Son Minnie Haas Owns Record Cow

The Record was pleased to get a Kalamazoo paper from Mrs. Minnie Haas, containing an interesting story of her son, Mrs. Haas formerly made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Kent, at 308 Main street.

Mrs. Minnie H. Haas, Fulton school teacher visiting her sister, Mrs. Glen E. Rooney, 1122 South Westnedge avenue, yesterday was surprised to read in The Gazette an article on a record milk producing cow owned by her son, Thomas Orson Haas, San Jose, Calif.

Added significance was given to the incident by the fact that Mrs. Haas plans to leave June 5 to visit her son for the first time in four years. He came to Kalamazoo as a child, but never resided here, she said.

Mrs. Haas will also attend the National Education Association convention in San Francisco July 8-6, and visit the San Francisco World's Fair. She plans to visit in Seattle, Wash., before returning to Michigan.

The son is part owner of a large dairy farm in the San Jose valley, including the prize winning Holstein Freisian, Johanna Hester Prilly, reported to have given enough milk in the last year to supply a family with a quart a day for 50 years. The animal is valued at $4,000.

Dowagiac Heads Tell Experience

Chairman George Chain to Place Petitions at Public Library

The first step toward possible organization of a community plan, such as is now in effect in Dowagiac and in other communities of the state, was made at a meeting at the high school Monday evening, when a representative attendance from the town was addressed by Leeds Gulick, director of the Dowagiac set-up and Edwin Melin, coordinator for trade and industry in the Dowagiac schools.

Melin spoke on the technical courses which are being carried in the Dowagiac schools in collaboration with the industries of the town, through the apprentice system now in effect there. He also described the technical courses offered in the adult school conducted under the community plan.

Gulick spoke on the various activities being carried on by the Dowagiac community set-up, and the problems incident to the beginning of such organization.

A statement of the work done to date towards organization was read by the chairman, George Chain. The meeting was then thrown open for suggestions as to further steps.

The following motion was then introduced by Rev. W. H. Brunelle and seconded by M. J. Converse.

State of Purpose "As we believe that the fullest opportunity for life can be given to the people of Buchanan through the cooperation of its several groups, we, the undersigned organizations establish a Community Council, to provide for the educational, recreational and spiritual enrichment of the community and its people.

"The Community Council shall be composed of one representative from each organization in the city of Buchanan and its adjacent townships which desire to participate in the work of the council.

"When fifteen of said organizations shall have subscribed to this purpose, the Council shall have come into being, and shall commence its work.

"It shall be empowered to adopt a constitution, making effective this purpose.

"All organizations subscribing to this purpose before the first meeting of the Council shall be charter members.

"We further name George Chain to call the first meeting of the Community Council immediately after the enlistment of the fifteenth organization."

The motion was adopted. Chairman George Chain then stated that he would have a number of petitions made for organizations desiring to join, and would leave them in the Buchanan public library.

Tales of An Old Town

An Attempt to Reproduce a Cross Section of The American Scene, As Witnessed Here Through the Past Century

Telling How Well They Loved Parades and How Hard They Worked at Them in Civil War Days

CHAPTER 6 The great political processions from one town or city to another during the Civil War campaigns indicated that the people of that day loved a parade, that their interest in the political conflict was universal and absorbing, and that they possessed appetite for hard-ship unknown to the present.

During the two campaigns for the election of Lincoln there were many parades in the Buchanan vicinity, including one in which Niles, Buchanan, Gallen and Three Oaks contingents met at the Gitchell school and trailed across Portage Prairie to South Bend; another in which 2,000 horsemen from around Buchanan rode from the Howe schoolhouse to New Carlisle, and others in which the population of surrounding villages converged on Buchanan.

For many years there seemed to be one pattern for such parades of which the participants never wearied. The procession would be headed by "band wagons," large floats or platforms which had rows of seats around the edges facing the center. Or in some cases seats were lacking and the passengers stood up, protected from falling off by railing. These platforms were placed on a regular wagon running gear and usually were drawn by two or more teams of horses.

If a band were available it would occupy the front wagon. But the real nub of the parade was one to several loads of girls and young ladies, nearly always dressed the same or nearly the same, in white dresses, with red sashes worn over the right shoulder and tied on the left side, and a blue cap. Sometimes they wore wreaths of myrtle in which case blue was worn in some other garment. Each of the young ladies was symbolic of one of the states or one of the near by counties. The place of honor went to a popular beauty selected to represent the Goddess of Liberty.

How early this form of procession came into vogue this writer does not know, but it was widely seen in Michigan and northern Indiana in the Lincoln-Douglas campaign in 1860 and it was repeated in a memorial day parade staged by the Women's Relief Corps from Buchanan to Oak Ridge cemetery

LL STEAMED UP FOR JUNIOR PROM

The air of excitement, the enlivened discussions of evening hours, the sudden desire to learn

School Exhibits Illustrate Work

Exhibits of the work of pupils in the various departments were shown last Friday. Many posters and notebooks which were made especially for the exhibit stood side by side with less studied examples of everyday work.

