To The Fallen (The fourth verse of the poem of Lawrence Binyon reproduced below is inscribed on the National Cenotaph, or Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, on Whitehall street, London. The author is an official of the British Museum a few blocks away.)

With proud thanksgiving a mother for her children, England mourns for her dead across the sea.

Solemn the drums thrill, death august and royal, Sing sorrow up unto immortal spheres.

They went with songs, to the battle they were going, Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow,

They shall not grow old as we that are left grow old, Age shall not weary them or the years condemn.

But where our desires are and our hopes profound, Felt as a wellspring that is hidden from our sight,

As the stars they will be bright when we are lost, Moving in marches upon the heavenly plain;

It's a little premature—or rather short of time—to name Leo Boyce as a prospective candidate for president or something in 1940, but he seems to have made a flying start in a political career.

Word came to the Record yesterday that he had been appointed deputy county treasurer by the treasurer, William H. Bartz. Mr. Boyce has a good send-off in the political career of his father, Harry Boyce, and he also has a pleasing personality and a talent for work that should stand him in good stead.

Concerning the Means Taken For Enrollment of Men in Union Army

CHAPTER 5 Of the 3,179 who went to the Union armies from Berrien County, 1,724 enlisted in the first half of the war, or before the Enrollment or draft act went into effect on Sept. 18, 1863.

But these bald figures give no hint of the tremendous pressure that was exerted on men to join. Historians remark the nervous excitability of the times, doubtless much greater than now. Some historians connect this with the prevalent dyspeptic tendency of the population back in the days of fried hog and corn meal bread. Whether it was that, or whether years of tension had strung the nerves of the generation to a breaking point, there was prevalent a note of hysteria which was useful to the recruiters.

A large factor in the raising of troops was the efforts of ambitious young gentlemen to whom the enlistment of a good number meant personal advancement. That this ambition served a useful purpose as far as the war was concerned was true. However the means taken to enlist men were not always scrupulous.

Telling of the Once-On-A-Time When Garage Was Pronounced Like Carriage

CHAPTER 14 Automobiles were pretty crude affairs back just after the turn of the century, years and years before all these improvements like stream-lined installment plans, built-in mortgages, and valve-in-head motors (or would it be transmission?) had been thought up.

As is always the case, he new mode of education was bringing new words in the language, of which the pronunciation was still in the debatable stage. If you don't mind dating yourself, perhaps you can remember when the conversational purists were wrangling over the proper pronunciation of "garage," then new French importation meaning the thing which is the same thing to a car that a barn is to a mule. Should the foxy French pronunciation be adopted, with the accent on the last syllable

Albert Webb Made 2nd Lieutenant in Officers Reserve

Albert Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Webb of this city is one of twenty-three Upper Peninsula cadets, nine Lower Peninsula, and two outstate who received commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers Reserve Corps at the eleventh annual inspection of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology Engineer unit here May 24, with Major Robert C. Hunter of the Sixth Corps Area as inspecting officer. For ten consecutive years the Michigan Tech unit—formerly a battalion, but since last October a regiment—has been officially rated excellent by Army inspecting officers.

The regiment totals 312 men, 24 of whom combine with the same number outside the unit to form the large regimental band. Army officers in charge are Captain K. R. Barney, Lieutenant C. V. B. Sawin, and Sergeant S. H. Mount, all of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A. Cadet officers include a lieutenant colonel, two majors, and nine captains.

Deficits Resulting From Unforeseen Expenses Prove Rate Has Been Too Low

The 1939-40 tax levy for the city of Buchanan was set at 12 1/2 mills at a special budget session of the city commission Friday evening, the rate being an increase of 1 1/2 mills over the 11 mill rate of last year.

Chief consideration in making the raise was the difficulty in making up a deficit of $13,500 which existed when the budget of 1938 was made up. This deficit consisted of $8,500 in bank borrowings and the remainder chiefly in overdue light and power bills. It was stated by city officials that the fact that this deficit had been incurred through unforeseen contingencies indicated that the previous rates had been too low to allow for unexpected emergencies that may normally be anticipated in the course of either public or private business.

