. To obtain voluntary financial support for the movement so that it may carry on from year to year and task to task; to carry programs to conclusion.

Stamps in 80 Designs
The stamps are made up of sheets in 80 designs, depicting game, waterfowl, mammals, birds, fish, trees, wildflowers, etc.

Wildlife week will be a national event. President Roosevelt will issue a national proclamation, and scores of governors have agreed to issue state proclamations. Schools, radio stations, newspapers, magazines and clubs all are joining in taking part in a program to stimulate interest in and help finance the conservation and restoration of the nation's greatest asset—its wildlife.

'Fish Mail' Used by Chinese

A type of "fish mail" is so well known in China that letters are nicknamed a "brace of carp." The term refers to an old legend of days when intrigue ruled the royal court, and each man was justly suspicious of his neighbor. A plot was hatched at court and, when a powerful prince got wind of it, the conspirators eluded his traps by sending each other gifts of carp. In each fish was a note. Because of this legend, the story-loving Chinese long folded their notes roughly into the shape of a carp. They even pictured the messenger carp on some of their early postal stamps.

Sugar in All Green Plants

Sugar is the first carbohydrate found in green plants, and some sugar is found in all green plants. Sugar cane is especially rich in it. In candy-making, cane, corn, beet and maple sugar are the most commonly used.

The reduction in January cut the cost for the first block of 30 kilowatt-hours to 6 cents and the lower blocks to bargain prices. On July 1, 1939, there will be another reduction to 5 1/2 cents for the first block of 30 kilowatt-hours and on December 31, 1939, it will be cut to only 5 cents per kilowatt-hour.

THERE are good reasons why so many folks are talking about the 1939 Ford V-8!

One obvious reason is the fact that it provides so much car for so little money. Actually, it costs less than a Ford car of the same size and power sold for last year! And its low price includes many items of desirable equipment. The Ford V-8 has all the room and all the basic features of the De Luxe Ford. Some of them are listed at the left!

But riding is better than reading. Out on the road, you'll soon understand America's enthusiasm for the car that is big in everything but price!