In Mrs. Dunbar's room, posters to illustrate English Literature and "Macbeth" were displayed with notebooks for the same purposes.

An attractive Roman frieze decorated the Latin room, also on display was a wooden model of a Roman bridge, a Roman lamp made of copper, arazier, and a standard of the tenth legion, as also were Latin and French mottoes, French menus, and scenes of France.

For a physics project, a set of switches was mounted on a board, the opening or closing of them lighted a light bulb, which was mounted on the board. Various exhibits were shown in the chemistry laboratory, among them the making of nitric acid and the distillation of water.

The agriculture room exhibited biology notebooks and insect collections, and, beside it, Miss MacNeil and Miss Carnahan showed samples of pupils' work and several attractive world's fair posters.

Posters for economics and other social studies nearly covered the new bulletin board in Mr. Eiber's room.

Graphs and charts for history were on display in Mrs. Whitman's room, with cartoons illustrating the Monroe Doctrine.

The Home Economics room showed various charts and free pamphlets were distributed. The typing room had an Artistic Typing display.

B. H. S. Pupil's Essay in Magazine

A B. H. S. pupil, Norma Yoder, has been signally honored by the "Scholastic" magazine, a weekly magazine especially for schools. Norma's essay, "And So—the End" was printed in the space reserved for the best works of school-age writers.

The essay deals with the feelings of a girl who sees her best friends graduating and speculates about whether she will see them again.

A Buchanan pupil's work has not appeared in "Scholastic" since Pauline Topash's poetry appeared there.

The Library Club Visits Riley High

Thirteen members of the library club last week went to the Riley High school in South Bend to see the library.

After seeing the library, they were shown through other departments of the school, and were greatly impressed by the laundry the school maintains.

Grade News

Miss Ream's sixth grade have a new French book entitled "Su-Su." The story is about two French children and their donkey. The class has made a border for the room illustrating the story.

Mrs. Ida Mann is teaching for Miss Jeffries who has gone to Sault Ste. Marie to attend a P. T. A. meeting.

Miss Spear's room is having some very interesting review lessons. The class has combined written language work with history. An interesting or unusual event in history is chosen as a title and then a paragraph is written about that event.

The children in Mrs. Heim's room are enjoying a new Reading book, "Picture Tales from Holland," given them by Miss Graves. The class has learned the Dutch word "rifstepap" for rice pudding.

Miss Connell's first grade are now doing audience reading. They are also reading for pleasure, choosing their favorite library book.

Miss Carnagan's first grade are watching and caring for a Cecropia moth which has just emerged from its cocoon. The cocoon was kept throughout the winter.

Pupils in Miss Ekstrom's fifth grade are making specimen boxes for summer collecting. They are to be turned in next fall. Collections of flowers, weeds, leaves, seeds, insects, butterflies, and moths will be made. The children are urged to use reference material in the public library for classifying material.

Some interesting specimens are being brought in now.

During this warm spring weather the children are enjoying their playground immensely. They are playing the same games that usually come with the season. The elm and maple are beautiful in their new foliage at this time of the year. The playground is really a park and the children play in the shade of its trees. A view of the winding creek at the foot of the hills beyond tempts the wandering gypsy feeling sometimes. Our playground is truly a place to relax.

Mrs. Fuller's fourth grade have made a collection of bird nests. They have robins', chipping sparrows', humming birds', yellow warblers', catbirds', and brown thrashers'. Mrs. Heim gave them a nest with a cowbird's egg in it.

Miss Kinney's third graders were very pleased to have Geraldine Smith visit their room Wednesday. They put a piece of limestone rock containing fossils, into a solution of hydrochloric acid to see the effects of acid on limestone. The rock is slowly dissolving—and the shells in it are completely dissolved.

FACTS FAVOR FORD

1 The 1939 Ford V-8 is a beautiful, modern motor car. Its 85-horsepower engine gives you economical, well-balanced performance over the entire speed range—and the 60-horsepower engine is even more economical.

2 The structural strength of the Ford car—frame, bracing, axles, body—makes not only for safety, but durability and long life.

3 Ford hydraulic brakes are exceptionally large and strong in proportion to car weight.

4 The Ford car is stabilized for comfortable riding. Its springbase, the distance between front and rear suspension, is 123 inches. Seats are toward the center, perfectly balanced. The car does not bob or dip and can have very little sway.

These four points—power, strength, safety, comfort—are by far the most important essentials in any motor car. They form the basic value of your investment.