The necessity of repaying the bank loan last year and of meeting back accounts made the continuance of the previous rate impossible, particularly since it was further advisable to retire the remaining $10,000 of the old waterworks bonds.

The eleven-mill rate raised $37,725 of which it was necessary to allocate a total of $22,500 to retire the bonds, pay the back debt and catch up back utility charges, leaving only $15,225 on which to maintain the city for the year. The deficit of $13,500 alone corresponds to more than the income produced by a three-mill levy.

Economy of the highest order will have to be exercised under the present tax rate to cut the deficit in view of the added expenses of sewage treatment plant, library fund, welfare, and necessary new equipment for the city. There are other general costs to the city on sewer and paving projects and the city's general fund must bear the burden for these general expenses in the operation of the city.

In view of the needs and financial status it was found necessary to increase the tax rate for 1939.

Howard J. Miller Dies at Grand Rapids

Life, which had not been kind to Howard J. Miller, ended for him at the age of 19 in the Blodgett Memorial hospital at Grand Rapids Wednesday, May 17.

The funeral was held at the Swem Funeral Home at 2:30 p. m. Friday with Rev. Siefert of Berrien Springs in charge and he was buried in Oak Ridge, beside his parents, Andrew and Eliza Miller, both of whom had died before him.

He was born near Buchanan February 13, 1920. While a small boy, he and a brother hitched up a horse to a buggy without fastening the holdback straps. As they drove down a hill the buggy ran against the horse and it ran away. He was badly injured and had suffered constantly from bone disease since that time. He had been in the Blodgett hospital seven years. Four years ago the local Lions club supervised the transportation of two brothers to Grand Rapids to give him a blood transfusion, physicians stating that it was necessary at that time to save his life.

He is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Walter, Robert, Edward and Alfred Miller and Mrs. Marian Dunn of Berrien Springs; Mrs. Arthur Ross, Mrs. Frank Ross and Miss Pearl Miller of Kalamazoo.

Past Unveiled in Remodeling

Find Unroasted Coffee, Pepper Berries Under Bins at Allen's Hardware

Recent remodeling Allen's store into a streamlined version of the hardware business revealed some buried history in the form of vestiges of a grocery business that had been carried on there 50 years before.

Under the bins which were removed to make way for modern display tables were found green unroasted coffee beans of the days when people bought coffee that way and roasted it themselves. The bottom of the bins were built up a few inches off the floor and the beans had leaked through beneath. Under another bin was pepper seed from the days when people ground their own pepper. Under another was some dark Nek Orleans sugar, once the staple sweetening.

A grocery business had been conducted in the premises previous to 50 years ago by H. H. Kinyon and later by Charles Treat. Later a hardware store was conducted there by Ellis Roe and H. F. Kingery, later by Ellis Roe, and then by Emory Wilson, previous to the entrance of Ralph Allen and M. L. Lundgren. Allen and Lundgren first entered business together in 1910, buying the Pierce and Sanders implement business.

Doubtless ox yokes, caulk moulds, cowbells and cant hooks formed a staples of the business when it opened there a half century ago. The store is now as modernized and up-to-date as may be found in this section of Michigan. Their advertisement regarding their remodeling and opening will be found on another page.

MEMORIAL DAY REFLECTIONS

Peace was the intended free gift of God to man. But man for ages has bought it insensibly with blood. On Memorial Day we bow our heads over the graves of many of our most beloved sons, whose bodies were a part of War's red ransom exacted for the return of Peace.

Today Peace abides freely in America. Should we, then, commit the ancient folly of buying Peace needlessly with the best blood of our generation?

Airplant Resembles Dagger. The Peruvian airplant resembles a small Spanish dagger. It grows without being rooted, or without any roots or anything resembling roots. This plant blows over the Peruvian coastal deserts, growing as it travels. Without visible means of sustenance, miraculously it absorbs the intangible, volatile gases of the atmosphere and becomes a hard, rubbery, spiny plant.