FORD V-8 FOR 1939

With the Medal Men at Clarks

(Continued from page 1) Kelley lived then in what is now known as the Markham apartments, just two doors south of his present home at 312 Main street. Waking with an uneasy feeling about 2 p. m. he saw his room lit up with a bright glow and leaped out of bed to the window to see the whole northeastern sky lit up like a Scarlet O'Hara morning glory. He surmised the location of the fire and jumped into a pair of boots and an overcoat, neglecting such items as pants, shirt and coat. The bottom of the overcoat overlapped the top of the boots, so there was no danger, barring accident, of jarring the rather strict properties of the day. Arriving at the plant in time that would have done Glenn Cunningham credit he found the flames still for the most part in the two northwesterly or down stream buildings, the newer automobile axle building and the bike axle building. His records were in the central part of the buggy machine shop, just up-river from the bike axle building. The flames were catching on that structure and it was dense with smoke, but he ran in, jerked the cupboard off the post and ran out to a place of safety with his records. His week's pay thus safe, his mind turned to a valuable tool kit in a drawer inside. But the place was then getting hotter and the smoke was thicker. Nevertheless he tied a handkerchief over his face and dashed back into the smoke. Fumbling about he found the drawer in tools, but the smoke and heat began to tell on him. He dropped on his hands and knees and crawled out, dragging the tools after him into the fresh air. These were the only tools salvaged from the Lee & Porter plant and that board cupboard, now nailed up in Kelley's garage, is the only part of the structure now extant, except the old stone floor which may yet be seen on vacant ground near the river bluff. Of course we have started this story from the wrong end. That fire marked the end of 18 years of axle making by Lee & Porter. Starting early in 1895 on carriage axle production, the company marked the break from the buggy to the automobile age. Up until automobile axle production was launched under the direction of R. J. Burrows late in 1909, the factories of Buchanan had hummed the tune of "Wagon Wheels" for over fifty years. That part of the old Northwest Territory comprising the southern half of the lower peninsula and the regions between the Great Lakes and the Ohio river had inherited the wagon and carriage trade from Pennsylvania and New England as the center of population had moved west back in the forties and fifties of the last century. A wealth of hardwood timber adjacent to the rapidly developing farm wealth of the great Mississippi valley was responsible for the location of the carriage and wagon trade here. And when the motor replaced the horse as the propelling power, the district, especially lower Michigan, retained its supremacy in the making of wheeled vehicles. The case of Buchanan is typical. Starting with the making of wagons and buggies and their parts, the town now specializes in automotive truck parts. The story of the Lee & Porter Axle works seems worth telling here, both for that reason and because it was a training field for many of the older Clark medal men, who in turn put the Clark Equipment company in the automobile field when nearly the entire personnel of the automotive division of the Lee & Porter plant was absorbed by Clark's shortly after the fire of February 11, 1913. As was said in a previous chapter, the building of the power dam by Holmes and English led to the location of the Lee & Porter Axle works here. The story can hardly be told completely and authoritatively now, for all of the men who were responsible for the location of the company here and for its early management are gone—Fred Lee, Henry Porter, Judd S. Clary, Peter Bachman—all of the men who could have related the general outline of early developments correctly and fully. R. J. Burrows, the man responsible for putting Lee & Porter in automobile axle production, has kindly given the writer a complete account of developments in that department, dating from September, 1909, on. In covering events previous to that date it will be necessary to tell a rather sketchy story. Luckily a number of the men who worked in the plant during the days of buggy axle production are here, and they are able to give correctly the detail work of their particular share in the operations. They include George Kelley, Charles Dumbolton, Charles Simpson, Morrow Chubb, Herbert Hanover, Frank Chubb, Judson Markham, J. L. Vincent, Guy Young, and possibly others. Several of the present medal men joined the Lee & Porter force after automobile axle production was begun there. Fred Lee apparently got into business in Buchanan as the result of advancing money on a mortgage on the Buchanan Power & Electric company, builders of the dam. Holmes and English built the dam in 1893. In 1894, the financial weather being a little nippy, they borrowed some $30,000 to $40,000 from Fred Lee and his wife, Kate Lee, of Dowagiac, giving a mortgage on the dam. Things getting worse instead of better, the Buchanan Power & Electric company went into voluntary assignment to J. L. Richards, father of Joseph and George Richards of today. Before Richards could acquire control, John C. Marble started suit to throw the company into receivership. In May, 1895, the Michigan Trust company of Grand Rapids was named receiver. In September, 1895, the Lees foreclosed. In the meantime Fred Lee, never a hard-faced man, had attempted to recoup his loan by other means, and particularly by taking over certain power rights in the dam, with the idea of forming a company for the production of axles. Henry H. Porter of Dowagiac had a patent on a "dustproof axle," the idea of which was a lip on the shoulder of the spindle of the buggy axle which fitted into a groove in the boxing, keeping out dirt. The axle also had another feature, a slot in the spindle to receive a felt pad to promote oil retention. These particular axles were known as "1,000-mile axles" it being claimed that they could go 1,000 miles without greasing. Lee formed a company in partnership with Porter to manufacture these axles. The Berrien County Record of July 26, 1894, has the following to say: "On Monday (July 23) an agreement was signed by the Buchanan Power and Electric Light company and Messrs Lee & Porter of Dowagiac, by which our town is assured of the long talk-of axle works. The power company deeds to Messrs Lee & Porter some two acres near the dam on this side of the river, on which it is proposed to build the plant. This plant will have a capacity of 150 sets of axles a day and at first will employ in the neighborhood of 50 hands. Messrs Lee & Porter are well known to Buchanan people and their foreman, Mr. J. W. Hubble, is from Cincinnati, O., where he has had a large experience in the manufacture of goods of this class." After this agreement had been entered into, things proceeded rather slowly, an obstacle being a controversy with the Michigan Central over who should pay for the switch, nearly two miles long, from the railway to the plant. News developments were rather poorly covered in those days, when the printers set the type by hand, and nothing further appeared regarding the actual building of the plant until the issue of Dec. 13, 1894, when the Record said: "The axle works have the cable attached to the water wheel at the dam and we may soon expect to hear the hum of their machinery." Then on May 9, 1895, the Record stated further: "Three carloads of freight were taken over the Michigan Central spur on Monday, May 6, laying of rails to the point having been completed." In the preceding issue of May 6, 1895, it had been noted, as quoted in the Record of last week, that Lee & Porter were then in production, with 50 hands receiving a payroll of $2,500 per month. Meanwhile Fred Lee was in a way to become more heavily interested in Buchanan than he had bargained on. Foreclosure proceedings went their course and in January, 1896, the Michigan Trust company deeded the dam and accruing property to Fred and Kate Lee. Later, on Oct. 9, 1900, the Lees sold the dam to Charles A. Chapin, reserving two acres as the site of the Lee & Porter Axle works, and a right to the first 125 horsepower in the river. Fred Lee maintained his interests in Buchanan for about thirty-five years, owning at various times the Hotel Rex building, the old First National bank building, the building in which the Clark News Depot has the street level room, the building where Watson's barber shop is, the one where the Federal Building & Loan is, and the present American Legion building. Lee was then generally rated as two times a millionaire, his source of wealth being the round Oak Stove works, of which he became president. He acquired this wealth by marrying the daughter of P. D. Beckwith, founder and builder of the Round Oak Stove company. He became interested in banking here when, in February, 1897, he opened the Lee Brothers Bank, in partnership with his father, Chauncey T. Lee, and his brother, Henry M. Lee. Later the bank owned the lower floors of the building now housing the Union State Bank. In the next chapter the writer will attempt to give a picture of the production and of the boys at work in the Lee & Porter plant. (to be continued)