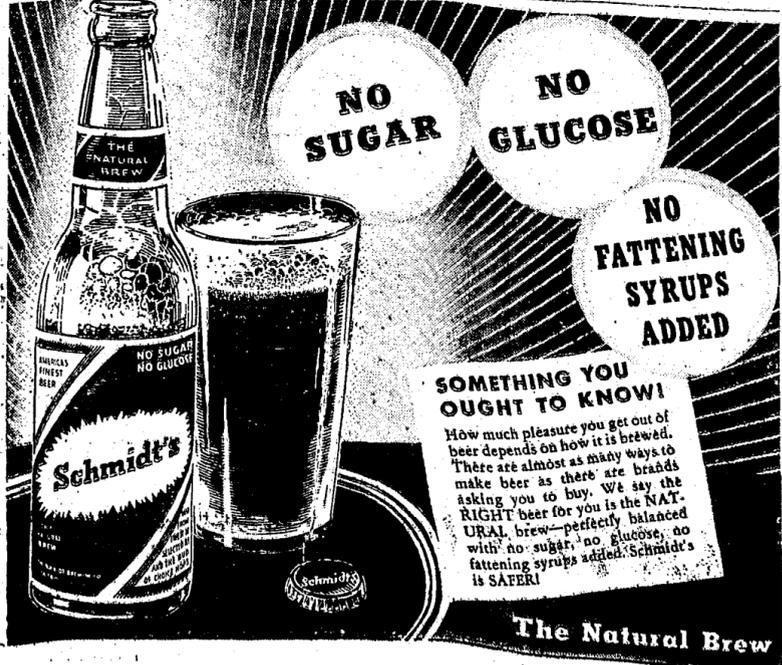

With this solid foundation to build on, the Ford V-8 has been made beautiful, spacious, easy to drive. It is richly upholstered and has all the modern features which add to the luxury and pleasure of motoring.

You can see these things when you take a trial drive, but do not forget that the main value is in the things you do not readily see—quality of materials, precision of manufacture, fundamental engineering.

WHETHER you belong to the school of thought that considers an ELECTRIC Range a modern cooking machine, or prefer to think of it as the Range with a chef's brain, you will agree that it is truly one of the wonders of the age... an ELECTRIC "cook" is cook in name only and really a lady of leisure... she may be far away from the faithful ELECTRIC Range automatically cooking an entire evening's meal, while she plays or improves her time.

To Cook Tomorrow's Way Today, install an ELECTRIC Range.

The Sunday school class of the Church of Christ, taught by William Bohl, honored him at a party last week, 46 attending. One of the members read the following poem as representing the feeling of the class for Mr. Bohl and his work:

Tribute Paid to Our Teacher
This world is made brighter since you have made known The gospel of righteousness — strong and full blown!

And on and on through long coming ages, Like teachings of old from earliest sages, You've built castles of truth that ever will stand, To mark your pathway throughout the land.

Yes, the world has been raised to a much higher plane, Your teaching and life have not been in vain; From low vales of living to hills of delight You have ever led upward, a host for the right. Thus may you continue, ever noble and true; Our Father alone knows the real worth of you.

For the world is made better by the work you have done; Many lives you have saved, many lives you have won. Blackened and tarnished, many a name, Yea, many a heart has been bowed down in shame; But through your good labors all will be well, And happy results will eternity tell.

May God ever bless you in your labor of love. You are faithful in teaching His Work from above, And never grow weary in the work that you do, For there is nothing more noble, nothing more true; And the imprint you make on the lives that you meet Will show its great value when all is complete.

from New Carlisle to Buchanan in a campaign parade and rally in 1864. At Buchanan speaking was from a platform. Directly behind the speakers' stand there was a large backboard on which the names of local boys who had been killed in battle were inscribed in large letters.

Reynolds, then a small lad, does not remember who the speakers were or what they said, but he does remember Russell Babcock of Galien seated near the front and crying at the sight of the name of his son, Hiram Babcock, posted among the dead.

Pierce Cauffman rode from the Howe schoolhouse to New Carlisle with 2,000 men and boys mounted on horses during the campaign of 1864. The parade was scheduled to terminate in a drama at New Carlisle. A New Carlisle group was to be all ready to hang in effigy some prominent northern leader, Cauffman cannot remember just who. But the Portage Prairie and Buchanan contingent was to arrive just in the nick of time and stage a last minute rescue.

The day turned out rainy and as the long procession of floats and horsemen wound along the old Chicago trail the mire churned deeper and deeper. At the start the men and boys were attired in spotless white shirts, with red and blue sashes. The long train, riding two abreast, sometimes four abreast, was a pretty sight. But long before they got to New Carlisle the color of their apparel was hidden by mud. They were hours late but as they came to the environs of the village, they gathered up their reins and spurred their horses into a spirited dash for the dramatic rescue. But it was too late. The lynching party had become tired and disgusted at the delay and had gone ahead and strung the victim up anyway just as a reminder to the Michigan party to be more prompt with the rescue business next time.