Monday was perfect attendance day for the first grade.
Second Grade—Mabel Wilcox
We have been working on bird bath and bird house posters this week.

Journalists Visit South Bend Tribune

Members of the journalism class last Thursday visited the offices and operating machinery of the South Bend Tribune. These people had been saving up questions to put to the guide all year, and they took advantage of the opportunity. After their trip through the plant, many of the pupils went to shows or on shopping trips. Miss Cernahan was in charge.

Have Half Holiday for Band Festival

The occurrence of the band festival caused school to be dismissed at noon on Wednesday, May 17. The rooms were in use by the bands of the schools represented.

LIBRARY SCHEDULE

The library again has posted the schedule that warns pupils to have their books in on time.
May 24—No books taken from library.
May 26—All books due.
May 29 to June 2—The library will be open only for returning books and paying fines.

F. F. A. WILL BE BUSY THIS SUMMER

The F. F. A. boys have a full program set out for them this summer. In addition to two softball teams, sixty-one farm projects are planned, which will be done on about thirty-five farms.

Robert Simpson and Eldon Clem made some very good chalk posters of their houses and yards.
Anna Belle Lindquist and Donald Mathews are still absent. They have both been very ill.
Third Grade—Nina Fiechnar Hubert Harvel has returned to school after a serious illness.
We have a new pupil in our room, Jo Ann Kenton.
Franklin brought a jar of pollywogs for us to watch as they grow.

We are working on flowers, birds and bird houses.
Fourth Grade—Sara Quickel Lowell Dokey and Dennis Smedley are making sketches of the outdoors using charcoal as the medium.
Lloyd Dokey has been very busy making posters for our Health course called "Parade of Foods."
Special Room—Emid Reams
Junior went to Holland Saturday and saw them scrub the street. Miss Reams brought a Baby Gouda cheese that has been imported from the Netherlands.
We have finished the pictures of different kinds of homes for our books. Charles and Blain made very good Japanese homes.

Faculty Softball Game Next Monday

The faculty softball game will be played next Monday at the athletic field. Money raised will be used for new athletic equipment. The players are: Mr. Moore, Mr. Hyink, Mr. Langer, Mr. Miller, Mr. Rizer, Mr. Ray Miller, Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Carter.

Grade News

Second Grade—Miss Fritz

Sleanor and Jimmy entertained us with a puppet show which they made. The name of the show was "The Funny Baby."

Second Grade—Mrs. Helm

The science class in Mrs. Helm's room are studying the Big Dipper. They have drawn pictures of it and on clear nights some of the children have looked toward the north and have seen the Dipper in the sky. In the art class Miss Groh has helped the children in drawing their Night Pictures.

Third Grade—Miss Kinney

The committees have finished a freize showing dress, customs, and homes of people in Holland, Finland, Poland, England, Italy, Japan, and France.

We were very happy to have Mrs. Fuller's fourth grade come in and show us the flags that they made.
We are keeping a record of the weather for the next two weeks. We forecast the weather for the following day and then keep a record of what the weather was on that day. We also keep a record of temperature readings in the morning and afternoon.

Grade Four—Mrs. Fuller

We have had such interesting fun making the patterns of flags from many nations. We used muslin and crayolas and pressed them with a hot iron thus making them alike on both sides. Guessing the country represented was great fun. All the flags are beautiful but none so beautiful as our own. We hope all our friends will stop in to see us during the School Exhibit.

Grade Five—Miss Ekstrom

The class is making specimen boxes to use for collections made during the summer. Children of this age enjoy making collections and probably their work in science helps them to collect and classify more intelligently.
The boys are drawing a physical map of the Mississippi Valley showing the Mississippi River as "the body of the nation." The valley has been discussed by the class as a natural resource and its significance to the United States.

PROJECTS HAVE JAW BREAKER NAMES

Projects handed in for solid geometry in Mr. Hyink's classes have long names that must cause considerable trouble to the students. For example, there is the isocedron, a twenty-sided object made by Kenneth Phiscator; the dodecagon, by Lewis Pascoe; an octagon by Verne Longworth; and an oblique paralleloiped by Edward Pascoe.