St. Patrick's Day rightfully belongs to the Irishman, but throughout the country you will find many a person, who regardless of not belonging to the clan, wearing the gay green shamrock or displaying "The wearin' of the green."

Accidents Take Toll of Lives

(Continued from Page One) injuries consisted of a fractured skull and a double fracture of his left arm. The saw outfit was operated by Otto Siewert in what is known as Ghost Hollow, on Chicago road west of the Portage road to South Bend. The men were "buzzing" the tops of trees, cleaning after the operations of a lumber company in the woods on the former Lewis Kaufman farm. Other men at the scene of the accident were Alois Letcher, Russell Letcher, William Kell and Robert Kell. The Swem ambulance was called and he was taken immediately to the Pawating hospital. He recovered consciousness only at brief intervals before his death three days later. He was born at Owenburg, Ind., Dec. 12, 1893. He married Stella Doty, who survives him. He had lived around Buchanan 17 years, having moved to Portage Prairie recently from the Charles Boyle farm west of Buchanan. Other survivors are a step-daughter, Mrs. Frank Trapp of Buchanan; the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Spang, Mrs. Tillie Young and Joe Hurst of Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. Herman Heese of Batesville, Ind.; George Hurst, Peter Hurst and Henry Hurst of Owenburg, Ind.

BRISBANE, QUEENSLAND. — The owner of a parcel of land on Stradbroke island which disappeared several months ago as a result of erosion now insists that his property has reappeared on Main Beach Point, and that he intends to reclaim it. Downeasters Tell How To Cure Seasickness

EASTPORT, MAINE. Downeasters contend an old-fashioned New England remedy is a "sure cure" for seasickness. The sufferer, at first symptoms, must throw a line over the side and catch a dolphin. The heart of the dolphin, still quivering, must be cut out and consumed—and the cure is "guaranteed."

Daytonite Sings Dirge for Old Mill

A pioneer resident of Dayton contributes the following in regard to the sale of the old Dayton mill to colored people, and its adaptation from a mill to a residence and rooming house. The old Dayton mill which received quite a bit of publicity five years ago when plans were going forward for the manufacture of fertilizer has changed ownership once more. The new owners are colored people from Chicago. Having exchanged properties of some kind with the former owner, The new owners have ripped out all the machinery except the water-wheel and sold everything for junk. So it seems that the days of the old mill as a feed grinder or fertilizer plant are gone forever. The mill has recently been wired for electric lights. The upper story will probably be divided into rooms for the accommodation of Chicago friends coming to the old town to spend the summer months. A number of other improvements on the mill are being planned by the present owners. And so it looks like Dayton's population will increase the coming summer if nothing else.

The Old Mill in The Vale

Beneath the hill there stands the old mill Of wasting wood and crumbling stones. The old wheel is still there, but turning no more Since Paul—the miller is dead and gone.

You have seen some prosperous days. You've also had a stormy career. But now the people of Dayton are sore Because the old mill has changed hands again.

The darkies we hear they have bought the mill. The darkies they say they are here to stay. So what is the use to try and raise Cain Because the old mill has been sold to them.

All the machines have been taken out. All the old wheels have been sold for junk. No more will you grind any feed again. Because the old mill has changed hands again.

The farmers they say the Lake is too high. Some say the Lake is a little too low. How are the darkies going to please them all. But the old mill now belongs to them.

No one knows what the darkies will do. No one knows what your future will be. But we'll always be pleased to see the old mill. Even though we hear you've been sold again.

No one wanted to buy the old mill. The people of Dayton had many a chance. So now all they can do is to sit and sob Until the old mill—changes—hands—again.

Eligibility requirements are that farmers have been earning the major portion of their income from farming in the last two years. Amount of loan will depend on size, productive ability, and type of farming. These loans are for farmers who are unable to obtain credit at their local bank or other loaning agency, provided, however, that their references are acceptable. Applicants will be expected to follow a farm and home management plan which will be worked out by the family and the County Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor. Loans can be obtained in order to purchase livestock and machinery, also seed and fertilizer. Live-stock and machinery loans will cover a period of five years. Seed and fertilizer loans will be given two years. Interest rate will be five percent per year. County Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor will assist in connection with farm management problems, which pertain to the management of their individual farm. Farmers who need a loan of this type should file their applications if possible by the fifteenth of March in order to allow time to get loans before spring work begins. The Berrien county office will only make loans to farmers who are living in Berrien county or plan to operate a farm in Berrien county for the coming year. Although in eruption since remote antiquity, it virtually died about 1910, says Collier's Weekly. For several years, however, it would erupt when some 40 pounds of soap were thrown into it.

French Club Visits Notre Dame Library

At a meeting of the French Club Tuesday, February 28, the final plans were made for the proposed trip to Notre Dame to see the splendid library there.

The committee consisted of Barbara Schram, Ruth Jean Haslet, and Karol Dunlap. The roll call was answered by names of animals in French and a questions-and-answers game was played in French.

The French proverbs that decorate the walls of Mrs. Weaver's room are proved to be the expert work of Eugene (Peewee) Stullis. Mrs. Weaver plans to change them often because it will be less monotonous than seeing only one all the time.

The front of the room will have Latin mottoes; the back, French proverbs.

The first class in French are now purchasing the names of boys and girls in France who wish to correspond with Americans.

However, one-third of the persons who are interested will have their names sent to France and will therefore receive the first letter.

The names are furnished by Geo. Peabody College of Nashville, Tennessee.

Children in Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

The Ever-Present Moron

Considering the fact that thousands of mentally defective persons are at large throughout the nation, it is unwise for parents to permit their daughters to dress in a manner that will expose any part of their anatomy. The public is frequently made aware of this problem by reading press descriptions of the attack of some moron of sex pervert on an innocent child. Young men and women must also be made to realize the danger of parking their automobiles along country roads or in non-residential sections of the city. There is need for parents to take greater precaution in educating their children to shun the approaches of adult men who profess to take a fatherly interest in them.

How Economic Factors Influence Delinquency

An interesting case was revealed in court in which two young girls went on marauding expeditions to provide themselves and their younger brother and sisters with adequate food, fuel, and clothing. As the father was dead, the widowed mother was forced to seek outside employment. The family income was so meager that these children preferred to steal rather than go to school and face their classmates in altered clothing. The girls were constantly aware of their shabby appearance when they observed the well-dressed youngsters of more prosperous families. This situation was shortly corrected when the court secured a widow's pension for the mother, and aided the two girls in finding work.

A community which makes no effort to provide employment for the type of children herein described should not be surprised to see them gradually develop into serious offenders.

Kelly Urges Operators, Chauffeurs to Report Changes in Address

Few persons can change their places of residence, as a matter of routine, without notifying the postman and certain commercial firms with which dealings or accounts are maintained. Relatively few licensed drivers of motor vehicles in the state have ever realized that the same law that requires that they be licensed, also stipulates that any licensed operator or chauffeur who shall change his residence previous to the expiration of his or her license shall "immediately" return such license to the local examining board, or the department of state, whose duty it shall be to write on said license, the new address and the date of change. The law also states that failure to have such change of address recorded may be cause for the revocation or suspension of the license.

The department of state has been called on several occasions to furnish the correct home address of licensed operators in this state, when the appeal for aid in locating people was for the purpose of notifying friends or relatives who knew that the person sought was a licensed automobile driver in Michigan. In unsuccessful cases, failure to locate the missing person was attributable only to negligence on the part of the operator to file his change of address with the department.

There are many instances in which newly arrived persons can be identified only by the names on their driver's licenses, but when the address is wrong, delays in more complete identification are experienced, and in some cases, it is impossible ever to trace the residence.