BERRIEN-CASS SCOUTS GIVE LIBRARY BOOKLET

Donated by the Boy Scouts of Berrien and Cass counties, a large spiral booklet has made its appearance on the library table. It contains actual photographs of boys in other countries contrasted with American boys in their scout movements. It is entitled "America's Answer."

Library Wants Nat. Geographics

If any persons in Buchanan have old National Geographic Magazines that they will donate to the school library, they can be assured that good use will be made of them by having them bound and placed on the shelves. These magazines are particularly valuable for visual education.

Those who will donate their magazines should contact Miss Cernahan at the high school.

Seniors Visit In Chicago on Skip Day

The seniors spent their annual skip day in Chicago May 24, under the chaperonage of Mr. Moore and Mrs. Dunbar. They visited the Stevens Hotel, the Federal Reserve Bank, and the Board of Trade. The Michigan Central Railroad cooperated by offering a special rate for one car.

What Are Wieners Without Any Buns?

Last Friday the first division of the seventh grade had a werner roast in the hills, supervised by Miss MacNeil. The occasion was marred by one tragedy—the buns had been forgotten! Several boys were sent after them, but on Monday, when Miss MacNeil went to the home economics room, she found the three dozen rolls, hard and dry from being left over the week-end.

S. W. Mich. Music Festival June 24

The Southwestern Michigan Music Festival to be held in St. Joseph, Saturday June 24, and sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of that city, promises to be an outstanding event. Entries are being received in the several divisions from musicians and music organizations in the territory. The territory covered is that within a radius of 125 miles of the city of St. Joseph. All talent in that territory desiring to enter the Chicagoand Music Festival Saturday, August 19, at Soldiers Field must do so through the Southwestern Michigan Music Festival. The winner in each of the divisions here will go to Chicago for the final contest with winners of several other districts throughout the country and three districts in Cook County, Illinois.

There is a very keen interest in the Festival and entries have been received from Vocal Soloists and Instrumentalists, Choruses, Bands and Baton Twirlers, from Muskegon, Muskegon Heights, Battle Creek, Lansing, Kalamazoo and Allen, Michigan, in addition to musicians and groups from the cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor and near by territory. The closing date for entries is Saturday, June 10.

The opportunity that is afforded eligible singers, musicians, bands and choruses is a rare one as they will appear before competent judges furnished by the Chicagoland Festival. Their comments and criticisms can be of much value to young musicians even though their efforts may not be crowned with the laurels of success as winning contestants. It is the hope of the sponsors that all interested singers, musicians, bands and choruses will enter.

The Chicagoand Festival is confined to vocalists both male and female, instrumentalists, Violinists, Cornetists and Accordion players, Choruses of not less than 20 and not over 100 voices, Bands both juvenile and adult and Baton Twirlers. The Southwestern Michigan Music Festival will include all these and is adding divisions for Trios, Male and Mixed Quartettes and String Quartettes. Musicians in these additional divisions will not be eligible to enter the Chicagoand Festival but will participate in the local contests and festival and the winners will be awarded the honors for Southwestern Michigan. The judges of these divisions will be furnished by the Chicagoand Festival management.

Interested persons should write to the Southwestern Michigan Music Festival at 615 Broad Street where full information and entry blanks may be procured.

One for Your Money That's Tuned to Go! YOU spot it for its beauty—love it for its easy-going gait—buy it for its value. But there's no question at all about where the thrill lies in having this quick-stepping Buick for your own. Action is its middle name—fleetness out where the roads are clear, nimble agility when the traffic's thick and tangled, quick-paced travel from the minute you get aboard. You've literally got the hurricane harnessed to your service—for with every six inches this great car travels, a tiny cyclone lets go in the cylinders of this Dynaflex straight-eight to give life and lift to its movement. Your hand on that steering wheel guides a big and roomy carriage—yet a finger movement steers it and a hand's weight holds it to the line. On curves, its Knee-Action actually "banks" the road for you—on gravel, washboard, loose stone, or cobbles, giant coil springs of soft-flexing steel soak up, blot out, erase the bumps. Your view's the view from seats in first-row-center—there's nothing that goes on you don't take in instantly through an outlook stepped up as much as 412 extra square inches. All the time, of course, you ride in style fresh as a breath of tomorrow's dawning. All the time you ride assured that you've bought both smartly and well. For this roomy, full-powered, silken-riding Buick—sprinkled from bumper to bumper with standard equipment that costs you extra elsewhere—is priced down below last year—down below some sixes—down below your own idea of what it ought to cost. Yes sir, here's the one for your money if you want the car and the value of the year—and it's tuned to go in a big way from the day you take it over. Why not see your Buick dealer now? Tales of an Old Town

to a mobilization camp. A little training in pleasant surroundings, and the war would be over. Not much more than an excursion at government expense.

Charles Mills enlisted. Only the war lasted over two years, and young Mills didn't stay long enough at Ypsilanti to attend any classes other than those on the military training grounds. Soon he was with the Army of the Cumberland, charging through mine-laid ground at Vicksburg, while tremendous explosions threw up the earth and the bodies of men dropped around. Safe out of the bloody fight at Vicksburg, he went through two years of sanguinary service, terminating one murderous day at Petersburg in Grant's last campaign to capture Richmond. He had just emerged from the horrors of the Battle of the Wilderness and of Spotsylvania.
In the thick of the fight at Petersburg he had dropped to one knee and was sighting down his rifle to are when a minie ball struck him in the right arm and side. Minie balls were bullets ingeniously constructed to tear bigger and better holes in people, and while young Mills was not wounded in any vital organs, his arm and side were badly mangled and what was worse, he laid three days under the burning sun and three cold nights, while gangrene developed, before he was taken to hospital. He was wounded July 30, 1864 and was not released from hospital until Feb.

11, 1865.

Then he came home to Midland county, walking with a soldier-like crookedness, but weak and thin, with his right arm hanging stiff at his side. Here at last he got some of the education which the recruiting officer had promised him, while his little foster sister, Linda Mills, aided him in learning to write with his left hand.

A number enlisted from this vicinity in the excitement when the rebel raider, Morgan, was harassing southern Indiana and had arrived at the outskirts of Indianapolis. Communications were relatively poor, news was usually badly exaggerated and incorrect, and many a man enlisted in the fever of excitement then that realized only too soon that his place was home with his wife and children. Here and there in the Buchanan district, there are to be found letters written by soldiers to their wives bitterly regretting their rash haste, and too often and in known cases those men languishing and died in bitter loneliness of disease in some southern hospital camp.

Charles Clark tells of how the soldiers scoured the countryside at the time of Morgan's raid, gathering up all the guns to arm recruits. His father, Albert Clark, gave his rifle as a loan. The officers scratched his name on it as a means of identification and later returned it. Clark still has it. A Mr. Gilbert of Bakertown, grandfather of M. Gilbert, enlisted in the excitement, leaving his wife and seven boys at home. He died shortly afterward of disease in a Kansas City hospital. His oldest son was Mr. Gilbert's father.

After the Enrollment Act went into effect Sept. 19, 1863, the drawings were frequent and tension was correspondingly high. Every so often the names of all men between 18 and 45 would undergo draft. Mrs. M. L. Mills relates that her father, Harding Mills, stood the draft four times without being drawn. But so keenly did he feel about it that he had induced influential friends in the town where the drawings were held to keep in close touch with the idea of getting instant information to him if he were drawn, so that he could hurry to a recruiting office and enlist before the draft papers could be served on him.