Harry E. Kelly, secretary of state, advises that all licensed chauffeurs and operators check their home addresses on their licenses. It requires only a few moments to properly record the correct addresses and any subsequent change that may be made.

Your best friend should have told you:

You can buy a Buick for—

The model illustrated is the Buick SPECIAL model 41 four-door touring sedan $995 delivered at Flint, Mich.*

WE'RE talking about that friend of yours who owns a 1939 Buick—

You've heard plenty from him, naturally, about the fresh-as-the-morning-breeze styling of his taut and trim new Buick—and the way it perks abody up just to look it over!

You've listened while he sang the praise of a ride that's like a lullaby—soft and gentle as a tender touch, but sure, unwavering, steady, in crosswind or at speed.

No doubt you've sensed his joy at those eight eager Dynaflex cylinders, that need only the gentlest sort of hint to hike you straight to the forefront—and the snug and reassuring steadiness of this stable stepper's gait!

All of which is well and good, but has your good friend told you this:

... That Buick's prices are easily the lowest prices for the value you'll find anywhere on automobile row?

... That this far-ranging great-hearted eight—with all the sky-larking life those extra cylinders give it—still costs less than some sixes?

... That factory list figures run anywhere from $51 to $102 less than a year ago—and that they buy worlds more in self-banking Knee-Action, Handishift transmission, 15% softer BuCoil Springing, visibility stepped up as much as 412 square inches, any number of so-called "extras" such as the Flash-Way direction signal?

If he hasn't, it's plainly time to get dollars-and-cents figures on what the model of your choice will cost delivered in your driveway!

UNIFIED TELEPHONE SERVICE MEANS BETTER SERVICE FOR YOU

THE MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY and 23 other regional telephone companies, with the Western Electric Company, Bell Telephone Laboratories, and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, make up the Bell System. Our association in this group is of advantage to every telephone user in Michigan.

It enables us, through the Western Electric Company, manufacturing unit of the Bell System, to get the finest equipment more economically than we could buy it elsewhere or make it ourselves. It means that improvements developed in the Bell Laboratories or by other Bell companies are available to Michigan's telephone users. Equally important are the advice and assistance furnished us by the headquarters staff of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Thus the service you receive is better service because the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is part of the unified Bell System, which has given America the most useful, most dependable and most reasonably priced telephone service in the world.

Girl Scouts

For twenty-seven years the Girl Scout organization has been helping girls to be healthy, happy good citizens. Girls today live in a world which has known war, depression and wide-spread turmoil. Nothing is quite so simple as it was on March 12, 1912, when Juliette Low held a tea party in Savannah, Georgia, and told a group of eager children about the Girl Scout idea. Nevertheless, that Girl Scout idea seems as vigorous and young as it ever did.

The Girl Scouts of Buchanan today learn to cook a meal, model a vase, pitch a tent, or conduct a meeting by actually doing these things. Best of all, they are learning to choose intelligently among many possible courses of action—a first requisite for the training of citizens in a modern democracy. Today as always, the Girl Scout asks, "What are the facts?" and her watchword is, "Go and find out!"

On the organization's twenty-seventh anniversary, the women who give their time and energy to further Girl Scouting in Buchanan have only two major concerns: They want to keep the Girl Scout program as fresh and varied as possible so that every girl may find in it something that she needs. And they are looking for volunteers to support the movement and to lead the many girls who want to be Scouts, but who have no one as yet to lead them. Men as well as women may help by sharing their hobbies with the girls or working with troop leaders and local councils.

We can all point with pride to the record of Buchanan's Girl Scouts. We can point with even more pride next year if we will give them the financial and personal cooperation they deserve. To the Girl Scouts of Buchanan and to more than half a million Girl Scouts in every state in the confined to her bed several weeks with an injury received in a fall. Mrs. Morley was born March 13, 1844, at Dayton, O., and came to the Gallien and Buchanan community when she was in her teens. She started teaching school in the woods near the present site of the village of Gallien in 1859 when she was 15 years old for $1.25 per week, and board. She taught in a number of rural schools, including the Kansas, Howe and Womer schools. One of her earliest recollections is seeing her father and uncle drive away with a team and wagon in 1849, bound for California, and years later she received part of her wages for teaching school in California gold dust. She has lived for 53 years in the 94-year-old house where she now resides. Her husband, B. T. Morley, pioneer foundryman of Buchanan, died many years ago.