Indeed the main results of the draft were through this indirect pressure rather than from direct drawings. Then, too, increasingly large bounties were being paid to volunteers. Starting soon after 1861, these bounties increased until they reach $1,500 in some places in 1865. These large bounties were jointly built up by the national government, states and localities. The government gave $400 to veterans who re-enlisted. Then anyone who was drafted could hire a substitute if he could find one, paying all the way from $300 to $1,000 or higher. sums such as from $400 to $1,000 seemed very large then; they were enough to buy farms in many localities. Consequently many men took the chances of returning and a farm was bought with their bounty money to await their return. Such a farm waited young Charles Mills on his return. So did Andrew Conrad, father of Mrs.
Mary Jane Mitchell, invest the bounty money and wages of his two sons, Adam and William, in a farm ready for their return. So did young Chris Herman, who enlisted twice, getting $400 for the re-enlistment, and buying 40 acres and a log cabin for his bride in the Bend of the River—but that's another story.
(To be continued)

The Record were as follows:
July 7, 1905—The Michigan Motor & Machine Company will begin work next week on an automobile for M. S. Mead. It will be a light runabout and will be propelled by a 16-horse power gasoline engine.

Aug. 11, 1905—The automobile being built for M. S. Mead by the Michigan Motor & Machine Company is fast nearing completion.
It is expected that it will be finished in about a week or ten days.

Perhaps, after the product was in circulation, the whole subject was rather unmentionable. It made Mr. Mead a lot of trouble. Usually he took his troubles to Arlen Clark down at the Celfor plant. The machine had two "opposed" or end-to-end cylinders, according to Mr.
Clark. Which may have explained something. Anyway it ran only occasionally.

Younger brains are nimbler in such things and the affluent elderly gents who bought cars to flash their bank rolls usually had some young protege who was glad to drive for them for the experience.
Mr. Mead had thus associated with him, one Cliff Peters, now of the local I. & M. office force. There was nothing certain about anything even with Mr. Cliff Peters along, but he did seem to understand it better than Mr. Mead, even though, according to conversational historians his chief method of repair was to take the top off the transmission case and stir up the contents with a broom-handle which was his main if not his only tool.

However, the case may have been, they say that in a rather as-tonishingly large number of cases, the machine chugged off as good as new after a stirring with Cliff's broom handle.

Those, of course, were the days when pioneer Ford drivers used to start a stalled motor by spitting in the radiator.

It is told of Mr. Mead, whether true or not, that before he had his car he drove a horse and buggy which he was wont to hitch daily at a telephone pole in front of the postoffice, about where Houswerth's place is now. After he changed to an automobile, the legend runs that he continued to park in front of the same post and one day he absentmindedly forgot to stop in the required manner but kept shouting "whoa!" while his car bounced back and forth, bunting the telephone pole.

Mr. Clark states that the las-time he ever saw this car in use was one Memorial day, probably in 1906 or 1907, when he was working at the waterworks. Mead, who held out at the sawmill, located where the Buchanan Lumber & Coal plant is now, went by, bound for the cemetery with a car full of flowers. It was early in the morning when he passed the waterworks. Along in the afternoon Clark saw the car returning home, one rear wheel off and a fence rail substituted, towed by a team of horses. That was probably its last appearance in public.

as a result, his first act eventually does more harm to himself than to the person involved.

Innocent Children as Victims A court was forced to order the right eye of a seven year old boy removed. This child had used the family towel after its use by an elder sister, who, infected with a social disease, had unknowingly contaminated it.

Many states have recently enacted new marriage laws, which provide that a health certificate be presented before a county clerk can issue a marriage license. These states are to be congratulated.
While such laws do not protect children from infection, they may possibly prevent infected parents from bringing blind children into the world.

When we consider that thousands of adults are committed to institutions for the insane as a result of contracting social diseases, it behooves parents, educators and churches alike to support any movement which will eradicate the misery that accompanies such a disease. It is estimated that approximately one out of every ten persons in this country is afflicted with a social disease. It is imperative that a concerted movement be made to check or eradicate the evil.

Children in Court
By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Punishment Should Be Gauged
According to the Crime Itself The parents of a nine year old boy were severely lectured by the court before they were permitted to resume custody of their child.
The child had committed a series of minor offenses which destroyed property to a loss of hundreds of dollars. The boy actually was blameless, for previously his parents had only slightly reprimanded or completely ignored his activities, whenever such acts were called to their attention. Like many thoughtless parents, they did not realize that one small act could lead to a series of more serious offenses. The theory that all forms of punishment should be meted out according to the extent of the crime which has been committed does not effectively check the child who commits his first anti-social act. As the great majority of all acts committed by very small children do not frequently harm others, their anti-social activities are too often passed over with a slight reprimand. Consequently, the child continues to increase his pernicious activities. As

German Army Vets Incorporate

Articles of incorporation for the German Army Veterans of St. Joseph, Mich., Inc., which declare the organization is an American patriotic society, were filed today with County Clerk A. J. Hastings.

Purposes of the corporation, as outlined in the articles, are: "To uphold and defend the constitution of the United States of America and the state of Michigan; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in friendly comradeship; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to help and encourage each other to become good American citizens."

The association is organized as a non-profit, non-stock corporation.

Qualifications of active members are limited, the articles said, to "only German and Austrian army veterans, who must be citizens of the United States of America, or those who have applied for their first papers to become citizens."

The president, secretary and treasurer must be citizens of the United States. Social membership is open "to good residents of German or Austrian blood."

prisoner, consoled his spirit with its magic notes. If the Lanierians will take a friendly hint, they will dig up one of those old pictures of the young poet and have good reproductions made. Judiciously distributed, these pictures would win a vast amount of support for their poet.

Lanier died tragically young, but it cannot be said of him (as, unhappily it can with complete justice be said of Poe) that Baltimore let him starve. He came here from his native Georgia, his lungs already ravaged by the illness that was to claim him, and obtained positions as English lecturer at the Johns Hopkins university and as first flute in the Peabody orchestra. During his last years here he composed some of his best work and expounded his views of music and poetry. Any one who has ever read his "Song of the Chattahoochee" will agree that he was a master of alliterative, tone-color verse. In that he was what Ezra Pound would call a "hippy-hop o' the accents." But he was much more than a skilled and graceful versifier. At his best he is the equal of Poe; moreover, he never wrote (or at any rate never published) anything as banal as the worst of Poe. Though some of his poems have an overplus of vague or meaningless mysticism, they are all musically clear.

Lanier's reputation does not need bolstering by his inclusion in the Hall of Fame; it only deserves its rightful place.

In connection with the "All School Exhibit," Art will find a prominent place, for while books appeal to the heart, paintings satisfy the soul.

The work of each grade will be displayed in the respective rooms and that of the Junior High School and Advanced Art Class will be found in the lower corridor.

This exhibit should be of unusual interest, for Creative Expression predominates in almost every sketch. The students have displayed temperment. Some of their pictures impress us as being busy, stirring, exciting, dramatic, pleasing, restful and unassuming.

Pencil being our truest and best medium, is indispensable to the growing artist, for he must depend alone upon the development of his subject for appeal. When he finds that he has accomplished this feat, in even a small measure, his desire for Art will become lasting.

Some of the sketches were completed in one class period, after the stage had been properly set for Free Expression.

Music Booklets have been artistically decorated with both formal and informal Musical Designs. Variety in lettering appears on the reverse cover. Some of the students have composed original melodies and songs.

Charcoal and Pastel makes its appearance in figures and profiles and a few landscapes. Water color, being a treacherous medium, requiring special manipulation has stepped forward in this exhibit. Students have learned to take the water out of water color. Their later studies have reached a quality nearing that of professionals.

The advanced students have decorated mats, vases, textiles, wooden bowls and other articles with oil paints. Photograph tinting, burnt wood etching and glorified glass was also demonstrated.

In addition to making numerous posters, program folders, etc., the students have costumed over two dozen life sized figures representing, "The History of Raiment." A number of standard sized pictures, 22x28, have been framed for permanent decoration. A unit, "The Home," covering phases from the "When, Where and Why" to "What Makes a House a Home," has invoked much interest, for students want to know, "How to Live."
